One Mill Valley Trustee Talks Of Phone Session On Collins' Job

The Mill Valley School District board last night postponed a closed meeting to discuss the work of Supt. James A. Collins after audience protests that the meeting would be illegal.

The trustees said they would seek legal advice on the propriety of such a meeting.

After adjournment, Dr. William L. Clark, a trustee, told a group of persons standing in the hall of the district office that the board would discuss Dr. Collins' performance in office by telephone.

'YOU'VE FORCED THIS'

"You've forced us into this," he said. No mention of conducting business by telephone was made by trustees in the meeting earlier.

The special meeting had been called with only one item on the agenda, described as evaluation of the performance of the superintendent.

Although Dr. Collins told the Independent-Journal earlier this week that the meeting was being closed to the public to renegotiate his salary, Chairman Joseph E. Bodovitz said last night a salary change would not be discussed in a closed meeting.

"We wish to evaluate his performance so that salary may be discussed at a later meeting," he said.

Dr. Collins was hired last July with a four-year contract.

Five Mill Valley residents and an Independent-Journal reporter and photographer came to last night's meeting.

They refused to leave and William Henderscheid of 1121 West California Avenue pointed out to board members that the reason given for the meeting was not a legal one under the Ralph M. Brown Act.

"If you will give us a legal reason for holding a closed meeting, we will leave," Henderscheid said. Bodovitz said that he had been advised by the county counsel (Douglas J. Maloney) that the meeting would be legal.

The Independent-Journal reporter told Bodovitz that closed sessions of local government agencies are allowed only for hiring, firing or hearing charges against an employee.

'A MOLE HILL'

"If the I-J wishes to make a mountain out of a molehill, we won't have the meeting," Bodovitz said. But he said he felt that discussing Dr. Collins' performance in open session might hamper him in his future work.

On the motion, however, of Trustee John K. Robinson, the four members present voted to adjourn the meeting. The fifth trustee, Joyce R. Gross, arrived just after the meeting had been adjourned.

LBJ Strongly Urges Action On Park Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson handed Congress Friday "a priority conservation agenda" that included references to the Central Arizona Project and the Redwood and North Cascades national parks.

He urged establishment of a national water commission to chart water-resource management policy for the next 100 years, creation of nationwide systems of scenic trails and rivers, and additions to the nation's new wilderness preservation system.

'MAN'S SURVIVAL'

"Conservation's concern now," he said in a message, "is not only for man's enjoyment—but for man's survival."

The President placed the Central Arizona Project in the survival category and asked Congress for final action this year to authorize work "to bring water from the Colorado River to meet the urgent needs of the people of Arizona."

REDWOOD PARK

He called establishment of a Redwood National Park in Northern California "paramount among our last-chance conservation opportunities."

"I urge the House to seize this opportunity and complete action on a redwood bill this year," he said.

He also recommended that the House complete action on two

Bond Vote Asked To Build North Coast Waterworks

CONCORD (AP) — Contra Costa County Dist. Atty. John Nejedly wants a new statewide water bond issue passed in the minimum amount of $2 or $3 billion to provide water for Northern California.

Nejedly made the proposal at yesterday's meeting between Contra Costa county supervisors and the board of directors of the California Water Resources Association.

He recently filed suit against the state to invalidate a State Water Rights Board decision of 1967. It gave the $2.8 billion water project the right to export 4.2 million acre feet of water out of the San Joaquin-Sacramento River Delta for the San Joaquin Valley and Southern California.

Nejedly suggested that the litigation would no longer be necessary if the bond issue was voted by the legislature.

He said this would enable construction of vast water supply projects in the North Coast area of California to make up the Delta water deficiences caused by export of water by the state water project.

The county also demanded state water quality standards for the Delta be written into law.

Cab Driver Dead In Student Riot

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A J. Boruff, 27, a white taxi driver, was found shot to death early today near his battered, burned cab— after he radioed for protection from a rock-throwing Negro college student group.

Police said the death followed a post-midnight demonstration on the campus of predominantly Negro Knoxville College by 50 to 75 students angered over the arrest of an out-of-state motorist on the campus.

Boruff, married and the father of two children, was found in a field at the rear of the college campus, shot to death and face down—with the battered, burned taxicab some 75 yards away across a gully.

Tank Troops Battle Reds Near Da Nang

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. troops riding armored personnel carriers behind tank columns killed 129 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong today in a renewal of heavy fighting near the big Marine base at Da Nang, front reports said. Fierce combat raged into the night.

At Khe Sanh, 100 miles north of the coastal battlefields around Da Nang, the heaviest North Vietnamese artillery barrage on the U.S. fortress in two weeks blew up a depot containing tear gas bombs. Fumes poured into bunkers filled with American Marines.

ELEPHANTS USED

On the strategic Central Highlands, U.S. reconnaissance pilots sweeping over a newly-built extension of the Ho Chi Minh supply trail network from Cambodia saw four elephants loaded with North Vietnamese guns and ammunition moving toward the American base at Dak To.

The pilots called in air strikes, and the U.S. Command said bombs and rockets hurtling from jet fighter-bombers killed at least one of the pack elephants and destroyed part of a heavy-duty road used by the North Vietnamese for a possible new offensive on the Highlands.

EXECUTIONS TOLD

In Saigon, American headquarters said Saturday it had "substantiating" information from prisoners of war that Communist armies invading Hue last month executed 485 civilians during the fierce battle for the old Imperial capital. At least two of the victims were identified as Roman Catholic priests.

The Khe Sanh barrage from North Vietnamese gun emplacements in the hills overlooking the American bastion sent 300 mortar shells and rockets crashing down on Marine defenders—the heaviest bom-

Civil Rights Bill Ready For Adoption Monday

Housing Changes Defeated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — After seven weeks of agonizing debate, the Senate has agreed on a sweeping civil rights bill outlawing housing discrimination in over two-thirds of the nation's dwellings, curbing riot weapons and broadening federal guarantees against racial violence.

The Senate locked up the package by an overwhelming vote of 61 to 19 yesterday bringing to an end session-long debate, negotiation, compromise and voting on the vigorously disputed bill.

A final vote—expected to be a mere formality—was anticipated Monday, sending the bill to an uncertain future in the House.

NEW FILIBUSTER?

The only possible obstacle to final Senate approval was the unlikely prospect of a renewed Southern filibuster. Indications were that the outnumbered Dixie rebels and a few conservative cohorts were ready to accept defeat.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield scheduled other legislation for Monday—a clear indication that he had received some sign from the Southerners there would be no more oratory.

HOUSE ACTION

The House passed similar open housing legislation in 1966, but the body lost many of its liberal freshmen members in the 1966 election. The 1966 open housing bill died in the Senate last year.

The measure the Senate settled on yesterday includes an open housing provision covering about 44.6 million dwellings, 68 per cent of the nation's total; anti-riot measures; and federal protection for Negroes and civil rights workers against racial violence.

The open housing provision was considered so sweeping that Southerners felt it could never pass and its backers rated it wishful thinking when debate opened Jan. 17.

Murderer's Escape Car Recovered?

A car stolen from the ranch of Carlos Silveira, 41, the night before the Marin dairyman was murdered shows signs of having had many identifiable fingerprints removed, a sheriff's investigator said today.

The car, which is owned by Albert Bignami, 61, a Silveira ranch hand, was found in the parking lot of a Ukiah tavern yesterday, where it had been parked for two or three days.

The car, a 1961 Chevrolet, was taken from the Silveira house on Highway 101 north of San Rafael last Monday. Silveira was shot to death Tuesday night. Officer J. J. Ransom of the Ukiah Police Department, who spotted the car yesterday, said a bartender at the tavern told him the car had been parked there since Wednesday.

Inspector Marco Melovich of the Marin County Sheriff's Office said the dashboard and other interior parts of the car were dusted for fingerprints yesterday before it was driven back down to Marin County.

"We got a few partial prints off the steering wheel and the dashboard," said Melovish, "but it appeared that someone had attempted to wipe it clean."

He said the exterior of the car would be dusted for fingerprints today.

Florida Teachers End Strike; Others Likely

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI)— A one-word telegram received by State School Supt. Floyd Christian Friday summed up Florida's dying teacher strike. The message said simply:

"Peace."

The three-week teacher strike all but ended yesterday when the Florida Education Association (FEA) urged its members to return to the classrooms Monday. All that remains is ratification by local teacher organizations at area meetings tomorrow afternoon.

In the end, there were no exultant victory cries. The finish to the strike was apparently written when the cabinet promised additional funds for schools this year, a state board of education "statement of principles" was issued expressing strong support for quality education, and finally, a new $254 million education spending plan became law.

Teacher unrest continued across the country today, with the most serious problems in

House Committee Drops Draft Probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Despite pleas from more than 70 Congressmen, a key House committee chairman has ruled out Congressional revision of the draft system this year.

L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, said yesterday his panel would not reopen the draft issue because President Johnson already has authority to deal with what draft critics believe are inequities in the system.

Downpour, Mudslides Hit Los Angeles; More Due

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — An unexpected storm drenched Southern California with up to 5½ inches of rain yesterday, causing four deaths, closing highways, flooding homes and trapping cars in mud.

The U.S. Weather Bureau said another storm was due to hit today. (See picture, page 2.)

Three persons died in traffic accidents attributed to the rain. A six-year-old Chula Vista boy, Gregory M. Falls, was swept into a storm drain as he played in his back yard and was carried a quarter of a mile underground before his body could be recovered.

Yesterday the bureau reported more than 3.03 inches of rain in Los Angeles. The heaviest total was reported in Topanga Canyon, where 5.47 inches fell by yesterday morning.

Two mudslides closed the Riverside Freeway in Santa Ana Canyon, trapping 15 cars on the road between the two slides, according to a county Sheriff's Department spokesman. He said a car and a vehicle-carrying truck were trapped in the mud, but no one was hurt.

The road was not cleared until about 6 p.m. yesterday.

Police, Deputies Cool Off Tense Teen-Agers' Plan For A Rumble

Police confined a proposed rumble, involving about 80 white and Negro youngsters, to a 90 minutes of name calling, sporadic rock throwing and a hair pulling fight between two girls yesterday afternoon at a Mill Valley drive-in restaurant.

The incident was at C's Drive In, 510 Miller Avenue, a couple of blocks from Tamalpais High School, where most of the youths attend. school.

Henry A. Marshall, dean of boys at Tamalpais High, said the rumble was arranged to settle a fight between a number of Negro and white students at the school a month ago. Marshall said white students told him they were "tired of having the Negro students get the best of them."

He said he tried unsuccessfully to cool the tempers of the white students yesterday.

Sgt. George J. Reuss said that when he and four other Marin sheriff's officers arrived at the drive-in at 2:45 p.m. yesterday they found about 40 Negro youngsters lined up on one side of the parking area and an equal number of white youngsters on the other side. Mill Valley police

Sign Rules On Docket For Novato

Novato's controversial sign ordinance comes up again before the city council at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Community House.

The ordinance was last before the council on July 11 last year, when the council sent it back to city staff and the planning commission for changes on in-window signs, two-faced signs and other minor changes. These were made and the sign ordinance was adopted by the commission Feb. 26.

The Novato Chamber of Commerce and Downtown Merchants Association have expressed opposition to some of the regulations of the ordinance. They are expected to raise these objections Tuesday.

The council will also go over some changes in city personnel benefits. The matter was postponed at the Feb. 27 meeting. The changes concern vacations, leave of absence, sick leave and a uniform allowance for police.

The council also will discuss lighting at the Highway 101 and Hill Road intersection, landscaping on the Diablo-De Long project and at the Novato Community House, and a report from the traffic safety committee.

The council has scheduled a closed meeting to discuss appointments to a city beautification committee.

Tiburon Council Due To Fill Vacancies

The Tiburon City Council is expected at 8 p.m. Monday to fill one vacancy each on the planning commission and the parks and recreation commission.

Also to be considered by the council are improvement of Diviso Street, an extension to Porto Marino Drive and creation of a second access to old Tiburon in the vicinity of Vistazo West Street.

Arkansas Prison Body Scandal Called Hoax

STAR CITY, Ark. (UPI)—A grand jury investigating alleged brutality and unreported deaths in the Arkansas prison system said Friday the exhuming of three skeletons was a "publicity stunt" hatched by the superintendent of prisons. No indictment was voted, however.

The jury recommended that beatings with a leather strap be reinstituted as a means of convict punishment and that the electric chair be reinstalled as the instrument of death for prisoners facing execution.

The Lincoln County Grand Jury said the skeletons unearthed Jan. 29 in a Cummins Prison Farm pasture, two of which were without heads, had actually been buried in an old prison cemetery.

The skeletons were dug up "for the benefit of news media . . . for camera and crew operators" at the instigation of prison Superintendent Thomas O. Murton, the grand jury said.

Murton was fired Thursday by the state Penitentiary Commission and replaced by Victor Urban, a close friend whom Murton brought into the Arkansas prison system.

"It is the unanimous decision of this grand jury that this whole episode was designed as a publicity stunt for the personal benefit of Mr. Thomas O. Murton abetted and aided by Dr. Edwin Barron, former prison physician, with the consent of Mr. O. B. Scott, Gov. Rockefeller's prison affairs aide, at the expense of the state of Arkansas."

Murton had banished the strap as a means of punishment at Cummins and Arkansas' second prison farm, Tucker, and had the electric chair at Tucker disassembled.

Bus Victim Identities Still Sought

BAKER (UPI) — A team of coroner's investigators and FBI technicians today sought the identities of 19 persons who died in a flaming Greyhound bus after it collided with a wrong way car on a freeway.

A 20th victim already was known. He was Michael Barry, 39, a restaurant cook with drinking problems who was driving a 1964 Chevrolet down the wrong side of Interstate Highway 15 at high speed just before the collision Thursday.

Many of the 19 victims aboard the bus were burned beyond any possibility of facial recognition, some so badly they couldn't even be fingerprinted.

The San Bernardino County Coroner's office set up an identification center at a funeral home in nearby Barstow. Some victims may be known today, but the job is expected to take at least a week.

Eleven surviving passengers were in good condition, and half of them had checked out of the hospitals in the area where they were treated.

Lt. Jim Perkins of the California Highway Patrol said Barry may have been bent on suicide. "The driver missed several smaller vehicles before he struck the bus," Perkins commented.

Dan Dabney, manager of a restaurant where Barry worked as a cook in this small desert town, denied he had fired Barry a short time before the accident. He said Barry left voluntarily, and had been drinking heavily for about a week.

Guilty Plea In Pistol Waving

George Richard Arndt, 29, of San Anselmo, pleaded guilty in Marin Municipal Court to a charge he exhibited a firearm in a threatening manner Nov. 6.

Arndt held a .38 caliber pistol on Sgt. Robert White of the San Anselmo Police Department for 15 minutes Nov. 6, before the officer talked him into laying down the gun.

The misdemeanor charge was substituted by the district attorney's office for the original charge filed against Arndt — felony assault with a deadly weapon.

Judge Hadden W. Roth scheduled sentencing of Arndt for April 5.

Courthouse Preservation Effort Planned

Members of the Marin County Historical Society yesterday asked the board of supervisors to request that the San Rafael Courthouse be designated as a state historical landmark.

Florence Donnelly, a society member, will write material to be inscribed on a plaque on the building, if such designation is made.

Although controversy continues among various factions in the county as to whether the county courthouse should be sold, torn down or kept in its present state, members of the society said they wished to place a plaque regardless of what happens to the property.

Dr. L. L. Stanley, who is writing an up-to-date history of Marin County, told members that he needs more manuscripts about families who have made notable contributions to Marin.

Miss Donnelly was named by the society as a candidate for an award to be given by the conference of California Historical Societies for voluntary service to the historical community.

Driver Gets Jail

Bloyd Lester Hanson, 48, of 5394 Redwood Highway, Novato, was sentenced to five days in jail, fined $289 and placed on two years of probation in Marin Municipal Court yesterday for drunken driving Dec. 30 in Ignacio, when the California Highway Patrol arrested him. He had a prior conviction for the same offense.

Campus Riots Over Polish Censorship

WARSAW (UPI)—Thousands of Polish students chanting "freedom!" and "democracy!" —and singing the Communist Internationale—clashed with police for the second consecutive day today. Police dispersed them with riot sticks and tear gas.

CENSORSHIP HIT

Demonstrations first broke out last night in protest of government censorship of a play that included some loudly-applauded anti-Russian lines. The demonstrations grew into clashes with police who invaded a Polish university for the first time in memory.

Today the students poured out of Polytechnical University following a protest meeting and made a bonfire of newspapers carrying stories of yesterday's events. The newspapers said the demonstrators were provoked by small groups of unbridled and mostly well-to-do students with political ambitions.

While one demonstration continued inside the university other students marched six abreast waving the red and white Polish flag. They turned a corner and found blue-helmeted riot police waiting for them.

At first only about 1,000 students were involved but their ranks were swelled by other students. They assaulted the riot police with bricks and stones and were met with clouds of tear gas. Police charged with batons and broke up the student formations.

'GESTAPO' YELLS

The students reformed their lines and police charged again. Women onlookers screamed "Gestapo" and "bandits" at police when one student was beaten and hauled away.

The protest was over the arrest and expulsion of students connected with the play, "Dziady," (The Forefathers) at Warsaw's Naradowy Theater. It was closed by the Polish Communist government Jan. 30.

The government objected when some audiences loudly applauded the most outspokenly anti-Soviet lines in the classic Polish drama about the Czarist era.

Retirement Home Fire Kills Five

MERIDEN, Conn. (UPI)—Fire swept through a plush four-story apartment building early today killing at least five persons and injuring 19 others, including three firemen.

Firemen responding to the first alarm found residents of the building called Heritage House, an exclusive apartment complex primarily for the elderly, trying frantically to lower knotted bedsheets from their apartment windows in an attempt to escape the flames and smoke.

Russell Quinlan, chairman of the Board of Public Safety, said the bodies were discovered at about 6:30 a.m. after the fire had been brought under control and rescue teams were able to enter the building.

The dead were tentatively identified as Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Howard, both 56, of Methuen, Mass., Peter Howard, 24, his wife, Ruth, 24, and Mrs. Florence Bagenski, 52.

Police said Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Howard were visiting their son, Peter, who was a resident of the apartment. Four other persons were reported missing, but authorities said they may have been out of town at the time of the fire.

The apartment house and an adjacent building consist mainly of luxury apartments for the elderly. Fire officials estimated that some 50 persons lived in the building.

CAPT. DALE NOYD

Captain Convicted

CANNON AFB, N.M. (UPI)—An Air Force captain, who refused on religious grounds to fly a training mission with a Vietnam-bound student pilot was found guilty yesterday of disobeying a lawful order of a superior officer.

Capt. Dale Noyd, 34, faces possible penalties ranging from a small fine to five years at hard labor as a result of the conviction which was reached by the nine-man court martial board in less than 90 minutes.

The board was to meet today in a presentencing session to discuss possible extenuating and mitigating circumstances arising from Noyd's "deep religious conviction" that the war in Vietnam was immoral.

Tanker In Trouble

NASSAU, Bahamas (UPI) — A sluggish mass of crude oil bubbled from the torn holds of a Greek tanker off Eleuthra Island today and fouled three miles of once-beautiful beaches.

The captain and radio operator of the 550-foot Colocotronis remained aboard in hopes the vessel could be saved, but 29 other crewmen abandoned ship after it struck a reef yesterday. One man was reported missing after a rescue vessel capsized but the others reached shore safely.

The Colocotronis was the second tanker to go aground in a beach area in the past week. The Ocean Eagle, a Liberian-registered ship, split apart near the mouth of San Juan, P.R., harbor Sunday and a 15-mile oil slick stretched along Puerto Rico's tourist beaches today.

Art Treasure Taken

RED BLUFF (UPI) — A man posing as a Jesuit priest from New York is suspected of having stolen a 16th Century crucifix from a Trappist monastery while the monks attended early morning Mass.

The 2½-foot crucifix, valued at $20,000 and attributed to the Spanish painter El Greco, was removed from the Abbey of Our Lady of Clairvaux yesterday by a man who reportedly drove off in a vintage lavender Rolls Royce.

Tehama County Sheriff's investigators identified the suspected thief as Bernard West, 42, who stayed at the monastery for five days last month.

West is also wanted by police in El Cerrito on charges of forging a check for $2,000 drawn on the personal account of a Catholic priest.

Kerner Calm Over Judgeship

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — "It's a long way between nomination and confirmation." That was retiring Gov. Otto Kerner's restrained reaction to yesterday's White House announcement that President Johnson had nominated him for a federal judgeship in Chicago.

Kerner

"This just means it went to the Hill and it will be there for at least two weeks," Kerner said when he was informed of the anticipated news. "Of course, I will have to review the appointment after that."

Kerner, 59, who has announced he will step down this year at the end of his second term, was a a four-state Midwest conference of Democratic leaders when he was told of the announcement.

Peking Blasts 'Nuclear Umbrella'

TOKYO (AP) — Red China today denounced the three-nation proposal at Geneva to protect nonnuclear nations under a "nuclear umbrella" as a "new grave step taken by the United States and the Soviet Union" in a conspiracy against Communist China.

Peking's official New China News Agency, in a broadcast monitored in Tokyo, said the offer made by the United States, the Soviet Union and Britain shows that "the Soviet revisionist renegade clique has openly formed with U.S. imperialism a nuclear military alliance against China and against all revolutionary peoples of the world."

Birthday Flight A Tragedy

CHICAGO (UPI) — A private plane carrying six persons, including the former chancellor of the University of Pittsburgh, crashed last night in thick fog over Lake Michigan.

Aboard the tragic "birthday party flight" of the blue and white De Haviland Dove were the owner, Dr. Edward H. Litchfield, 53, Coudersport, Pa., board chairman of Smith Coroner Marchant, Inc. and former chancellor at the University of Pittsburgh; his wife, Mary; his mother, Ethel, 80; the Litchfield's children, Ted, 10, and DeForest, 5, and the pilot, Jim Looker, Wellsville, N.Y. The Coast Guard cutter Woodbine recovered Litchfield's body about five miles northeast of Meigs Field.

Gas Chamber Set

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — William Dale Archerd, convicted of turning the diabetic's rescue drug insulin into a murder weapon, was sentenced to death yesterday by a judge who called him "more evil than any I have ever seen before."

Archerd, who was found guilty of killing two of his wives and a nephew with insulin injections, took Superior Court Judge Adolph Alexander's word calmly.

The suave, 55-year-old defendent, whose expertise in insulin resulted from many years employment as a mental hospital technician, was suspected of killing seven persons. Among them were three of his seven wives.

Copper Talks Drag

WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiations prompted by President Johnson in the 239-day copper strike are continuing after the unions reportedly spurned one company's three-year contract offer to hike wages by more than $1 per hour.

Union officials, meanwhile, announced yesterday they are calling a meeting of some 200 officials of all 26 striking unions next Monday "to review the situation resulting from current talks initiated by President Johnson."

The White House said Johnson was expected to remain in his office while the negotiations continue through the weekend in the Executive Office Building next

Airline Extras Cost

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Those free drinks and movies are going to start costing airline passengers money.

The Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) yesterday ordered U.S. airlines to put a price tag on it drinks and movies by April 6 t make sure that only passenger who want them have to pay fo them.

The board said it felt the cos of these "extras" should be pai by passengers who use them not shared by those who don't.

and a California Highway patrolman also arrived.

Reuss said there was some name calling back and forth between the two groups and it grew into a fight between a white girl and a Negro girl.

After that, said Reuss, the Negro students got in their cars to leave. But a Negro girl threw a can of soda pop out of a car window and one of the white students threw back the can. It struck the top of the car. The Negroes stopped their cars, jumped out and came back to the parking lot.

"They shouted some more words at each other, none of which could be printed, and there was some rock throwing and a few scuffles," said Reuss. "At that point we moved in and broke them up into two groups."

Reuss said after the second outbreak evaporated, the Negro youngsters loaded up in their cars again and left. The white group left shortly afterward.

The drive-in closed during the confrontation, which lasted until 4:30 p.m. Reuss said there was a fight between a white and a Negro boy at the restaurant last night, but no large numbers of students were involved.

Waldo Grade Widening Bid Is $261,342

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — E. A. Forde Co. of Greenbrae was the lowest of five bidders on a contract to widen two miles of the Waldo Grade from a point 1.4 miles north of Spencer Avenue to the Golden Gate Bridge, the state Department of Public Works said yesterday.

The company bid $261,342. The contract is to be granted within three weeks. Work is to be completed within 90 days.

The project will provide a fourth southbound lane through the downhill area, and includes widening of the Sausalito Road undercrossing. The southbound Waldo Tunnel is to have a fourth lane by re-painting the present lanes.

The state had estimated cost of the work at $255,133. The estimate included a median barrier that was not included in a previous estimate of $223,000 when original bids for the project were called in August. The only bid received then, $283,355 by Ghilotti Bros. of San Rafael, was rejected.

The project also includes modern lighting and two changeable radio-controlled message signs. The Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District is to pay the cost of the signs, which will indicate the number of open lanes on the bridge.

Garrison Calls CIA's Ex-Chief

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Allen Dulles, former director of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), was ordered yesterday to appear in New Orleans Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison's investigation of the Kennedy assassination.

Garrison, who has charged Clay L. Shaw with conspiring to assassinate Kennedy, subpoenaed Dulles, saying he could tell the court if Lee Harvey Oswald was a CIA agent.

Dist. Judge Matthew Branniff signed the order, which would grant Dulles immunity from prosecution, and instructed it to be sent to his home in Washington.

State Park Fee To Be 75 Cents Starting May 1

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Day-use admission fees for California park and recreation areas will drop from $1 to 75 cents per car on May 1.

The reduction was approved yesterday by the Parks and Recreation Commission.

In other action, it adopted a resolution supporting establishment of a National Redwood Park on California's north coast.

But the measure urged that any state lands incorporated into the park must be exchanged for federal lands suitable for recreation.

Vietnam Reds Have High Speed Roads

DAK TO, Vietnam (UPI)—The Communists are building a network of high-speed roads they use for hauling heavy supplies from Cambodia into South Vietnam, it was learned today.

The roads are jokingly called "The Parker Turnpike" for Air Force Maj. William R. Parker, 39, of Scottsdale, Ariz., discovered the first one Feb. 10.

Teacher Courses

Four courses in science and mathematics for junior and senior high school teachers will be given from June 24 to Aug. 2 at Dominican College of San Rafael under the sponsorship of the National Science Foundation. The foundation will provide tuition and cover some other expenses for qualified students.

Crash Hurts Driver

Betty Moe Johnson, 31, of 118 Hawthorne Avenue, Apt. C, Kentfield, was treated at Marin General Hospital last night for a cut cheek and broken nose after she said she had to swerve her auto off Camino Alto in Mill Valley to avoid an oncoming car. Mill Valley police said the accident occurred at 9:05 p.m.

Gets Hospital Tests

Mrs. William Gnoss, wife of Supervison William Gnoss, was reported by the hospital to be in good condition today at Novato General Hospital where she is undergoing a series of tests. She was expected to return home in a day or two, according to Supervisor Gnoss.

bardment since Feb. 25 when 250 fell.

The tear gas canisters, stored in the base supply area, were to have been used against North Vietnamese regulars tunneling under the barbed wire surrounding the fort. Instead, the gas reached Marines holed up in bunkers of sandbags and concrete, forcing the Leathernecks to don their gas masks.

Court Upholds Draft Secrecy

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals has forbidden, temporarily at least, the disclosure of the addresses, ages and military affiliations of local draft board members.

The appellate court yesterday held up indefinitely enforcement of a U.S. District Court ruling until the Selective Service System could present arguments against revealing such information.

Yesterday, U. S. Atty. Merna Marshall argued that release of the information would hamper draft operations. Mrs. Marshall said disclosure of the addresses might lead to harassment of draft board members by opponents of the Vietnam war or the Selective Service System.

McCarthy Aide

G. W. (Joe) Holsinger of Burlingame, a distributor of public seating and school furniture, was named yesterday as the Northern California chairman of the McCarthy for President Campaign. In 1964, he was San Mateo County chairman of Pierre Salinger's U. S. Senate campaign.

Driver's Nose Cut

Roy Joseph Cronin, 44, of 128-B Laurel Place, San Rafael was treated at Marin General Hospital early today for a cut nose he received when his car hit a traffic light pole in a divider strip on Third Street near G Street in San Rafael, police said. The accident occurred at 2:33 a.m.

Sickened By Pills

Mrs. Karen Arnold of 989 Drake Avenue, Marin City, was treated at Marin General Hospital Thursday morning for an overdose of tranquilizer tablets, sheriff's deputies reported today.

Pot 'Martyr' Returns From Vacaville Test

Melkon Melkonian, a Mill Valley mechanic whose arrest on a marijuana charge started a drive to repeal laws against pot, will not be sentenced for at least 60 days.

Melkonian was convicted in San Francisco of selling marijuana. Originally scheduled for sentencing two months ago, he was instead sent to the Vacaville State Medical Facility for examination.

He was returned yesterday, but told Superior Court Judge Joseph Karesh he wanted a 60-day delay in sentencing to have an operation on his back. Karesh approved, setting bail of $2,500.

Karesh said the bail was low but was confident Melkonian would not run away because "he wants to be a martyr."

James A. Kane, associate superintendent at Vacaville, has recommended Melkonian be sent to jail, not given probation. Vacaville Psychologist Raymond P. McDonald suggested probation.

Black Point Club Drops Beef Raffle

The Black Point Improvement Club last night decided not to take part this year in the beef raffle sale during Novato's Western Weekend celebration. The program has become too much work for the return involved, president Mrs. Naomi Hobbs said.

The club also defeated a motion to support plans by developer John E. Kenny of Oakland for a 62-acre mobile home park when the proposal goes before the Marin County Planning Commission.

Grand Theft Denied

Anthony James Vossbrink, 20, of San Francisco, pleaded innocent in Marin Muncipal Court yesterday to a grand theft charge that he stole a $1,500 fur coat at Gregory's Restaurant in Corte Madera Feb. 17. Preliminary hearing on the charge was scheduled for April 19.

Tax Firm Burgled

A burglar entered through a front window early yesterday to steal $8.50 in coins from the office of tax consultants H. & R. Block Co. at 2056 Fourth Street, San Rafael police reported today.

RIGHTS

moved the package to approval and within one vote of passage was so strong in the final stages that the last two attempts to cripple the open housing provision were crushed.

On a 64-24 vote, the Senate defeated an amendment by Sen. Sam J. Ervin, Jr., D-N.C., which would have eliminated from the bill any housing section.

Then, facing what the coalition considered a serious threat, it wiped out by 73-13 an amendment by Sen. Jack Miller, R-Iowa, which would have applied coverage against discrimination almost solely to servicemen, veterans, and their relatives.

The bill the Senate will send to the House would cover on enactment all federally assisted housing except single-family, owner-occupied homes; estate developments and multiunit housing would be covered as of Dec. 31, 1968; and all homes except those single-dwelling units privately owned and not sold through a broker would be covered as of Jan. 1, 1970.

In the final voting before approval of the bill, the Senate tacked on a "bill for rights" for American Indians. It passed the Senate unanimously last year but was stalled in the Senate Interior Committee this year.

Body Believed Psychiatrist's

A body tentatively identified as that of Dr. Burleigh Kammerer, a Berkeley psychiatrist, was recovered near Alcatraz Island yesterday by a Coast Guard patrol boat after a Navy submarine crew sighted the body earlier.

Dr. Kammerer, 50, president of the East Bay Psychiatrists Association, has been missing since Feb. 21 when he is believed to have jumped from the Bay Bridge. His car was found on the bridge and witnesses said the driver had stopped, mounted the bridge rail and jumped.

A card of Dr. Kammerer was found in clothing of the body recovered yesterday.

Belli's Partner Charged By Wife

Seymour Louis Ellison of San Rafael, law partner of Melvin M. Belli in San Francisco, was arrested early yesterday when his wife, Diane, signed a complaint of assault and battery after a family argument.

His wife accused Ellison, of 20 Idlewood Place, of throwing a glass of water in her face and knocking her down.

Ellison was released on $440 bail and appeared in Marin Municipal Court yesterday. His case was continued until Friday.

Pittsburgh's six-day public school strike.

Indiana teachers want a special session of the state legislature to deal with their problems, Colorado teachers have endorsed limited sanctions and Mississippi teachers have been urged to delay contract signing.

The center of the Pittsburgh dispute has been a refusal by the board to hold an election to determine an exclusive bargaining agent for the city's 3,100 teachers. The board claimed such a move would be illegal.

The 1,000 members of the Pittsburgh Federation of Teachers went on strike over the issue, but the 1,900 members of the Pittsburgh Teachers Education Association kept schools open with the aid of substitute teachers and volunteers.

Mississippi's 22,000 teachers have been urged to refrain from signing contracts until after the Mississippi Education Association's convention in Jackson next week.

Golf Course Tractor Recovered By Police

San Rafael police yesterday recovered a $3,000 tractor stolen Thursday from a maintenance shed at Peacock Gap Golf Course.

The thief battered open the shed's padlock with a brick, then drove the landscaping tractor onto fire trails in the hills above the golf course, where it was recovered.

YMCA Delegates

Five delegates from Marin County Young Men's Christian Association are among those attending the annual meeting of the Pacific Southwest Area Council of the YMCA this weekend in San Francisco. They are Paul Hartman, Arnold Linane, Roger Hooper, M. R. Baruh and Martin Hanzlik.

OBITUARIES

Lawrence T. Corti Dies At 78

Lawrence T. Corti, 78, a lifelong Marin resident and retired owner of a tombstone company, was pronounced dead at Marin General Hospital last night after collapsing at Fairfax Lutheran Church.

Asst. Coroner Eugene R. Fortaine said death was due to natural causes.

Corti had driven a companion to the church for a meeting there.

Corti was born in San Rafael and reared there, attending local schools. His father was superintendent of Mount Tamalpais Cemetery around 1900.

Corti later owned and operated a tombstone company near the cemetery. After his retirement he was a companion and chauffeur for the late John McNear of San Rafael.

He lived at 40 Glenwood Avenue, Ross, for about 10 years.

He is survived by his wife, Marguerite.

Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael, is in charge of arrangements.

ATTILIO GIORGI

Attilio Giorgi, 81, a retired butcher, died at his home at 53 Belmont Avenue, Fairfax, yesterday after a short illness.

Giorgi, a native of Italy, came to San Francisco in 1911. He owned a meat market in North Beach for many years.

He moved to Fairfax about 20 years ago.

He was a member of Golden Gate Speranza Lodge, Free and Accepted Masons; California Bodies Scottish Rite Masons, Islam Temple of the Shrine and Marin Shrine Club.

He is survived by his wife Cesira; three daughters, Mrs. Lola Puccinelli of San Anselmo, Mrs. Yelva Giannini of Larkspur and Mrs. Vienna Giorgi of Corte Madera; two brothers, Enrico Giorgi of Alameda and Nello Giorgi of Oakland; a sister, Mrs. Lina Unti of Chicago; four grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Funeral will be at 1 p.m. Monday at the Chapel of the Hills, San Anselmo, under the auspices of the Golden Gate Speranza Lodge. Inurnment will be private.

other Senate-passed bills to add to the national park system the proposed North Cascades National Park in Washington State, which he called "the American Alps, an unsurpassed spectacle of mountain beauty," and the Apostle Islands National Lakeshore "along Wisconsin's most scenic water areas."

The President also asked Congress to complete action on bills introduced last year to add four areas to the wilderness system established in 1964: San Gabriel and San Rafael national forests in Southern California, Mount Jefferson in Oregon and Washakie in Wyoming.

Within minutes after receipt of the message, the Senate completed action on a bill by Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, R-Calif., to establish the 143,000-acre San Rafael Wilderness in California's Los Padres National Forest as a wilderness area. The measure now goes to the White House.

Chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., of the Senate Interior Committee applauded the President's message and pointed out that bills pertaining to the Central Arizona Project, Redwoods and North Cascades national parks, Apostle Islands Lakeshore, scenic rivers system, and San Gabriel Wilderness already have been passed by the Senate and are awaiting House action.

Chairman Wayne N. Aspinall, D-Colo., of the House Interior Committee declined comment.

House Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., said the programs recommended by President Johnson would benefit Americans for generations to come.

"Today he has asked us to enlist as soldiers in the battle for the new conservation," McCormack said. "No reasonable American can fail to come to his aid."

Robbers Get $20 From Ark Patron

Two youths, one showing either an iron pipe or a shotgun barrel, took $20 from him early today at The Ark night club, north of Sausalito, Stephen Hahn, 20, of San Francisco, reported to police.

Hahn told Marin Sheriff's Deputy Joseph Fitzgerald he was driving out of the Ark's parking lot about 3 a.m. when the pair, Negroes in their late teens, approached him.

The told him they wanted his money. Hahn said he took $20 out of his wallet and gave it to them. An object was sticking out from beneath the arm of one of the youths, said Hahn, and he couldn't tell whether it was a shotgun or a piece of pipe.

EUGENE FROCHEN

Funeral for Eugene Owen Frochen of Willits, who was born and reared in Tiburon, was held yesterday in Ukiah. Frochen, 57, died in a San Francisco hospital Wednesday after a short illness.

Frochen had been with the Merchant Marine for many years before going to work for the Northwestern Pacific Railroad in Willits a number of years ago.

He is survived by his wife Irene; a son, John Frochen, who is with the Navy in Vietnam; his mother, Mrs. Lacy Frochen of Mill Valley; two brothers, Melvin Frochen of Corte Madera and Marius Frochen of Westwood, Lassen County, and a sister, Florence Ledford of Stockton.

FRANK C. NIXON

Funeral for Frank C. Nixon, who died in a local hospital Wednesday after a long illness, will be held at 1 p.m. Monday at Keaton's Chapel of Marin, Novato. Burial will be private.

A native of California, Nixon lived in Tiburon for about 20 years. His home was at 1860 Central West. He formerly worked for Hughes Aircraft Co.

He is survived by two brothers, William H. Nixon of Sacramento and Robert L. Nixon of San Leandro, and a sister, Mrs. Isabelle Wheeler of Vallejo.

VERNIA PRATT

Mrs. Vernia Pratt, 58, of 1524 Fourth Street, San Rafael, died in a local hospital yesterday after a short illness.

A native of Nebraska, Mrs. Pratt lived in California 15 years. She and her husband, Clarence, who died four years ago, earlier resided in Riverside, where he was an equipment operator for Riverside County.

After his death she moved to San Rafael and worked as clerk for Simmons Co. in San Leandro. Mrs. Pratt belonged to the San Anselmo Adventist Church.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Hallie Kay of San Rafael; a brother, Robert Smith of Eugne, Ore., and a grandson.

Funeral will be held at 1 p.m. Monday at Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael. Burial will be in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery.

WILLIAM THRAPP

Funeral for William H. Thrapp, 69, of Vineburg, Sonoma County, a retired railroad agent who was born in San Rafael, will be Monday at 9:30 a.m. at St. Francis Solano Church in Sonoma. Burial will be in Santa Clara Catholic Cemetery.

Thrapp died in a San Francisco hospital Thursday after a long illness. He worked for the Northwestern Pacific Railroad at Shellville until his retirement.

He is survived by his wife, Florence; a daughter, Patricia Nash of Santa Clara; a son, William J. Thrapp of Arvada, Colo.; three sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Watson of San Anselmo, Mrs. Mary Hoover of San Rafael and Mrs. Catherine Barry of Novato, and two brothers, James Thrapp of San Rafael and Lawrence Thrapp of Fairfax, and five grandchildren.

So Much Fun, Will Not Listen When I Say, Keep Off The Grass

DEAR HELEN:

When I first met Bob he was everything I ever dreamed of: good looking, good personality, a real charmer.

Then I started noticing things. For example, he was depending a great deal on my help in his classes. He even asked me to cheat for him.

One night he acted strange when he picked me up for a party. Later I found myself the only person there not on dope. He promised to give it up, but he still acts funny sometimes.

Last week he asked me to marry him, but when I reminded him, he denied it. It seems he had been loaded again. I keep hoping. I can't give him up. Don't tell me to.

I love Bob very much, but I don't understand him. He's so much fun; why won't he listen when I say, "Keep off the grass!" —DECEIVED

DEAR D:

For about the same reason you won't listen when I say, "Keep away from Bob!" You both know you're headed for big trouble yet you're too weak to head it off. So long as he stays stoned and you stay blind, you have my pity. You're going to need it! —H.

DEAR HELEN:

My parents think I'm a tramp just because I was lying on my bed talking to my brother and his boyfriend who were watching television in my room. The boy happened to be sitting on the bed, too, when my father walked in. He hit the ceiling!

Helen, why do older people have symbols for sex like bedroom, bed, parking. They're often used as just places to sit and visit. —SALLY

DEAR SALLY:

Parents are the products of their generation: In their youth, nice girls didn't allow boys into their bedroom, and while nice girls parked, the word wasn't voiced around.

With bedrooms used as extra TV, stereo and talk spots these days, old rules hardly apply, but the old folks still shudder. Reassure them by keeping the door open, the lights on, the chatter loud and by never making it just a twosome in that (gasp) room.—H.

DEAR HELEN:

I am going with a boy who used to be a troublemaker and has a police record, but he's changed. But now no one will believe me as we were at a party the other night when some guys started making trouble.

Guess who the police grabbed for transporting liquor and disturbing the peace, my boyfriend. He wasn't even driving because he can't get his license back yet.

His name appeared under Today in Court in the paper, and my parents won't let me date him. They won't listen to the true facts, even though he got off.

All my friends swear he is changed. How can I make my folks see him as he is? —RESTRICTED

DEAR RESTRICTED:

Perhaps they already do.

If a boy were really changed would he take his girl to a drinking party? —H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble, or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. Address Helen Bottel in care of The Independent-Journal.

The shirtwaist dress is back for both day and evening. To go with it, jewelers are bringing out pendants Victorian in style, elaborately scrolled, and ring watches in high dome shapes set with a sprinkling of rhinestones.

Paper Towels

You'll need several thicknesses of paper toweling, instead of just one thickness, when you are using the toweling for draining food that has been deep-fat fried. If brown paper is on hand, it may be used instead of the toweling for the draining.

Planning The Honeymoon Is The First Joint Venture

How luxurious and far-flung should a wedding trip be?

There aren't any general answers, for the trip depends on available money, time, energy and travel interests.

If only a long weekend is available, it might be best to go to a nearby motel or country inn, especially after all the socializing before the wedding.

Fast-paced tours or long automobile trips are usually a mistake. It's foolish to overdo sight-seeing.

A leisurely cruise on luxury ship or freighter often means a happy honeymoon, with a chance to be alone together or to enter into ship activities at will.

Some couples prefer to rent a cottage — or accept the gift of one — for the honeymoon, and enjoy casual living and peaceful privacy.

If the budget is limited, check into the midweek airline specials, by which you can go family plan at considerable saving.

If you consider a tour, which is usually cheaper, be sure that the trip can be planned for just the two of you, and not with a group.

No matter what your destination, be sure to talk over the plans jointly. This is no time for rude surprises. Nor is it time for a first experience by air or sea.

Pity the poor bride who discovers she's seasick or air sick. Also pity the young couple who for the first time discover how different their interests are. He wants to take his golf clubs when she doesn't golf. She wants to get a tan on a tropical beach when he sunburns and has to sit in a sheltered spot.

Make the honeymoon a happy time, not the time for that first argument.

THE SUBURBAN SCENE

Sunny Hills Juniors Show— Is Again A Complete Sellout

By MOLLY MARIN

The Sunny Hils Junior Auxiliary has done it again — a complete sellout crowd is expected Wednesday for its annual luncheon and style show at Peacock Gap Country Club.

Among those reserving large tables is Mrs. Charles Allen, whose daughter, Molly, will model children's fashions. Her guests will include Mrs. John O'Connell, her mother, and Mesdames John McFarland, Edgar Lindner, Leon Smith, Russell Keil, William Hynes, Wallace Scott, William Waste, Samuel Archibald, H. Wallace Hickman, Glenn Gilman, John Allen, Richard Wilmington, Glenn Gasaway, William Cassidy, LeRoy French and Robert Holst. Also included in the group will be Mrs. Alan Shattuck and her mother, Mrs. Spencer Smiley. Mrs. Smiley wlil have an opportunity to see her granddaughter, Jane Shattuck, model.

Mrs. Stanley Borges is hostessing a mother-daughter table and her guest will include her mother, Mr. Carlo Caletti, and Mesdames Paul Gerald Miller, Paul Miller, Harry Miller, M. Staley, Walter Rolley and Michael Heyes.

Coming to Marin from the East Bay as guests of Mrs. John Munson will be Mesdame E. A. Flynn Jr., and Paul McKnight. They will be joined by Mesdames Robert F. Sullivan, Philip A. Crane Jr., Gregory Sheehan, D. H. Gabrielsen, James Peggs, James M. Waste and Jack Keeler. The group will gather at the home of Mrs. Peggs in Kentfield for pre-luncheon cocktails.

Mrs. Dewitt MacDonald of Greenbrae has invited Mrs. Thomas Guerin, Mrs. Richard Schneider and Mrs. Robert McCullough to sit at her table. Also seated at the same table will be Mesdames Edward Burke, Boyd Quinn, Edward Shelton, Donald Baird and Robert Silberberg.

EVEN ON A trip to Fiji, New Zealand, Australia and Tahiti Mrs. Alan Kappelman was more impressed with aspects of conservation than anything else she saw. Mrs. Kappelman, who formerly headed the Mill Valley Outdoor Art Club's conservation section, and her husband left Mill Valley on Jan. 25 and returned this week.

"Everywhere we went," she said, "as far as 90 feet up both sides of all rivers and all beaches is public land reserved for parks. People can own land privately only up to where the beaches start," she said. "The policy was started a long time ago so that no private owner had to be bought out at great expense."

The Kappelmans flew first to Fiji for three days then spent two weeks in New Zealand traveling through the north and south islands mainly by motor coach, then flying back to Christ Church.

A memorable experience on the north island was visiting the glow worm cave at Waitomo. "When they turned out the lights," Mrs. Kappelman said, "we could see so many millions of glow worms that it looked like the milky way.

"To our surprise when we were going in the cave we met the Gordon Strawbridges of Belvedere coming out!"

After flying to Sydney, Australia, the Kappelmans took a trip into the back country to one of the famous sheep stations and then went as far north as Cairns in Queensland and made another back country tour to the Atherton table land, cleared bush country having many plantations.

Returning by way of Brisbane, they went next to Canberra and Melbourne and over to Adelaide into the wine country. After returning to Melbourne they visited Hobart in Tasmania, as far south as they got.

They concluded their tour with another stop at Sydney followed by a trip to Tahiti and Papeete.

AN EXHIBITION of the fabric designs of Mariano Fortuny is being presented at the M. H. De Young Museum in San Francisco through April 21. Countess Elsie Lee Gozzi, owner of the Fortuny fabric business since 1949, was in San Francisco last week for the opening of the exhibition.

A reception was held at the De Young Museum Thursday evening by the several chapters of the American Institute of Interior Design, the San Francisco sponsors of the exhibit.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Davies of Squaw Peak, Indian Valley Ranch, Novato, attended the reception. Elizabeth Banning Davies is a member of A I D.

Fortuny, who died in 1949, developed a secret process for printing designs on fabric which resulted from his attempts to reproduce the appearance of ancient Greek cloth. The process and designs he created still bear his name.

Countess Gozzi, the former Elsie MacNeill of North Carolina, convinced Fortuny that his upholstery fabrics would be a success in the United States and she spent many year traveling between Venice and the U.S. where the Fortuny drapers and upholstery fabrics have now become famous.

The cotton fabrics are so delicately subtle in design they resemble velvet or satin. Fortuny originally designed a lightweight, permamently pleated dress worn by fashionable women throughout the world. However, Countess Cozzi, who has the secret for making the fabric for the gowns, now concentrates on upholstery fabrics.

The dresses as well as the fabric, both old and new, are on dislpay at the museum.

Ten 'Must' Bridal Photos

Wedding pictures will be one keepsake the bride can cherish forever after she takes her vows. Good photos can be taken if she does a little scheduling beforehand.

The so-called candid shots usually aren't unplanned. Smart thinking will prevent leaving out those special shots when the photographer is trying to make everyone say "CHEESE" at the right time and place.

IT'S ALSO a good idea to have a friend help the photographer through the masses of guests and guide him in the right picture-taking direction.

The 10 most important candids at a wedding are:

1. Bride in dressing room with attendants.
2. Bride going down aisle on father's arm.
3. Bride coming up aisle on husband's arm.
4. Bride, bridegroom and all attendants.
5. Bride and groom and her family.
6. Bride and groom and his family.
7. Receiving line.
8. Bride and groom cutting cake.
9. Tossing bouquet.
10. Bride and groom leaving under rice shower.

Optional shots include:

1. Bride's mother and bride before ceremony.
2. Scene from back of church during ceremony.
3. Bride and her attendants.
4. Bridegroom and his attendants.
5. Important relatives as they go through the receiving line.
6. Hostesses with important guests signing guest book.
7. Bride dancing with groom.
8. Bride kissing her mother goodbye in the dressing room.
9. Bride saying goodbye to bridegroom's parents.
10. Bride and groom in getaway car.

THE FORMAL photograph of the bride may be taken in a studio or at the bridal salon. Allow plenty of time for this one and follow makeup suggestions to insure a good picture under the bright lights.

Olive Oil

Olive oil goes rancid rather quickly when stored in a warm room; so keep it, covered tightly, in the refrigerator. The cold will harden the oil, but when it is placed at room temperature for brief time it will melt quickly. As soon as the oil has melted, measure the amount you need and replace the rest in the refrigerator.

Women Can Alter Their Clothing To Allow For Rounded Shoulders

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE:

Would you please tell me how to alter the back of my clothes to allow for a rounded hump at the shoulders. I find I am getting a pull-up look at the back and diagonal wrinkles at each side.

MRS. J.E.M.

DEAR MRS. J.E.M.:

This is a rather common alterationand is overlooked by many women who really need it, This is often caused by poor posture or posture due to age.

Slit the pattern about four inches below the neckline at the center back and continue to the seam allowance at the armhole. Spread the center back about one-fourth to one-half inch depending on the amount necessary for you. This will change to nothing at the armhole.

Draw the center back line straight up from the waistline, and you will have additional room at the neckline. You may either fold out this excess at the neckline before cutting, or make a separate dart on your garment. This additional dart will also allow a little extra room for that rounded look you need.

DEAR EUNICE:

So many of the new cottons for spring and summer are marked washable, and yet I have had such bad results washing these clothes. I love to do the nice finishing that you suggest, but when the garment has been washed, the seams pucker, the hem draws up and I just don't have the professional look I had before washing. Any clues?

MRS. M.B.

DEAR MRS. M.B.:

We have experimented often with fabrics that are guaranteed hand or machine washable, from polyesters to cottons. We have come up with the following results. The fabrics themselves seem to wash beautifully for the most part. The trouble seems to be in the lining fabric, zippers and hem tape.

I use and recommend only the finest type of underlying. This is the one used by leading manufacturers of better clothes as well as the designer clothes. I have found that even though the manufacturer claims only one per cent shrinkage, there is considerably more.

I would recommend that before you cut it up, wet the underlining fabric in hot water and hang it up to dry. Usually, very little pressing is necessary.

Also, shrink hem tape, lace, which is often used for the hems. Occasionally, the zipper tape will also shrink. This usually happens when a garment is laundered in extremely hot water.

I think if you will take these few precautions, you will be delighted with the results. Sometimes a few minutes of time can save many hours of time and frustration later.

DEAR EUNICE:

I am adding an organdy collar and cufs to a dress I made last year, so I may have the new look for spring. When I finished the collar, just like I do all my collars, the edges looked thick. You could see where I had graded the seams and notched away the excess fabric from the curves. Should I have interfaced the collar?

MRS. M.V.

DEAR MRS. M.V.:

I'm proud of you. You have noticed the new look for spring and have recognized how simple it is to change your own clothes to look new. This is the basic secret of home sewing, and don't you feel wonderful when you have been successful?

The beauty of organdy is the sheer, delicate look. Therefore, it should not have been interfaced. Just use two layers of the organdy for the collar and cuffs.

You do not grade your seams however, because as you have noticed, you can see through the fabric,. Instead, carefully trim both seams to about one-eighth inch. Trim very carefully so the seam allowance looks even.

When seams are trimmed this close, it eliminates the necessity of notching the excess fabric at curves.

ON THE AGENDA

Acoustics And Architecture Theme For Symphony Auxiliary

"ACCOUSTICS AND Architecture" will be the theme of Wednesday's 10 a.m. meeting of Music or Majors. Members of the Marin Symphony Auxiliary will gather at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Foris, 205 Douglas, Mill Valley. Mr. Foris, architect and musician, will illustrate his talk with his home which is designed for music. He will also play the cello accompanied by Mrs. Robert Schultz.

Auxiliary members will bring friends who wish to become members, as well as guests. Refreshments will be served and a social hour will follow the program. An election of officers for the forthcoming year will be held at the Auxiliary meeting.

ON WEDNESDAY, at noon, the Marin County Pi Beta Phi Alumnae Club will meet at the home of Mrs. G. K. Von Kaesborg, 14 Tredago Road, Tiburon. Election of officers and Founders' Day luncheon will be the business of the day.

WITH PASSOVER coming, the Sisterhood of Congregation Rodef Sholom will sponsor a demonstration of Passover cooking by Mrs. Myron Kaplan, home economist, on Thursday at noon at the temple hall, San Rafael. Afterward a luncheon of Passover foods will be served. The sisterhood members and their guests will then be given recipes to both the demonstration dishes and the luncheon foods.

PARENTS OF CHILDREN attending the San Geronimo Valley Nursery School, San Geronimo, will have a chance to hear Miss Elizabeth Sousa, family and child counselor of Sausalito, speak at Parent Night Thursday at 8 p.m. Miss Sousa, who has a private practice in Sausalito, will speak practice in Sausalito, will speak on "Concerns of Children and Their Parents." Pie and coffee will be served before the program and the speech, open house will be held at the nursery school room.

MILL VALLEY UNIT 284 of the American Legion Auxiliary will hold a rummage sale March 16 and 17 at American Legion Hall in Mill Valley. Hours will be 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday and noon to 4 p.m. Sunday. Mrs. William Cavanagh is chairman.

THE HUMANE Society Women's Auxiliary is celebrating the seventh anniversary of its Thrift Shop in San Anselmo on Wednesday, with an all-day coffee party and sale. Located opposite the Post Office, the shop is directed and staffed by members under the supervision of Mrs. W. Robert Miller, president, and Mrs. Harold Klang, shop chairman.

The Humane Society of Marin was chartered in 1907 and is one of the oldest local service organizations. The auxiliary was founded in 1948 to support the work of the parent organization, which is now interested in the construction of a new, enlarged Animal Shelter, located just off Highway 101 in Novato and to be opened in August.

MARIN EASTER Seal Auxiliary will have its annual fund raising event, "A Day at the Races" at Golden Gate Fields on Thursday. Mrs. Barney Norwitt, chairman, has made arrangements for the luncheon at the Turf Club and for the sale of the tickets.

THE WOMAN'S Society of Christian Service of the San Rafael Methodist Church will hear Mrs. John J. Foley, president of American Baptist Women of Northern California, speak on "New Dimensions for Modern Women" on Thursday. A business meeting will precede the program at 10 a.m. Luncheon at noon will follow the talk.

AL CECILIANI will present a public program of abstract floral designs to the Peacock Gap Garden Club Wednesday at 11 a.m. at Peacock Gap Country Club. Mrs. Leonard F. Fisher is reservations chairman.

A lecturer, floral arranger and artist, Mr. Ceciliani is well known in Stockton and the Bay Area for his abstract arrangements. Last year Mr. Ceciliani recieved best of the show for floral arrangements in the master class competition at the Sacramento Camellia Festival, Modesto Camellia Festival, California Spring Garden Show in Oakland, and the San Francisco County Fair and Flower Show. He has also taken top honors at the Sacramento State Fair.

This is the final lecture on design for the garden club prior to the club standard flower show on March 21, from 3 to 7 p.m. at the clubhouse.

APPLICATIONS ARE available to Marin County persons interested in a $1,500 graduate fellowship being offered for the 10th year by Alpha Xi Delta.

The fellowship is for advanced study in the field of social service. Graduates of accredited colleges or universities with outstanding scholastic records and an interest in pursuing a career in youth work are invited to apply, according to Mrs. Patrick H. McKelvey, an Alpha Xi Delta alumna living in Loma Verde.

Applications may be obtained from Mrs. McKelvey, 496 Alameda de la Loma. The completed form should be sent, prior to March 31, to the national philanthropy chairman of Alpha Xi Delta, Mrs. Joseph A. Erp, 208 Johnson, Seymour, Indiana 47274.

THE FAXFAIRS of the Fairfax Masonic Temple in Larkspur will have its annual spring luncheon and card party on Thursday at noon. Ticket chairman is Mrs. Kelse Thompson of Corte Madera.

EASTER fashions for children will be the feature of the luncheon of Marin County Christian Women's Club to be held Friday at noon at Peacock Gap Country Club in San Rafael. Speaker will be Norman Schuster, youth director of Valley Baptist Church.

Cane Comeback?

Don't be surprised if men one of these days start carrying canes again. Canes give a chance to swagger a bit, and a cane is a great defense, even a warning, against muggers.

London's Top Fashion Model Leader Of Anti-Fur Campaign

By NADEANE WALKER

LONDON (AP) — Celia Hammond is one of London's top fashion models — but "I wouldn't be caught dead in a fur coat," she says.

Is it only coincidence that sealskin and mink prices have been on the skids since she joined the campaign for Beauty Without Cruelty (BWC)?

Celia, 24, willowy, fragile blonde with Madonna-like features was one of the top four models until she took up the cudgets for her cause two years ago. Now she says she has extracted pledges from all London's leading models that they will not show sealskin, and the BWC campaign holds signed pledges from some 10,000 women that they will never again wear fur.

The furriers wryly admit that her campaign influenced a drop in Seal prices from 18 dollars to less than 4 dollars a pelt. Some furriers also have sent out pamphlets saying they have done away with cruel traps.

CATS ARE to love, not wear. That's model Celia Hammond's philosophy. Above she explains it to a couple of her pets at her West Hampstead, London home.

"OF COURSE, there were other market factors," says Mrs. Leslie MacMillan, a spokesman for the fur trade, but Lady Muriel Dowding (founder of BWC and wife of Air Marshal Lord Dowding, of Battle of Britain fame) feels sure that her group is affecting all fur sales.

When Celia expressed her anti-fur views in a published interview. Lady Dowding got in touch and asked for help.

Celia, now a member of the BWC council, has appeared on TV in England and Holland, given innumerable interviews, made an anti-fur film in French and English for Canada and America ("but I don't think they showed it," she says sadly), helped a supporter publicly burn a $1,400 ermine coat and enlisted the sympathies and support of her fellow mannequins.

"IF WOMEN had to catch their own fur animals, of course they wouldn't wear them, but they're willing to shift the responsibility onto somebody else," Celia exclaims passionately. "But I believe if they knew the curely involved, they'd stop it."

Fur trappers are not the only villians Celia and the Beauty Without Cruelty campaign are gunning for. They make and sell their own range of cosmetics, now complete except for lipsticks, and guaranteed to contain no animal products.

"Cosmetic firms maintain vivisection labs for experiments," she says, to find out how strong they can make a shampoo for example without burning your eyes.

THE BWC products contain only fruit, nut, and vegetable matter. So far, BWC has not been able to sell in America, but they are doing well in England, South Africa and Australia.

Has BWC damaged her career? She says it hasn't. She's booked up from nine to five every day.

"But I've lost a lot of my friends," she admits. "First, because BWC takes all my spare time — I haven't had an evening at home in three months — and secondly, because lots of my former friends think I've gone round the bend.

"I'LL NEVER marry unless I fall in love with a man who feels as strongly about animals as I do. I'm not worried about that, either. I'm not looking for a husband, and I'll never give up this fight. I only go on modelling to get money, as I couldn't carry on my work without it."

Painting? Always roll the first strokes with a roller upward, starting in an unpainted area and working toward the area you already have painted. Subsequent strokes should be sideways and criss-cross to assure complete coverage of the area.

New Matte Finish

The eyes have it in white—for spring and summer. New eyeliners are opaque with matte finishes. But between the white line and as close to the lashes as possible, go ahead and apply a darker shade for an effective makeup job.

Arguments Due On Mill Valley Referendum

While TV cameras whirred last Monday night, the Mill Valley City Council approved a referendum on Vietnam for the April 9 municipal election.

As a result city clerk Frederick D. Kerr is accepting written 300-word arguments until Tuesday, for and against the measure.

From among these statements, Kerr will choose one argument in favor and one argument in oppositon to the Vietnam measure. The two statements selected will pre printed and mailed with the sample ballots going out the last week in March to approximately 7,000 Mill Valley voters.

A statement submitted by a single registered voter of Mill Valley has less chance of being used than one from a councilman. An organization, such as the American Legion, must submit its statement signed by at least two top ranking officers.

Up to this time a statement opposing the measure has been brought in by Carl Hepp, ad hoc chairman of the Americanism Committee of American Legion Post 284 and by Martin Jukich, co-chairman.

Favoring petitioning President Johnson and the Congress to formulate a policy of peace in Vietnam through a political solution is the statement of author Stanton Coblentz.

Science Judging At Ross School

Grand award in the Ross School science fair has been presented to Sam Wright, an eighth grader, for his project, "How Does Heat Affect the Resistance of Wire."

Other prizes were: biological sciences division, Nancy Bennett and Paula Weaver, first place; Michele Thomas, second; Judy Kingsley, honorable mention; physical sciences division, Sam Wright, grand award; Jeff Schulz, first place; Alva McMahon, second, and Scott Colburn, honorable mention.

John Ladd and Larry Peck won an honorable mention in the mathematical sciences division.

Junior Theater Readies 'Wicked Witch Of Indor'

The Masque Unit of the Junior Theater of Marin will present an original play "The Wicked Witch of Indor," at San Rafael High School March 23.

There will be performances at 10:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. for season ticket holders and an additional matinee at 12:15 p.m. with ticket sales at the door.

The play, written by Mrs. Gordon S. Dunn and Mrs. I. Wayland Bonbright III, members of the Masque Unit, is a fairy tale.

Leading a cast of 18 are Mrs. Dunn as the witch; Mrs. Gerald Knecht, son of the wizard; Mrs. D. I. Oberholtzer, the princess; Mrs. B. E. Bryans, the wizard, and Mrs. T. E. Theiss, Montezoomis.

Mrs. Dunn, with the assistance of Mrs. Oberholtzer, wrote the music and lyrics for the play which will be directed by Mrs. Bonbright.

Philip Pratt of San Francisco State College will be lighting technician.

San Domenico Singers Slate Spring Event

The San Domenico Singers will give the first of two public spring concerts under the direction of Vincenzo Giannini Monday at 3 p.m. in the activities building on the campus of the San Domenico School in Sleepy Hollow.

This may be the students' last series of performances with Giannini because he has scheduled conducting engagements throughtout Europe and United States for next season. In addition he has been commissioned to compose scores which will require part-time residency in the East. During the past nine years he has served as chorus master of the San Francisco Opera.

The 36 singers will be assisted by artists-in-residence Marian Marsh, soprano; Frances Shorr, violin; Patricia Isham, violin; Lucien Mitchell, viola; Jean Mitchell, cello, and Faith France, piano and harpsichord. They are on the music faculty of the school.

The program will include the first performance in the United States of Giannini's Piano Sonatina performed by Joan Franzini, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leno Franzini of San Rafael and a 1967-68 Marin Music Chest scholarship winner.

Also performed will be works by Pergolesi, Brahms, Polenc, Giordano and the 13th century Laude Umbre from "Laudario di Cortona" arranged by Giannini.

Since the San Domenico Singers were organized three years ago by Giannini, they have given numerous private, public and television performances.

Kentfield School Budget Drafted

A rough draft of a preliminary 1968-69 budget will be considered by the Kentfield School District Board at 8 p.m. Monday in the Wolfe Grade School library.

The budget is expected to exceed the $1,266,577 current budget, school officials said, but the present tax rate of $3.33 per $100 of assessed valuation is not expected to increase. Officials said additional financial support may come from state and federal funds.

Also scheduled is a study of staff salaries for the next fiscal year.

Bloom To Speak

County Fire Chief Louis Bloom will speak to the Marin Coast Chamber of Commerce at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Clay's Farm House Inn, Olema.

Sausalito's Library Friends To Present ACT Production

Friends of the Sausalito Library will present the American Conservatory Theater's production of "Adam and Eve" at Campbell Hall, Santa Rosa and San Carlos avenues, Sausalito, at 8:30 p.m. March 29.

The one-act play will be presented as part of the friends' semi-annual meeting and there will be no admission charge, the group reported.

The traveling production consists of an adaptation of Mark Twain's short sketches, "Adam's Diary" and "Eve's Story."

It explores the relationship of the first man and woman, offering Twain's view of their reaction to Satan disguised as a serpent, the forbidden apple and the birth of Cain.

Portraying Adam will be Don Watson in his second season with the American Conservatory Theater. He has performed in "Charlie's Aunt."

Portraying Eve will be Dana Larson, also in her second season with ACT. She performed in "Twelfth Night" with ACT and appeared in productions at the Colorado Shakespeare Festival.

The friends will have a business session at 8 p.m. when a nominating committee will be named to select a slate for the annual election in May. There will be a social hour after the performance.

Two Suspects Deny Burglary

Joaquin R. Martinez and Allan H. Ludviksen, both 23 and from San Francisco, pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court yesterday to charges they burgled the house of William Graning and Gladys Fleming at 246 Bayview Avenue, Belvedere, Aug. 15.

Preliminary hearing on the charges was set for April 17.

A third defendant in the case, Richard Lawrence Holstrom, 21, of Illinois, is to appear in court for preliminary hearing March 11.

OUTDOOR INTERVIEW

Motorists and passersby did double-takes yesterday afternoon as they glanced up at a balcony of an office building at Fifth Avenue and Court Street in San Rafael. While new carpets were being installed in the office of Hansell Associates, an employment agency, business went on as usual on a sunny second-floor deck. Here Peter Andreini works on the carpet while Clay Lilleson, an electronic engineer, dons dark glasses for a job interview with Mrs. Shirley Brown. On the far right, Hedy Gazzano answers the phone.

It's A Boulevard, It's An Avenue; Names Leave Novatans Confused

By THERON A. NEWELL

It's a street; it's an avenue; it's a boulevard; it's a mess.

That is what the residents of the Novato area are beginning to think of Olive and Atherton.

The Marin County Public Works Department now lists Olive as a street and Atherton as a boulevard although the City of Novato Public Works Department lists both as avenues, and until a few weeks all the signs on Atherton called it an avenue.

Maps the city obtained from the county listed them as avenues said William Bode, assistant engineer for Novato.

Thomas Brothers maps list Olive as a street in the county and as an avenue in the City of Novato.

The signs along each street, avenue, boulevard or what have you, are now just as confusing.

Donald Frost, Marin County director of public works, said that the public works department has a program for changing delapidated signs.

He added, that when they needed replacing about three weeks ago, Atherton was called by its "proper name of boulevard."

When and how it became a boulevard, Frost does not know. The county records show that it was listed as an avenue in 1956 and as a boulevard in 1958. That was before he started to work for Marin County, he said.

Neither did he know why it has taken nine years to get the change from avenue to boulevard on Atherton.

At the off ramp on Highway 37 there is a new sign for Atherton Boulevard and an arrow pointing toward Olive Street. There is also a new sign at the School Road intersection listing it as Atherton Boulevard.

It is listed as an avenue at signs at H Lane, Bugeia Lane, Equestrian Drive, Armstrong Avenue and Highway 101.

Equally confusing are the signs along Olive. Bode said that apparently the original signs placed on it before Novato became a city listed it as a street, but that as the new signs were placed by the city, they call it an avenue.

Olive is listed as a street at Fourth Street, Third Street, one part of Second Street, First Street, Highway 101, Railroad Avenue, Elmwood Court, Kenwood Court, Chase Street and Atherton Boulevard. It is listed as an avenue on the signs on one portion of Second Street, Westwood Drive, Rosa Drive, Summers Way, Rudnick Avenue, Rebecca Way and Rita Court.

Whatever they are, the residents still call them avenues and the maps put out by the Novato Chamber of Commerce list them both as avenues.

Deadly Weapon Count Denied In Court

Clifford Eugene Palmer of 523 D Street, San Rafael, pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court yesterday to a charge of assault with a deadly weapon. Preliminary hearing on the charge was set for Thursday.

Palmer allegedly cut the throat and wrist of James Lowell Akers of 204 Southern Heights, San Rafael, Wednesday. He used a knife in an apparently unprovoked clash at Akers' home, police said.

Unification Talk

Discussion of the proposed unification with Tomales High School District will take place at the meeting Monday at 8 p.m. of the West Marin Union School District board at the West Marin School.

Details of trustee areas will be among the items to be discussed in connection with the proposed unification which will be on the June 4 ballot.

Child Not Cited In Set Blazes

A 5-year-old boy, who set two fires on Appleberry Drive in Marinwood Thursday, will not be cited to juvenile authorities, Fire Chief James W. Cameron said yesterday.

"We are merely turning him over to sheriff's deputies, and it would be my feeling that he would be reprimanded and given a bit of a scare," the chief said.

Cameron also reported he has no information that the boy set any past fires.

A fireman, who told the Independent-Journal that the boy would be "cited," said he meant "referred" to the sheriff's office. The fireman added that the boy's mother had told him the boy "had played with matches before" but she did not say he had set fires before.

Marin County Police-Community Relations Committee has Donald J. O'Leary as chairman.

Watts Job Finder Tells Bay Area How To Do Task

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A program that has found jobs for almost 18,000 Negroes in Watts alone, and could come to Marin, was presented yesterday to the Commonwealth Club by the head of the private organization that found the jobs — with no tax money.

The founder is H. C. (Chad) McClellan, director of Gov. Ronald Reagan's Job Opportunities Program and president of the private organization, the Management Council for Merit Employment, Training and Research.

"I'm no do-gooder," the former U. S. assistant secretary of commerce said at the club luncheon in the Sheraton-Palace. "I'm an industrialist seeking to provide incentives for people to become part of the free enterprise system."

The council was set up after the 1965 riots in Watts, and now works with more than 1,200 corporations throughout the state to find jobs for minority workers, primarily Negroes to date, he said.

The council's practice has been to place only persons who have met employers' minimum entrance requirements, McClellan explained. Those who can't meet these requirements are trained up to a minimum level in a skill center or school before being placed, he said. "Only then should they receive on-the-job training," he said.

Bob McClellan commented that there was "little chance" of ghetto residents running their own businesses. "It's pretty hard to find people in the community with motivation and ability, even if they were able to get the money to finance a business — which they can't," he said.

The key to the council's program "is to help these people see the vision of opportunity," McClellan said. "They have to have an attitude that 'I want to be a member of the team and a producer, not a trouble-maker.'" he said. "If they see a visible opportunity, see them go — I have," he said.

McClellan noted that the Bay Area Management Council has a similar program here, and urged employers to support it.

Recalling his council's first meetings with leaders in the Watts area, McClellan said he had "never faced as difficult a job of communicating. It took three weeks just to finish discussing what happened after the Civil War," he said.

A study of a sample of 100 persons the council placed found that after a year their job records were as good as those of white workers, he said. Their average pay was $2.75 an hour, including women.

"This is no problem for a quickie solution," he concluded. "It takes patience, people and effort."

Policy Misunderstanding Frees Driver Accused Of Dope Counts

A failure of communication between Marin Municipal Court judges and police has resulted in the release of a San Rafael man accused of narcotics violations.

Beneficiary of the mix-up was Harry Frank Vantrease, 34, charged with possessing marijuana, the restricted drug Thorazine and a hypodermic syringe.

Novato Patrolman Dan L. Thomas arrested him at 11:30 p.m. Feb. 29, when he stopped Vantrease's car at Highway 101 and the Ignacio overpass to serve him with a $35 traffic warrant from San Francisco.

He said he discovered the narcotics and syringe while searching the Vantrease car after the arrest.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Jerry R. Herman dropped the charges in Municipal Court Thursday after Judge Hadden W. Roth indicated he would rule the evidence was taken in an illegal search.

The patrolman had no authority to make the arrest, since a traffic warrant is issued for daytime arrest unless otherwise marked by a judge, according to Judge Roth.

"The officer acted under a directive from the Marin Municipal Court," responded Novato Police Chief Robert DiGrazia.

Judge Roth said the officer actually confused a recent directive from Marin's three Municipal Court judges. They said they would begin marking traffic warrants for arrest at home until 8 p.m. and at any hour away from the suspect's home.

That policy cannot apply to San Francisco warrants, Roth said, since Marin judges have no authority there. Besides, the authority for a nighttime arrest must still be marked on the warrant, Judge Roth said.

Vantrease is not entirely free, though. He is still awaiting a preliminary hearing on charges he possessed marijuana and a syringe Jan. 3, when the California Highway Patrol arrested him in a parked car off Highway 101 at Greenbrae.

Old Belvedere-Tiburon Laundry Changes Hands

The pioneer Belvedere-Tiburon Laundry, believed to have been in operation before the turn of the century, has been sold.

Vogue Cleaners Inc. of Mill Valley has purchased the business from Mr. and Mrs. Kiyoshi Kuwatani, who have had it since 1938. The building at 1530 Tiburon Boulevard will be remodeled, said Vogue manager Santo Mirabile, and provide laundry service for the firm's cleaning offices in Mill Valley, Strawberry and on the Belvedere Boardwalk, Tiburon. The name, he said, will be changed to Vogue Belvedere-Tiburon Laundry.

The Kuwatanis are retiring. Their son, Nobe, who has managed the operation in recent years, said he will become a commercial fisherman for the season. He has no plans after that. The Kuwatanis live in Tiburon.

Nobe Kuwatani said he believes the laundry had been operated by Japanese since 1892. It has been remodeled three times since 1938, he said.

The original laundry was located on Beach Road, Belvedere, near the bridge to Corinthian Island, according to David Allen of Belvedere Land Co. He said it was closed down in 1942 when the Kuwatanis were interned for the duration of World War II with other Japanese families on the West Coast. When they returned in 1945, the old building was torn down and the laundry was rebuilt at its present address.

IRS Padlocks Novato Firm

The assets of Bill Faulk Electric, Inc., Novato have been seized by the Internal Revenue Service and doors of the company's premises at 5498 Redwood Highway have been padlocked, it was disclosed today.

Frank Busalacchi, public information officer at the bureau's San Francisco office, said the action was taken for non-payment of withholding taxes and social security taxes for 1967 in excess of $15,000. If payment is not made within 15 or 20 days he said the company's assets will probably be put up at a public auction.

He also said that in cases involving non-payment of withholding or social security taxes it is the department's policy to give no more than 48 hours notice before taking action. He said this short notice policy does not apply to delinquent income taxes.

LARGE FAMILY WILL LOVE THIS SPECTACULAR

We have a dream home in lovely Fairhills of San Rafael. Custom designed by Henry Hill, it features 5 bedrooms, and maid's quarters. As you would expect there are both a family room and a dining room. One outdoor area includes heated and filtered pool, cabana and large patio. The other outdoor area, off the children's wing of the house, is an enclosed play area. The screened-in lanai provides a lovely inside-outside area. The designer has used glass for maximum enjoyment of the view and to frame in the outdoors.

HISTORIC TREASURE

The grace of an earlier California is evident throughout this restored Victorian, built for Gen. Butler in 1856. A famous landmark, the house sits atop a knoll surrounded by 4 acres, and has 4 bedrooms, 3½ baths, family room and den, and 4 fireplaces! A complete remodelling was done in 1963, providing for a modern kitchen and bathrooms. But reminders of its historic past are to be found in the home's antique Americana. $125,000. Eves. 453-1696.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Wrist Slashing May Actually Be Seeking Social Status

Wrist slashers are not always trying to commit suicide. Many are lonely, neurotic young women who find solace in cutting themselves. According to Science News, an opening in the skin is like a cathartic. It releases tensions and brings on a sense of relief.

Lonely persons thrive on the ensuing attention.

VAN DELLEN

The phenomenon is common amind hospitalized women under 25 years of age who learn from one another that cutting is remedial for their loneliness and unhappiness. The gal with the most stitches is the "chief cutter," an enviable title, because it proves that she was the most unhappy.

Now and then wrist slashing occurs in epidemic proportions. In 1961, for example, 12 girls in a Chicago hospital cut themselves a total of 90 times during one weekend.

MANY CURES for the common cold have been reported, but none so brazen and impractical as that suggested by a German physician. His cure was "instantaneous and effective" in 225 individuals with a nasal discharge. Inhaling a nebulized solution containing the leaves of the ginkgo tree causes the nose to dry up in less than one minute and inflamed bronchi are healed miraculously.

The impractical aspect of this treatment centers about the ginkgo tree. According to the editors of International Medical Digest, it is the oldest living species of tree and is rare even in Eastern China where it is seen in sacred temples. On the other hand, it grown in this country and I have seen several in the Chicago area.

A SEWING NEEDLE hidden in carpeting may cause an unusual injury among children. The tot is crawling about or playing on the floor when he screams with pain. As he jumps to a standing position, the needle passes through the skin and into the bent knee joint. The maneuver breaks the needle into two or more pieces.

Doctors Robert H. Ramsey and Floyd G. Goodman have treated 21 cases in which needle fragments were found in and about the knee joint. Prompt surgical removal of the needle is the best remedy.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J.)

STOMACH ARTERIES

Mrs. I. writes: Can a person get hardening of the arteries of the stomach?

REPLY

Yes, but these vessels are less susceptible than the coronary arteries. Narrowing leads to abdominal pain following a heavy meal in contrast to angina pectoris, in which chest pain follows exertion or emotional upheaval.

BREAST EXAMINATION

Mrs. K. writes: Please write an article about how to examine the breasts. I'm sure that if more women knew the technic, there would be less cancer.

REPLY

Our leaflet on self-examination of the breasts, which explains the method, can be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with request.

PHLEBITIS AND ULCER

O. F. writes: Could an attack of phlebitis cause an ulceration on the leg?

REPLY

Yes. In addition ulcers that develop from this cause are painful and resistant to treatment.

SALT IN SWEAT

J. P. writes: Why does perspiration taste salty?

REPLY

Because it contains salt.

FOOD AND ANEMIA

T. R. writes: Is anemia caused by not eating balanced meals?

REPLY

Iron-deficiency anemia may be caused by an incufficient intake of iron-rich foods. Other types of anemia usually are associated with hemorrhage or disturbances in the blood-forming system.

HOARSENESS AT DUSK

Mrs. H. E. writes: What would cause a 3-year-old to become hoarse toward evening?

REPLY

An abnormality of the larynx or of the nerves involved in talking. This youngster ought to be examined by a competent throat specialist.

PAIN IMAGINED?

J. P. K. writes: Is pain real or imaginary? I claim that a person's subconscious mind causes the discomfort, but my friend disagrees.

REPLY

Regardless of the cause, it hurts.

Trio Is Hurt In 101 Crash

Two drivers and a passenger were injured Thursday in a three-car crash on southbound Highway 101 at the Novato intersection of Diablo Avenue.

James R. Piccanini, 40, of Santa Rosa, was treated at Novato General Hospital for multiple scrapes and bruises. Airman 1/C Phil C. Alexander, 21, of Hamilton Air Force Base, was treated for a bruised left knee at the base hospital. Eleanor Warren, 21, of 105 Bodkin Avenue, Novato, a passenger in Alexander's car, told patrolmen she would see her own doctor.

Piccinini's pickup truck collided with Alexander's car and one driven by James E. Cermak, 42, of 456 Fairway Drive, Novato at 6:05 p.m., the California Highway Patrol reported.

Citizen Gets Clew To Tape Player Theft

A witness's scribbling of an auto license number has led to the arrest of four youths accused of taking part in the theft of a stereophonic tape player and tapes from a car parked in the Northgate Shopping Center.

San Rafael police said a man walking through the shopping center lot shortly after 10 p.m. Thursday noticed a youth sneaking from a parked car while concealing something under his jacket. The witness saw the teenager get into a car, which then left. He got part of the license number, relaying it to police.

Later, Patrolman James Craddock stopped the auto in downtown San Rafael and took into custody the four occupants, three from Terra Linda and one from San Anselmo. All are 17. The stolen tape player and tapes were found in the trunk of the car.

One of the Terra Linda youths was taken to Juvenile Hall for violation of probation on a narcotics sentence. The others were released to their parents, pending further investigation.

Coed To Juvenile Court On Charges

Wendy Ann Sherseth, 18-year-old Sir Francis Drake High School student, was certified to juvenile court from Marin Municipal Court yesterday to face charges of possessing marijuana, methedrine and a crutch for smoking marijuana.

Miss Sherseth, of 69 Bennett Avenue, San Anselmo, was arrested by San Anselmo police Jan. 24 at the high school.

Month's Jail Ordered After Pair's Quarrel

Michael Eugene Gilliam, 19, of San Rafael, was sentenced to 30 days jail in Marin Municipal Court yesterday for disturbing the peace of his former girl friend, Deborah Schied of 301 Belle Avenue, San Rafael.

Gilliam, who was originally charged with striking the girl, was given credit for the time he has already served in jail while awaiting the sentence.

Brown-Yorty Feud May Cause Johnson To Visit California

COMBINED AP & UPI

President Johnson, reportedly seeking to clear up an intraparty dispute, is due to head for California this spring to campaign for a slate of candidates favoring his candidacy for renomination.

Another slate favors Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota, who is seeking the Democratic presidential nomination on a platform of opposition to Johnson's Vietnam policy.

McCARTHY PROTESTS

McCarthy, meanwhile, has criticized New Hampshire campaign attacks on his Vietnam stance. Political advertisements broadcast in advance of Tuesday's primary are saying a vote for McCarthy would be "a vote for fuzzy thinking and surrender."

McCarthy told a news conference yesterday in Rochester., N.H., President Johnson should take steps to disassociate himself from the attacks.

McCarthy said he didn't know whether they were being run with White House approval but "if these ads were being put out in my name I'd protest publicly."

The Minnesota senator faced troubles of another kind in Massachusetts, where he's running in the April 30 primary. The authenticity of signatures on petitions to place his name on the presidential preference ballot there was challenged yesterday, but specific charges were not filed.

ROCKEFELLER HUDDLE

On the Republican side of the presidential race, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, still technically a noncandidate, has asked a group of GOP leaders to meet with him tomorrow in New York City to assess "the situation of the party."

An aide said 20 to 25 GOP leaders—he would not name them—will talk with Rockefeller about the implications of Gov. George Romney's withdrawal from contention for the Republican nomination.

CALIFORNIA ISSUE

California Atty. Gen. Thomas C. Lynch, delegation chairman in that state, said Johnson probably will appear in San Francisco and Los Angeles but no dates have been set.

The Democratic quarreling appears to center on two prominent state politicians—former Gov. Edmund G. Brown and Los Angeles Mayor Samuel J. Yorty. Brown won out in his demand that two Yorty nominees not be included in the 174-member slate of party "regulars" who will oppose the McCarthy slate in the June 4 primary.

WRITE-IN DRIVE

Gov. Rockefeller's New Hampshire backers hope and believe that 15,000 votes in this state's presidential primary Tuesday will push him into active competition in the Oregon primary May 28.

The New Yorker is the willing but inactive beneficiary of a belatedly expanded write-in campaign in the Republican presidential primary.

Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, the only major active candidate whose name is on the ballot, is rated a sure winner.

Rockefeller's supporters in New Hampshire have deliberately set themselves a relatively low goal of 15,000 votes, in an expected turnout of about 90,000, because their campaign has not been well financed or organized.

WALLACE BLAST

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., says George C. Wallace of Alabama, a third party presidential candidate, offers "glib rhetoric and demagoguery" and a "cheap solution" to the nation's racial problems.

The Illinois Republican lashed out at Wallace yesterday in a speech before the Executives Club of Chicago, whose members gave Wallace an enthusiastic response three weeks ago.

Both men received standing ovations after their addresses.

Driver Bruised

Lillian Julia Roth of Alameda received apparently minor injuries at 3 p.m. yesterday when her car struck the side of the freeway exit at the Corte Madera interchange of Highway 101, Corte Madera police said. Mrs. Roth reported she swerved her car when another car passed her on the right as she was entering the freeway. She was to see her own physician for bruises of the legs and a chest pain.

Marin Catholic Grad, McDaniel, Dead In Vietnam

Pfc. Richard B. McDaniel, 18, who graduated from Marin Catholic High School last June, was killed in Vietnam on Feb. 25, his parents have been informed.

The family lives in San Mateo. McDaniel entered the Army last August. He was with an airborne unit of the Ninth Infantry Division in Vietnam.

He is survived by his father, Richard E. McDaniel; his mother, Ruth McDaniel, and a sister, Michelle, 11.

A Mass for McDaniel was held this morning at the chapel of St. Vincent's School for Boys in Santa Venetia, where McDaniel boarded during the week when he was attending Marin Catholic High School. He also was a graduate of St. Vincent's.

Closed Session

The San Rafael City Council has called a closed meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday in Room 201 of city hall to discuss dismissal of a city employee, City Clerk W. Clifford Cornwell said yesterday.

Grief, Questions Follow Louisiana Mine Disaster

COMBINED AP & UPI

BELLE ISLE, La. — Volunteers and officials of Cargill Salt Mine gathered in foggy, dreary weather today to plan the task of bringing up from the depths of a salt mine the 21 men who died there in fire and smoke Tuesday.

Officials said they would assemble a "fresh air base" at the bottom of the 1,200-foot main shaft of the mine that yielded yesterday the horrible last chapter of a three-day search. The bodies of all 21 men were found where they had fallen and died while trying to escape the flames and smoke.

Air will be pumped into the "fresh air base," giving recovery crews the chance to work without using oxygen tanks. They will bring up the bodies, a few at a time, in a tiny bucketlike elevator. A coroner will complete the formality of identifying the bodies, and relatives will claim them for burial.

The bodies were found yesterday by the sixth and seventh rescue teams to brave the intense heat and carbon monoxide 1,200 feet below the isolated coastal surface.

The discovery of the bodies brought screams of anguish and uncontrolled tears from the scores of relatives huddled together at the Cargill dock, 16 miles away from the company's Belle Isle mine.

It also brought tears to the dozens of fellow salt miners who had worked so long, hoping to find the trapped men alive.

The tragedy struck eight months after the Federal Bureau of Mines recommended a sister shaft be sunk to provide better ventilation, an escape route and various fire controls.

H. A. Schrecengost, a bureau official in Indianapolis, Ind., said the recommendations were made by A. M. Evans, a mining engineer from the Dallas subdistrict, after an "observation walk-through" last August.

Raymond R. Ashby, a coal mine safety expert from Kentucky who was on the mine floor when the first 16 bodies were found, said the men apparently "died of carbon monoxide poisoning. They died a painless death. It was like lying down and going to sleep."

Friends and relatives waited, hopes faltering as the long ordeal wore on. At the final announcement a mother collapsed on a cot, sobbing: "Oh my God, my son, my son!"

"I ain't got no brothers anymore," a woman wailed.

Two women fainted. Some miners cried. Other workers simply removed their hard hats and lowered their heads.

The death announcement was read at Calumet, 14 miles to the north of the isolated mine, a relatively small venture but sunk into one of the world's biggest salt domes.

Reagan Won't Allow Vice-President Ballot

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan won't ask that his name be removed from the May Oregon presidential primary as a presidential candidate—but Vice President is another matter.

The California Republican, however, clamped down hard yesterday on efforts to revive a write - in campaign in New Hampshire's bellwether primary March 12.

Reagan wired Clay Myers, Oregon Secretary of State, Friday to say he would not ask his name to be removed from the neighboring state's presidential ballot because he will be running as a favorite son in California.

"At the same time I am not now and under no circumstances will I be a candidate for the office of vice president," he said. "Therefore, I would be most appreciative if you would remove my name from consideration."

MAY SIGN OUT

He indicated—by asking Myers for an affidavit of disclaimer—that he'll sign a statement denying any vice presidential aspirations, if needed.

Under Oregon's primary election law, Myers will disclose Monday the names of presidential and vice presidential candidates to be placed on the ballot. He gets the list from studying coverage of news media.

Reagan, in his second year as California governor, also will be on primary election ballots in Wisconsin and Nebraska, whose selection process is similar to that in Oregon.

As a favorite son candidate, and a delegate in California's June 4 primary, he signed a pledge Feb. 26 saying he preferred himself as the "nominee of my political party for President of the United States." Identical documents naming Reagan were signed by 85 other delegates.

"I have a disadvantage in these other states," Reagan told UPI in an exclusive interview earlier in the week. "I can't take my name off the ballot.

"You can't sign four affidavits in which one of them says 'in the other three I told a lie'," he said. This was his reason, he said, for not filing disclaimers in open primaries outside California.

AD DENOUNCED

Reagan's office, meanwhile, denounced as "unauthorized, irresponsible and apparently designed to embarrass" the governor a full-page advertisement placed in the Manchester (N.H.) Union - Leader by Phoebe and Kent Courtney, publishers of "The Independent American" of New Orleans, La.

A statement distributed to newsmen said the Courtneys had been asked twice to refrain from advocating Reagan's presidential candidacy — but planned to recommend a write-in for Reagan in the newspaper ad.

"The action on their part is unauthorized, irresponsible and apparently designed to embarrass Governor Reagan by connecting his name with that of former Gov. George Wallace of Alabama, whom the Courtneys also support," the statement said.

"Governor Reagan is opposed to the candidacy of Wallace and opposes his position on most issues, including those on civil rights," the statement added. "In addition, Governor Reagan is not a candidate for President."

Lyn Nofziger, Reagan's communications director, made public two letters to Mrs. Courtney. The first, dated Nov. 6, 1967, asked her to "cease any efforts" on Reagan's behalf. A second, dated Nov. 13, 1967, repeated the request that the Courtneys "refrain from advocating that Governor Reagan run for President."

Police Offer Check Files In Novato

The Novato Police Department has offered its services as a clearing house for bad check information and credit ratings to the city's merchants.

This would be done in the form of a card file kept beside the dispatcher at the police station 24 hours a day, so that a merchant could get check information via the telephone.

This card file would be compiled by both the merchants and the Novato police, detective Sgt. Otto Haiungs told the chamber of commerce board at a meeting Thursday.

The merchants would ask persons wishing to cash a check to fill out one of the file cards. The card would include name, address, date of birth, vehicle, employer, physical description and other identification such as credit cards, Haiungs said.

Information received by Novato police from local, county and state authorities about activities of bogus check cashers would be added to the file, Haiungs said.

The police also would add information on known bad check passers in the state, he said.

Other police departments keep such check passing records for the merchants, Haiungs said.

The matter was referred to the retail merchants committee of the chamber for study.

Monagan Says Demos In Trouble

SAN MATEO (UPI) — Assembly Speaker Jesse Unruh's decision not to run for the U.S. Senate has left the Democratic Party in a "coffin corner," says Assembly minority leader Robert Monagan.

The Republican from Tracy said yesterday the Democratic Party is showing signs of the same type of erosion that afflicted the Republican Party in 1964.

Monagan, in speeches at Sunnyvale and San Mateo to Republican Alliance groups, said the GOP will win control of the state legislature this year and perhaps some larger offices.

"Because Unruh has decided to concentrate on making headlines instead of laws, the Democrats find themselves in a coffin corner," said Monagan.

"If they shoot down sound Republican proposals they will be vulnerable as political wreckers," he said. "But if they don't, the most inspired legislation this year will be stamped 'GOP'."

However, Monagan said, it would be a mistake to consider the election "in the bag."

Ross Unhappy Over Hub's Sign Delay

Mayor Frederick S. Allen of Ross has accused the San Anselmo City Council of refusing to place traffic signs at the intersection of Bolinas Avenue and Shady Lane, thus breaking an earlier promise between the communities.

Last March, 204 Ross residents petitioned the Ross Town Council to correct a "dangerous traffic situation on Shady Lane."

Allen said the town took steps to control the problem, including reconstruction of the intersection and the purchase of a radar device to enforce speed laws.

Allen said Ross put up signs banning turns on its side of Bolinas Avenue to discourage traffic from other communities and San Anselmo said it would do the same on its side. However, Mayor Allen said, the San Anselmo City Council voted 3-2 Feb. 27 not to erect its sign, thus breaking its promise to help the traffic situation.

Allen has explained this in a letter to the residents who petitioned the council last year. He has suggested that concerned residents complain to the San Anselmo council.

Gate Bridge Board Soon To Have Second Deck Sketches, Cost Tally

Preliminary engineering plans and cost estimates for a second deck on the Golden Gate Bridge will be presented to Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District directors on March 28, it was announced yesterday.

Board President John E. Nelson of Mendocino County said the meeting would be at 10:30 a.m. in the administration building at the toll booth plaza. The plans and estimates will be presented to the directors meeting as "a committee of the whole," Nelson said.

The directors last summer contracted with Ammann and Whitney of New York to prepare the plans and estimates at a cost of $265,000. However, in November, a majority of directors voted to take no further action toward a second deck after the Ammann and Whitney report was received.

Only if development of rapid transit failed to relieve traffic congestion on the bridge would a second deck be considered again, directors agreed at that time.

Milton Brumer, president of the engineering firm, will present the report.

Director Stephan C. Leonoudakis of San Francisco argued at the board meeting yesterday that the report "should be put in some bin. We're going to give the public the wrong impression if we make a big show in accepting this plan," he predicted.

'VOTE A RUSE'

"The public will get the impression we've got our head back in the sand, and will think our November vote was a ruse," Leonoudakis said.

His motion that the board "make a clear-cut statement that rapid transit comes first" failed to get a second.

"Our (November) resolution makes our position crystal clear," said director Thomas D. Hardcastle of Marin, who made the November motion. "If we can learn anything more from the study, we certainly should get everything we should for our money," said Hardcastle.

Golden Gate Bridge District Also:

LOAN — Received a report by director William D. Hadeler of San Francisco that the attorney general is considering whether legislation would be necessary for the district to repay a $5 million state loan to the district before it is due in 1971.

ANTI-TRUST — Asked the district's attorney, Jerome B. White, to study whether the district should seek a damage suit against Hancock Bros., a company which prints bridge commutation books at 6.7 cents each. The firm has been fined in federal court in an anti-trust suit. About 18,000 books are sold a month by the bridge district.

LOBBYIST — Voted 11-2 to pay $7,500 to the district's lobbyist in Sacramento, Gordon Garland, toward his 1968 salary $16,000. Directors Leonoudakis and John E. Dearman of San Francisco dissented.

LEGISLATION — Referred to legislation committee a proposal by Leonoudakis that directors meet with Marin and San Francisco legislators on bills affecting the district.

TRAFFIC — Referred a report from Gen. Mgr. James Adam that daily traffic averaged 80,647 vehicles in the past 12 months.

FUEL — Declared Atlantic Richfield Co. as the lowest of five bidders for an estimated 25,000 gallons of regular gas, 5,000 gallons of premium gas and 20,000 gallons of Diesel fuel during the year beginning April 1. The company bid .1881 cents on regular gas, .211 cents on premium and .2302 for Diesel fuel. Not included in the bids was the four-cent federal fuel tax.

UTILITIES — Contracted with the Army for water and electric service at a cost of 73.24 cents per 1,000 gallons and $4,240 for annual electrical service.

Marin Society of Artists has Mrs. Oliver Bonner as president.

Jail, Probation In Attack Case

Allyn Leroy Coon, 26, of Woodacre, was sentenced to 30 days in jail and two years of probation in Marin Superior Court yesterday for the statutory rape of a 16-year-old San Geronimo Valley girl in October.

Sheriff's deputies said Coon and the girl went to Olathe, Colo., Oct. 26 and returned Nov. 1, when Coon learned there was a warrant for his arrest and surrendered himself.

Restaurant's Plan On List

Harold Butler Enterprises' request for a use permit to operate a restaurant in the Novato Square subdivision at Grant Avenue and Highway 101 will be considered by the Novato Planning Commission at 8 p.m. Monday in the Community House.

Wells Fargo bank is asking for a free standing sign of 80 square feet for its new building at the southwest corner of Grant Avenue and Fifth Street. Perry L. Huffstutter seeks rezoning from single family to multiple family for a lot at 1136 Third Street.

Charge Denied

Robert Harris, 18, of San Anselmo, pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court yesterday to a charge he possessed narcotics equipment on Fourth Street, San Rafael, Feb. 15. His trial by judge was scheduled for April 11.

High School Public Speaking Course Set

Tamalpais Toastmasters Club will sponsor an eight-week course in public speaking for high school students beginning at 7:30 p.m. March 27 at the Novato branch of the Bank of Marin. The course will also offer students experience in conducting meetings.

Enrollment may be made by writing Dr. Thomas M. Hart of Box 526, Ross.

Fence Permit Asked In Larkspur Hearing

The Larkspur Planning Commission is scheduled to consider a variance application for a fence and a lot split at 8 p.m. Tuesday at City Hall.

John J. Nelson of 120 Tulane Drive is seeking permission to erect a 6-foot high fence. Maximum height without a variance is 3½ feet. Kurt Hagen is seeking to split one lot into three of Myrtle Avenue at Eden Street.

VIGIL

On March 11th and 12th, Army and Marine Corps recruiting teams are coming on the campus of the College of Marin to interview prospective draftees who might be interested in some of their programs and also to answer any questions which the students might have about the military. Since to us the military stands for death, war and oppression, we of the Students Against the War wish to present the student body with some alternative solutions to the draft.

We do not wish to deprive anyone of his right to free speech, but we do want to make it clear that we vehemently object to what the military stands for in our society. Therefore, there will be tables set up in Meeting Room A, which will be manned by people who represent points of view which are different from those of the military.

There will also be a silent, non-violent vigil outside of Meeting Room A beginning at 10:30 a.m. on Monday the 11th and ending at 1:00 p.m. All participants, students and faculty will wear black arm bands as a symbolic gesture of mourning. We ask all who feel as we do to please come and stand with us in silent protest.

The killing will not stop unless the people want it to stop. Please come and stand with us for life, freedom and peace. For further information call 454-3962, ext. 258

Peter Watkins' THE WAR GAMES film will be shown Monday Evening at 8:30 p.m. in Olney Hall

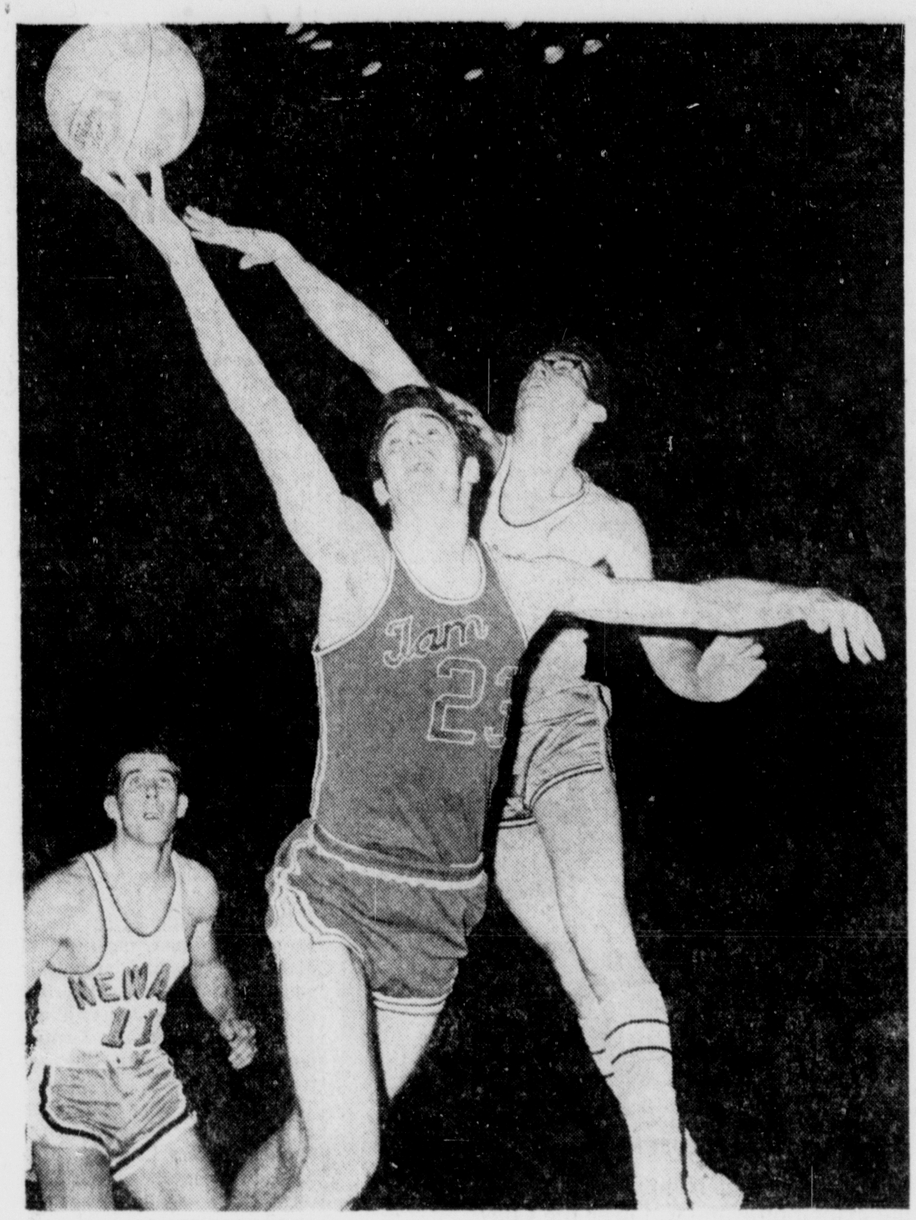
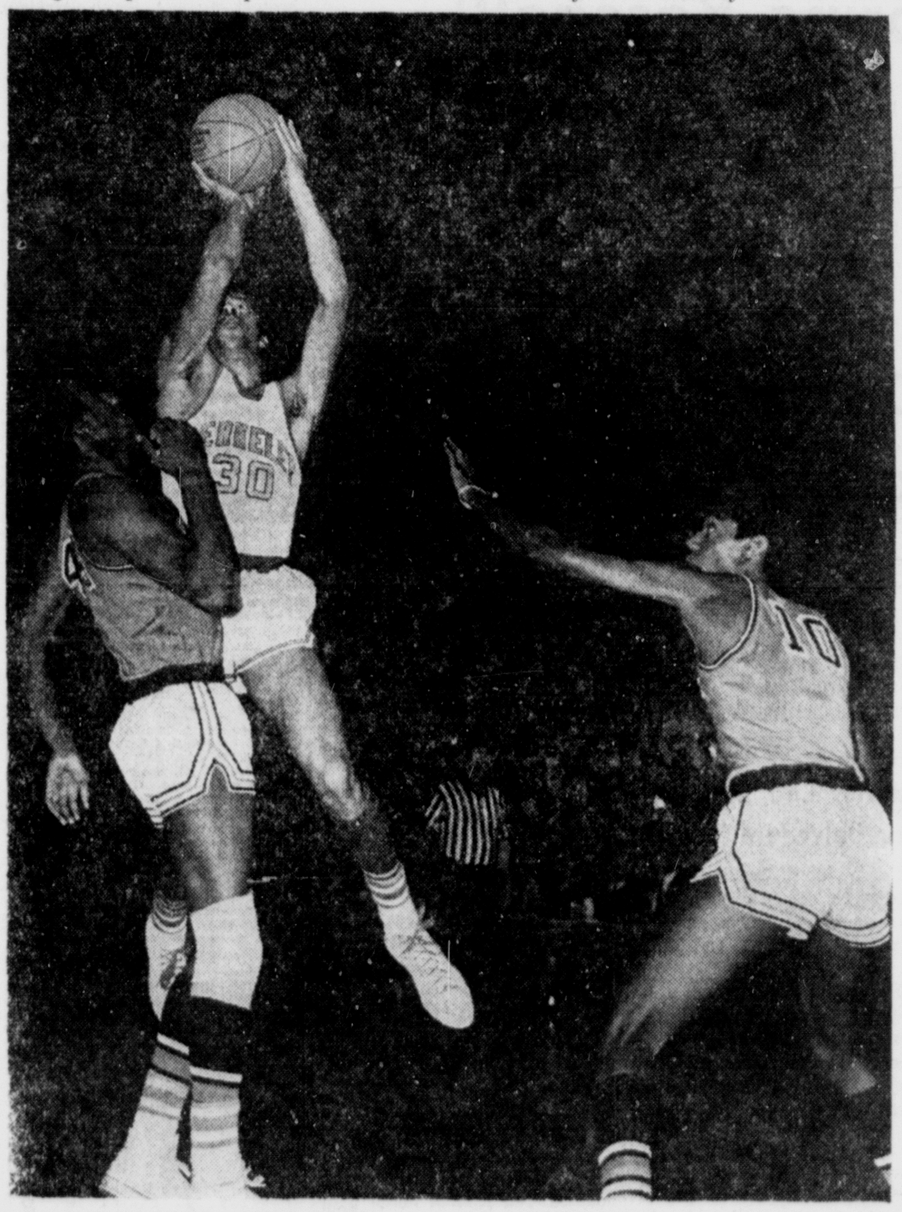
Victorious Tamalpais Could Claim Two Titles In Tourney



SCHAFER UP FOR TWO — Tamalpais center Pat Schafer grimaces as he goes up for two points over the outstretched hand of Newark's Joe Victoria. (Independent-Journal Photos by Tom Beesley)



A SUPER-STAR PERFORMS — Berkeley's fabulous 6-2 guard Phil Chenier scores two of his 42 points by going up and over McClymonds' Otis Williams while Roy Brown makes a futile stopping gesture.

By GARY TISCHLER

It will be a fight for North Bay supremacy in the consolation finals of the 1968 Tournament of Champions this afternoon at 5 o'clock in the Oakland Coliseum Arena.

The stage was set for the unofficial title bout when Marin County Athletic League champ Tamalpais High School pasted suddenly unimpressive Newark, 69-60, and twice-beaten North Bay I champ Montgomery of Santa Rosa held off Hayward, 62-59 in consolation bracket games yesterday.

The Tam Indians, rebounding impressively after a tough 51-44 opening round loss to Bishop O'Dowd, have a chance to repeat themselves.

Back in 1963, the Indians won the TOC consolation title, nipping Montgomery 49-47 en route They can double their pleasure with a win over the Vikes for another consolation title.

The loss was the end of the road for two-time visitor Newark, which had come heartbreakingly close to pulling off the biggest upset in state high school play this year when it bowed to unbeaten Wilson, 55-56, in the last seconds of the opener Thursday.

The Indians added another peg of prestige for the MCAL with the surprisingly easy victory which wasn't as close as the nine-point margin indicated.

They did it by making the run-happy Knights slow down to a walk, but controlling the boards and by tearing a Newark press to shreds.

Pat Schafer and Floyd Jackson, the Indians' one-two punch all season long, did it again, scoring 42 points between them, 21 each, and grabbing off 12 and 13 rebounds respectively.

The Knights were more or less in command for about a quarter and a half.

HOME FREE

They took off happily to a 13-6 lead midway through the opening quarter, lost it when Don Mackin led a 10-point Tam splurge with three fielders, went back on top, 19-16, were still tied at 22-22 when Jackson squirreled in for a bucket to give the Indians the lead for good.

The Indians, ripped through Newark's full-court press for three easy buckets and extended their lead to 39-22 at the half.

From then on, they were home free clinching it when Jackson and Schafer split six points between them for a 52-38 lead in the third quarter.

Coach Bernie Schneider could even afford to give Schafer a rest while Leroy Barrow, a demon on defense, controlled the Indians' offensive game.

The Tam lead got as big as 65-47 with 3:50 left before Schneider started to clear his bench.

For the second straight game, the Indians hit over 50 per cent of their shots, connecting on 25 of 48 shots for 52 per cent. They shot the same percentage against O'Dowd. Schafer, who got away underneath for 7 out of 10 buckets and Jackson with an 8 for 14 showing, led the way.

LUNCEFORD GETS 24

One thing the Indians could not do was stop Tom Lunceford, the Knighets' all-TOC star from last year's tourney. Lunceford, a smooth-shooting forward, canned 24 points, giving him a 46-point total for two games.

Schafer, with his 21-point output, now has 43 for the tourney.

The win brought the Indians' season record to 19-6 while Newark closed out at 20-5.

When the Indians play the Vikes this afternoon, they had better watch one of the biggest smaller men in the tournament.

That's 6-0 guart Tom Fitchie, who looks most comfortable 20 feet away from the basket.

12 FOR 20 TWICE

Until Phil Chenier came along last night with his 42-point bag, it had been Fitchie who had been giving the fans a case of the "would you look at thats."

Fitchie opened the tournament by taking the thunder away from Chenier in a losing, scrappy cause against Berkeley, by plastering the nets for 27 points with a 12-for-20 showing from the 20-feet radius on one-and-two handed sets and little near-jumpers.

He went 12-for-20 again last night, finishing with 24 points, this time mixing in a few driving layups against the taller Farmers.

That gives Fitchie 24 out of 40 from the field, an amazing long-range performance. He is second in tournament scoring with 51 points.

Against the luckless Farmers, who were making their sixth TOC trip without too much to show for it, Fitchie had plenty of help.

FINAL RALLY

Dwight Holiday, a slender 6-2 senior forward, found the touch, hitting 8 of 11 fielders and finishing with 17 points, while Steve Tiedeman chipped in with 11 points and 11 rebounds.

The Vikes took command in the second quarter as Holiday and Tiedeman combined for 13 points after Fitchie had scored 10 in the opening quarter. The outburst gave Montgomery a 27-19 lead, a deficit from which the Farmers never recovered, falling behind by as much as 12 points.

They gave it a good go in the final period, which opened with Montgomery, holding a nine-point lead. With talented junior forward Warren Morse and ace rebounder Jim Schwerm leading the way, the Farmers got to within 60-57 at 1:09, but scrappy little guard Gary Goulart clinched it for the Vikes with a jumper for a 62-57 lead and the game.

The Farmers finished the season at 19-7. Montgomery brings a 22-2 record against Tamalpais.

A STUDY IN STUDY — Tamalpais High School basketball coach Bernie Schneider takes on a studious look as he watches his Indians perform against Newark in the Tournament of Champions.

CRY FOR HAPPY — Wilson High School songleaders go into a tearful victory dance after the Warriors bumped off Bishop O'Dowd to advance into the TOC finals.

A Dazzling Show By Berkeley Star

The venerable 21-year-old high school basketball Tournament of Champions has never quite seen anything like it.

This was the night that Phil Chenier etched his name into the record books and almost single-handedly propelled Berkeley into an unbelieveable rout of perennial champ McClymonds, and possibly erased two straight frustrating years of TOC stumbling by the Yellow Jackets.

With Chenier, the 6-2 All-America prospect, scoring a record 42 points, handing out nine assists, grabbing nine rebounds and blocking three shots, the Yellow Jackets sailed away from a McClymonds team that was considered by some to be the best in the tournament, 78-63, earning a spot in the finals against unbeaten Wilson tonight at 8 o'clock.

The Wilson Warriors, behind fabled 6-9 center Ainslee (Do-It) Truitt and battling forward Larry Hanen, doused out the not-so-bright hopes of Bishop O'Dowd, 72-58 to set up the final pairings.

O'Dowd takes on McClymonds at 6:30 p.m. in the fight for third place.

Chenier's performance was the kind that sends you running to a dictionary for a list of superlatives, and you find that there aren't enough.

TWO RECORDS

Officially, the 42 points, 29 of which came in an amazing first half, broke a single game record of 34 set by Clyde Tolliver of McClymonds in 1963. They gave Chenier a three-year total of 141 points, breaking the career-mark of another fairly well-known player, Paul Silas, who scored 116 points over a three-year span, 1958-1959, for McClymonds.

Chenier needs 17 more points against Wilson to shatter the three-game mark of 75 points, set by Willie Davis of Alameda way back in 1953.

For Chenier it was a personal triumph of sheer class.

As a sophomore, when Berkeley finished fourth in the TOC, he scored an unsure 17 points for three games. Last year, bombarded by advance clippings, he had great games against Granada and Drake, but in between, he had what must have been his worst night of the year in a 69-60 loss upset loss to Balboa. Thusday night, he picked up three fouls in a hurry and finished with a so-so (for him) 16-point night.

WORRIED O'DOWD FAN

But last night, it was as if all the ballyhoo and clippings merged into the player and came true.

TWO-MAN DUEL

For a while it was strictly a two-man duel of giants.

With 1 minute and 8 seconds left in the first quarter, the score was Nate Williams 14, Chenier 10 as Willliams, the great chunky McClymonds forward, sank five straight jumpers and four free throws before teammate Roger Brown broke up his string.

Chenier wasn't ready to quit. Shooting from way outside or leading a sizzling fast break, he scored Berkeley's first 14 points before feeding little guard Doug Kagawa for a layup, early in the second quarter. He followed that assist with two straight 20-footers, a 16-footer and a running hook, then fed Kagawa again for another layup, giving Berkeley the lead for the first time, 26-24 with 4:11 left in the half.

Berkeley never trailed again. Chenier scored from the field four more times, and his teammates added five for a tight 37-32 halftime lead while a record near-capacity crowd of more than 10,000 fans watched.

WORST TO COME

But for McClymonds, the worst was yet to come.

The Warriors threw everything at the basket but bon-bons but couldn't hit a thing as Chenier and company suddenly, unbelieveable did the thing that couldn't happen. They ran the Warriors right off the court.

With a 33-point total, Chenier was wide open for a layup and the record-breaker but passed off to teammate Carl Shelton for another assist instead. He got the record-breaker with 3:36 left in the third-quarter, a 13-foot example in the art of shooting, making it 55-33, and for all practical purposes ending the game.

McClymonds made a brief flurrry when the foul-burdened Williams came back in to make two twisting driving shots that cut it to 14 in the final period before fouling out. It was the last ditch-effort of a go-go team that didn't go anywhere.

Williams wound up with 20 points while teammate Herman Brown cleared the board for 20 rebounds.

Unbeaten Wilson, which barely squeaked by Newark in its opener, had no such fireworks, but the Warriors, with the injured Truitt looking better and still menacing, had enough punch of their own to completely derail the usually pressure-seasoned Dragons.

Truitt and Haren, only 6-2, acturally took rebounding honors beside his more imposing teammate, grabbing 19 to Truitt's 10, scored 22 points and drove the Dragons to death underneath while hitting on short jumpers.

Waltzing Back On Courts In A 12-10 Playoff Sleeper

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

North Carolina State used some "walk, don't run" basketball philosophy last night and sent Duke's sixth-ranked Blue Devils heading for the nearest exit from the Atlantic Coast Conference playoffs.

The Wolfpack held the ball without taking a shot for almost 14 minutes in the second half, then scored six points in the last 2½ minutes for an incredible 12-10 victory that sent them into tonight's title game against North Carolina with a berth in the NCAA tournament at stake.

That tourney gets under way today with seven first-round games at four scattered sites, including appearances by top-ranked Houston and third-rated St. Bonaventure, only major unbeaten teams in the country.

Houston, led by Elvin Hayes, The Associated Press' player of the year, takes its 28-0 record against upset-minded Chicago Loyola in a doubleheader at Salt Lake City, Utah. New Mexico State and Weber State both 21-5, meet in the other half of the twin bill.

St. Bonaventure, winner of all 22 regular season games, faces Boston College in a single game at Kingston, R.I.

Columbia's Ivy League champions kick off the tournament against La Salle in the opener of an afternoon doubleheader at College Park, Md. Davidson faces St. John's of New York in the second game.

Another doubleheader, this one at Kent, Ohio, sends Florida State against East Tennessee and Marquette against Bowling Green.

The seven winners advance to next weekend's regionals at Raleigh, N.C.; Lexington, Ky.; Wichita, Kan., and Albuquerque, N.M.

Coaches Norman Sloan of North Carolina State and Vic Bubas of Duke, who were teammates at State 20 years ago, called timeouts galore in the final minute of their slowdown showdown to set up strategy.

Duke held a 4-2 halftime lead after State held the ball for eight minutes. The biggest freeze set in after the Blue Devils took an 8-6 lead with 16:15 remaining. For most of the next 14 minutes, Bill Kretzer, State's 6-foot-7 center, dribbled the ball with only an occasional pass to a teammate.

Eddie Biedenbach's jump shot tied the score with 2½ minutes left and then it was Duke's turn to hold the ball and try for one last shot. But State chose to foul Dave Golden with 43 seconds left and the best he could do was make one of two free throws for a 9-8 lead.

Dick Braucher gave State the lead with 40 seconds to go when he put in a rebound of Kretzer's missed free throw and sophomore Vann Williford made a foul shot with 16 seconds to play. Ten seconds later Golden had a chance to tie it up but missed his second foul shot.

State took only 13 shots, making four, while Duke was two for 11.

Giants Set To Feud With Indians, Dark

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The San Francisco Giants start today their 35th year of spring feuding with the Cleveland Indians, whose manager was fired as San Francisco manager four years ago.

Alvin Dark came to the Giants in 1961, led them to the National League championship in 1962, and was fired after they finished third and fourth the next two seasons.

Dark lasted only half as long, just under two seasons, with Charles O. Finley, who fired him as manager of the then Kansas City Athletics last September.

Now he's trying to pick up the Indians, who were a dismal eighth last year with an American League record of 75-87.

If he kept books on the Giants since he left, he should know them rather well. He had three of the four starting pitchers — Willie McCovey, Hal Lanier and Jim Davenport; three outfielders—Jim Ray Hart, Willie Mays and Jesus Alou, and several of the moundsmen, including Gaylord Perry, scheduled to start today.

Manager Herman Franks, who succeeded Dark, lined up Joe Gibbon, Bob Bolin and rookies Rich Robertson and Joe Costello for mound duty behind Perry.

Stan Williams, 6-4, was Dark's choice to start with Steve Bailey, 2-5, and rookie Tom Gramly to follow.

The Giants hopped on Chicago Cub ace Ken Holtzman for four runs in the third inning of their Cactus League opener at Scottsdale Friday and coasted to a 6-3 victory.

Holtzman, 9-0 last season when called into military service, was greeted by Willie Mays' double and singles by Willie McCovey, Ollie Brown and Hal Lanier.

Billy Williams' first inning homer off Ray Sadecki was countered by the Giants when Ken Hunt, leading off, was hit by a Ferguson Jenkins pitch, was singled to third by Davenport and sent home by a Hart fly.

Jack Hiatt singled the walking Ken Henderson home in the ninth.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Super-Killy Eyes Super-Comeback

MERIBEL, France — Jean-Claude Killy, France's super skier, will have to come from behind if he wants to win the Meribel Grand Prix giant sialom.

The Olympic triple gold medalist was in second place after yesterday's opening heat with a run of 1.22.94 down the 1,443-yard course. That was less than a second behind another Frenchman, Georges Mauduit, who was clocked in 1:22.05. Guy Perillat, also of France, was third.

FOOTBALL

NEW YORK — The New York Jets hired Buddy Ryan, formerly of Edmonton in the Canadian Football League and the Houston Oilers, as defensive line coach.

SKIING

SEATTLE — Ann Black, an 18-year-old Colorado freshman, won the women's downhill title at the 1968 National Alpine Ski Championships.

TENNIS

BARRANQUILLA, Colombia— Nancy Richey of San Angelo, Tex., and Julie Heldman of New York, the only Americans still in the competition, were eliminated in the women's quarter-finals of the Barranquilla International Tennis Tournament.

AUTO RACING

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. — Jacqui Smith of Winchester, England, the first woman to enter a NASCAR superspeedway event, was given a ride in another Camaro for Saturday's Sandhills 250-mile stock car race after she spun one car during practice.

SAILING

NASSAU, Bahamas — Bolero, skippered by Ted Turner of Atlanta, crossed the finish line in the 30-mile Nassau Cup yacht race, but the 40-foot Canadian sloop Red Jacket was declared the probable winner.

FENCING

LODZ, Poland — The American team of Alex Orban and Alfonso Morales of New York, Thomas Balla of Philadelphia and Anthony Keane of East Brunswick, N.J., bowed to the Soviet Union 9-7 in the first round of the International Saber Fencing Tournament.

The defense, with Truitt sitting and waiting underneath, limited the Dragons to outside shooting, a task the Dragons where not quite up to. They shot only 39 per cent.

Alan Hale, son of Oakland Oaks coach Bruce Hale, led the Dragons with 20 points, while fiery guard Mike Ratto, who sat out a good part of the game in foul trouble, pumped in 14 points.

The Dragons were really shot down in the second quarter, when they were outscored 17-7. After being 14 down early in the fourth quarter, they made a last-ditch bid that cut the margin to six points, but Hale fouled out and the Warriors hit three straight one-in-one free throw situations annd Haren drove for a bucket to put it out of reach.

Five First Places

Rick Fishel won five 13-14 age group events for the Hamilton Voo Doos Swim Team last weekend in the Tamalpais Swim Club meet in Mill Valley. Other first place winners for the Hamilton team were Jody Callaway and Nancy Radoliff.

Troubled Nicklaus Needs Work

MIAMI (AP) — He stands 23rd on golf's money-winning list with a puny total of $6,450. Two weeks ago at Phoenix, they cut him out of the tournament after 36 holes because he was four strokes over par.

In the Doral Open here yesterday, he was two over par at the halfway point. One more stroke and he would have been cut again.

His name is Jack Nicklaus.

In 1967, Nicklaus was the golfer of the year. In the modern era of golf, he has won $723,000. Nobody tops that but Arnold Palmer and Billy Casper.

What's the trouble with the famed "Golden Bear?"

"I need work," Nicklaus said yesterday after a bogey and double bogey left him with a two over par 74 and a 36-hole total of 146 in the Doral. The players who had 147 were out of it.

Nicklaus was 10 strokes behind the leader, 40-year-old Gardner Dickinson.

In the six years of the Doral, Nicklaus has always been a dangerous competitor and a great favorite of the galleries.

The long-hitting Nicklaus thought he played well enough to be in competition.

"I was hitting the ball good," he said. "I really hit some long drives today. But it was just that half-inch that made the difference so many times. I played all right but I didn't score well."

As Nicklaus faded out, Tom Weiskopf came on with a great second round charge and stood one stroke behind Dickinson in the Doral. Several other players were within striking distance for the stretch run.

Lee Ties Dash Record In Tam Track Victory

Paced by a record-tying performance by Alan Lee, the Tamalpais track team beat Montgomery of Santa Rosa 70-56 at Tam yesterday.

Lee won the 100 in 9.8, tying a school mark held by himself and Ellis Williams, now at San Jose State. Tam coach Bruce Grant called Lee's time "spectacular, especially on a wet track, although ours has more bounce when it's wet." Lee also coasted to a 220 win in 23 flat over one of the top 220 men in the North Bay.

Tam had seven men out, and took first and second in the 880 with freshmen. Other Tam wnners were: Scott Palmer, 880. Randy Harness, mile. Kit Hely, two mile. Rick Hewett, both hurdles. Earl Parker, high jump. And the 440 relay, with Hewett, Miller, Fowler, and Lee.

Novato Loses Swim Meet

Novato High School lost a tight swimming dual meet at Redwood City to Sequoia Highee-School, 50-43, Thursday.

Roger Backstedt and Ron Smith pace the Hornets, taking part in the winning 200-medley relay and winning one event each. Backstedt too the 100 freestyle and Smith won the 100 breast while George Ventura and Rich Albert were also on the medley team.

Oh, That Wacky Spring Baseball!

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ah, what wonderful things spring can do for a baseball team.

Today's example is the Chicago White Sox, those lovable, little hitless wonders who had a team batting average of .225 last year.

The Sox made their 1968 debut at Sarasota, Fla., Friday, pounded out 14 hits and thumped Boston's American League champions 7-3. It was enough to make Manager Eddie Stanky risk a contented smile.

Two newcomers—outfielders Russ Snyder and Tommy Davis —led the offense with two hits apiece. Snyder, acquired from Baltimore, rapped a triple and a single and scored twice. Davis, who came from the New York Mets, slapped a pair of singles and scored twice.

The Mets, meanwhile, were idle but in form. Often accused of not being able to stay out of each other's way, they proved it in practice when ace pitcher Tom Seaver was hit in the head by a line drive.

Coach Eddie Yost was the culprit and the interesting part of this story was that Yost was supposed to have been hitting grounders, not line drives.

Seaver escaped serious injury and was expected to start today's exhibition opener against St. Louis.

Philadelphia, playing without Rich Allen, took an 11-2 shellacking from Cincinnati at Clearwater, Fla. Allen left the Phillies' camp and returned to Philadelphia to have his injured right hand examined by his own physician.

"I wasn't feeling good and I wanted to see my own doctor about my right hand," said Allen. The slugging third baseman missed the last six weeks of the 1967 season when he cut his hand in an accident.

Jim Beauchamp slammed two home runs and Lee May had three Phillie pitchers, including Chris Short, for 13 hits. Beauchamp drove in five runs.

Oakland's brand new Athletics won their first start with an exciting late rally, beating Detroit 3-2 at Bradenton, Fla.

The A's, who moved from Kansas City after last season, were locked in a scoreless duel with the Tigers until the ninth inning. After Detroit scored twice, Ramon Webster's two-run homer tied it for Oakland. Then, in the 10th, Dick Green doubled Ted Kubiak home with the winner.

Four Houston pitchers limited Pittsburgh to four hits at Fort Myers, Fla., as the Astros beat the Pirates 4-2. Hector Torres' two-run single in the sixth inning drove in the winning runs.

PREP ROUNDUP

Tamalpais, Redwood Deadlock In MCAL Swimming Relays

Tamalpais and Redwood ended up in a 96-96 tie after an afternoon of upsets in the Marin County Athletic League Relays at Redwood yesterday afternoon.

Three meet records were broken (two by Redwood, one by Drake) and another was tied. Participating in the meet were Redwood, Drake, Tamalpais, Novato, Terra Linda, and San Rafael.

Relay Results:

Team Standings: Redwood and Tamalpais, 96; San Rafael, 76; Novato 62; Drake 52; Terra Linda 32.

Redwood's track team routed Piedmont High 74-53 at Piedmont yesterday afternoon. Tom Poppin was a double winner for the Giant thinclads, taking a first in the 100 and repeating in the 220. Todd Norris won the 880, Wayne Horiuchi the mile, Tim Taylor the two mile, Bob Ballou the shot put, Pete Riegar the discus, John Woodhull the long jump. Phil Simon won both the shot ind discus, but the Redwood "B" team lost to Piedmont 59-68.

Terra Linda lost a meet to St. Helena, 45-81, although winning six of fifteen events. Lowell Harris took both hurdles, Bob Flott the quarter mile, Dane Larsen the discus, John Thibodeaux the broad jump and Bob Bunnell the two mile. The Trojan "B" and frosh teams lost 36-77 and 50-60.

Galileo at Novato and San Rafael at Castlewood were rained out.

BASEBALL

Drake High won its second straight baseball game yesterday with a last-inning rally that edged Hogan of Vallejo, 3-2, at Drake.

Drake went ahead after Fred Westcott singled. Mike Gaffney walked, and the Hogan third baseman threw the ball away on a bunted base hit by John Brown. Linescore:

Mexico Waits For Response

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico, trying desperately to clear up the Olympic tangle, awaited today responses to their call for an International Olympic Committee executive session on South Africa's readmission to the Games.

At that session Mexico will try to convince the other members that admission of a racist South Africa to the 1968 Games constitutes a change of Olympic rules —a question that should be decided by a two-thirds majority instead of the simple majority that voted in Grenoble last month for its readmission.

Mexico's three top Olympic officials told a news conference last night they had sent telegrams to other executive committee representatives suggesting a meeting the first weekend in April. They suggested it be held either in Lausanne, Dublin Montreal, Chicago or Mexico City.

The three officials are Pedro Ramirez Vazquez, chairman of Mexico's Olympic organizing committee, and Mexican IOC delegates Jose Jesus Clark Flores and Marte R. Gomez, both of whom voted against readmission of South Africa. They flew to Chicago last week to present their thinking to IOC President Avery Brundage, who agreed to a meeting but said it might take as long as two months to convene.

So far 39 countries, grouped around an African bloc of 32, have said they will boycott as a protest against South Africa's policy of Apartheid.

Mexico, which by the end of the Games will have invested an estimated $70 million in them, stands to lose enormously if they are anything less than a success.

Still, Mexico denies any plan to cancel the Games if the boycott matures. Vazquez said Friday night it didn't matter what came: "We are preparing to receive all the youth we invited," he said.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

26 EDITORIAL PAGE San Rafael, Calif. Saturday, March 9, 1968

The Editor's Notebook

Tourist Dollars Provide Route To Tax Relief

MARIN HAS WITNESSED most of two decades of organized effort to attract industry.

First, the old payroll development committee of the San Rafael Chamber of Commerce put shoulder to the wheel. Out of that effort came the Marin Industrial Development Foundation.

These efforts enjoyed some success over the years. But as time passed and solid level land grew both scarcer and higher priced, it grew more difficult to attract outside industries to move to Marin. We still have considerable potential as a center for administrative headquarters for such as insurance companies and as headquarters for wholesale distribution facilities. But our manufacturing potential is limited.

WHERE DO WE TURN to broaden our tax base? That is, where do we look for new enterprises that will return more taxes to our city and county treasuries without running up the costs of government to provide more streets, more police, more schools, and other services?

Increasingly, the visitor industry is being recognized as having great potential for Marin.

The recent consolidation of the Marin Development Association and Marin Visitors Bureau in to the County Chamber of Commerce provides us with the machinery to move ahead.

These days, everybody attends conventions and meetings. Organizations of state or regional scope choose gathering places with interesting things to see and do, pleasant surroundings and equable climate.

Marin meets those criteria.

Our county should be a very attractive place for meetings and conventions.

Actually we attract very few.

The Lodge in Tiburon is our best facility, but it is small. Only those groups small enough to be accommodated by its limited size can gather there.

WHAT MARIN NEEDS is a meeting and convention-oriented motel complex with 100 or more sleeping rooms and the necessary meeting rooms, dining rooms and other ancillary facilities.

Building it in the vicinity of Northgate and the Civic Center on a piece of property large enough to provide for considerable future expansion should insure its success.

Initially as few as 60 rooms could provide a start, with planning for early doubling of capacity.

Various organizations of county officials would use it at once, attracted to Marin by the opportunity to inspect our Frank Lloyd Wright-designed Civic Center.

During county fair time and during much of the rest of the year when special events are held at the new Civic Center fairgrounds, there would be visitors to patronize the motel.

Commerce Clearing House soon will bring into being its conference center at Quail Hill, Northgate. This development can be counted upon to provide overflow business for a Northgate motel.

OPPORTUNITY IS KNOCKING at the door for some wise motel investor and some wise motel operating firm.

The combined Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau has the know-how and experience to provide the information necessary to induce motel investors and operators to locate here. And it can assist in attracting convention and meeting visitors when the new facility is ready for business.

WHAT DOES MARIN GAIN from this?

A statistically minded researcher once determined that an average of two dozen visitors per day are worth as much economically to a community as a new industry with a $100,000 per year payroll.

And you don't have to build schools and pay teachers to educate visitors' youngsters.

In a sense, it's a way we can obtain property tax relief for ourselves.

—Jack Craemer

Miracle In Grass

The grass is green and tall in Marin now. Grass on our hills is something we more or less take for granted. But the smallest blade of grass that grows in Marin this spring will perform complex chemical processes which man for all his genius is unable to duplicate in his great laboratories.

By the process known as photosynthesis, this tiniest blade of grass can take carbon dioxide and water and energy from the sun and produce carbohydrates. It can also make its own proteins from soil nitrogen.

If man could master the secrets of this little blade of grass mankind would never need go hungry and the spectre of famine would be abolished.

It's a miracle.

Do They Miss The All-Encompassing Purpose?

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

'Let State Operate Golden Gate Bridge'

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Nowaday someone is always taking over someone's business.

Now, according to an article in the Independent-Journal the Golden Gate Bridge directors want to take over the taxpayers' bridge.

I say, let the State Bridge Authority operate our bridge and let the bridge manager and directors look for another gravy train.

Time To Drop Curtain On Circus

Editor, Independent-Journal:

It is almost time to ring down the curtain on the Fairfax Circus. It has been a long run with many bad performances. Yet, it seems that someone would like to have the circus continue for I have seen posters in Fairfax that remind me of the ones I used to see announcing the arrival of a circus.

The citizens of Fairfax will soon have the opportunity to restore dignity to the city government. In the forthcoming election there are candidates who will truly give the people a voice by listening to their wishes and suggestions, and will respect the people for their expressions.

I urge the voters of Fairfax to establish April 9 as a record in the number of votes cast. Fairfax needs a lot (not a little) change, and the people have the power to make the change. When this change is made it will still be important to attend council meetings. But, in the event a meeting conflicts with a favorite television program, you will, at least, be able to view the program in comfort knowing that your city government is in good hands, councilmen who are concerned with your welfare.

Proper Punishment For Young Vandals

Editor, Independent-Journal:

I am very upset over the vandalism caused by the 10 teen-agers at Point Reyes National Seashore on Saturday.

My suggestion along with several of my friends, for their offense the punishment should be picking up every piece of toilet paper that was strewn, walking (no rides). See that they personally repair all damage to the building and repay the cost of the toilet paper and any other supplies.

I also would suggest they not return until they have achieved, if possible, some semblance of maturity.

Mrs. LLOYD SEITZINGER
Mill Valley

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Regarding the youths accused of litter in Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, I for one would like to see them sentenced to picking up the highway from the point of capture to point of origin to be done on each weekend for as long as the job takes. The job should entail all trash as much of their own has by now disappeared or been cleaned up by others. What better way to impress upon these youngsters the impact of their thoughtlessness?

And why not use this constructive approach, with equal publicity accorded the act itself, for other vandalism.

The New Math: 56 Pct. Minority

Editor, Independent-Journal:

The "majority" of our society has of recent years contributed considerably to the welfare of the "minority," which cannot be debated.

I note from your article (Alioto Doctors His City) on page 27, March 2, the statement, "The city's Negro community now composes 12 per cent of the total population, and minority groups account for 56 per cent of the public school enrollment . . .".

56 per cent is a minority?

Let us stop and think about this a moment.

Hospital Report Delayed Despite Need For Action

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

A special Senate fact-finding committee set up last fall to check on reports of poor care at Sonoma and Napa state hospitals was to give its findings to the Senate in early February, but its report has been delayed repeatedly.

The reason for the unexplained delay is obscure, but apparently is because the three senators on the committee have failed to agree on the text of their report. The three are John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael; Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, and George R. Moscone, D-San Francisco.

Drafts of the committee's report have been before McCarthy twice. The first time, he sent it back for more staff work. A second draft was put on his desk this week.

Collier said on Jan. 16 that he will push for appointment of a governor's task force to study all aspects of care of the mentally retarded. In an interview, he said the committee's tour of Sonoma State Hospital found "a very unsatisfactory care program."

McCarthy told the Independent-Journal the same day he would have no recommendations on either hospital until he met with Collier and Moscone to prepare a report.

The Sonoma hospital, incidentally, is the state institution serving mentally retarded children and adults from Marin. And it is the largest mental hospital in the western United States.

The question of care there would seem important enough to get the committee off the dime, regardless of the politics of the issue.

MICHAEL WORNUM, Mill Valley city councilman, must be keeping his nose to the grindstone. A beautiful blonde interviewed him at his home this week for a television story on the city council's anti-war vote. He was totally unaware that she was Pia Lindstrom until his wife saw the interview that night. He was uncertain whether such ignorance would help him get the female vote in his supervisoral campaign.

JEREMY ETS-HOKIN of Ross, according to a San Francisco columnist, "is thinking heavily about running for Congress against Phil Burton, and has $50,000 with which to fly a few test balloons."

The item made good column material, but was wrong on a few facts. First, Ets-Hokin does not even live in Burton's district. He lives in the district of Rep. William S. Mailliard. Second, he is on Mailliard's finance committee, he said.

And third, said Ets-Hokin, he would not consider running unless the columnist were his finance chairman, "because he's the only one who knows where there's $50,000."

EX-CONVICT HELPS OTHERS REFORM

Sentenced at 17 for armed robbery, a former convict now spends his time trying to help other prisoners to go straight once they leave jail.

Tanks to then Warden Clinton Duffy at San Quentin, Bill Sands finally saw that his life of crime was a long road to nowhere. A few years after his parole, he was jolted into doing something for convicts by the execution of a former cellmate.

Sands began giving hard-hitting talks to prisoners soon to be released. Of the 5,000 men he has worked with, 4,500 are still out of jail. Of the nation's 300,000 convicts, 70 per cent return to prison.

Now working through the Seventh Step Foundation which he set up, Sands' influence reaches eight prisons. His seventh step towards rehabilitation is: "When you're finally free, help others who were in the same fix."

Nothing convinces like proven experience. God can work wonders through those who learn the hard way that only by serving others does life become meaningful.

Spending Abroad May Solve Hunger Problem

By EVERETT McKINLEY DIRKSEN

In the Foreign Aid Bill for the fiscal year 1968 the Congress included $50 million for population studies to be made in the countries of Latin America. You may wonder why we are so interested in the increase of human beings in lands outside our borders. There is a valid reason for it.

The population explosion over the earth is a human glacier that moves slowly, but inexorably, in upon us with the threat of a terrible future of misery and servitude. We have been told so many times that too many people will bring on starvation; that there will not be enough food on earth to feed the billions to be born before the year 2000. What we need to be told is what starvation, that may be brought down upon us in a world of 4 billion people by 1975, 6 billion by 1990, 7 billion by the year 2000, may do to our freedom.

IN ALL of the ages past, the population of the world has been kept down by the ancient solutions of flood, pestilence, starvation and war. In this enlightened age we have done fairly well against flood. We have practically defeated pestilence. Some day we may even do away with war. We know how to prevent starvation, but knowing how and actually doing it is one of the most frustrating problems ever to face man.

The study of the populations of South and Central America will seek a base for solution of the difference between an increase in the production of food and the greater increase in the production of humans. The statistics show that in a seven-year period in Latin America, there was an increase of 10 per cent in food production. That is a heartening example of progress.

But the population in Latin America has increased by 17 per cent. How long will it be before starvation clamps down on those nations?

It isn't only that the human glacier is spreading over the earth and using up ever more areas of productive land. People are living longer. In the days of the Roman Empire the life expectancy was 25 years. In 1968, it is 70 years plus. The population explodes and the people live longer. The average age of the 7 billion people of the year 2000 will probably be higher than it is today.

WHAT ABOUT food production right now, in 1968?

There is today a hungry half of the world — the continents that include India, China, other countries of Asia, and countries in Africa and Latin America. To provide food to meet their expanding populations, it is estimated that more than 11 times as much fertilizer will be needed as was used in 1966, that $17 billion of capital investment is needed to produce and distribute that fertilizer.

The human glacier continues to move on and it will need — besides fertilizer — land, water, machinery, technology. And huge amounts of capital.

The human glacier could be dangerous to the freedom of the whole world. Consider what would happen if wretchedness born of hunger should explode from sparks in countries such as India and China, into international violence.

You and I do not live in the hungry half of the world. Our half is a place of prosperity where we have not felt the heavy hopelessness of starvation. Probably we never will.

But starvation can affect us nevertheless.

Population explosion and the result — starvation — could ultimately require in many of the vast areas of the world government control of everything: control of birth, control of land and the size of farms, control of everything that is eaten and everything that we wear on our backs.

Then the free world will have gone full circle from freedom to servitude.

Canal Treaties Again Play Role In Panama Election

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

"It's only about 30 feet across Fourth of July Avenue," wrote a UPI correspondent in Panama in 1964. "But it might as well be 300. Nobody is coming across any more."

Those sentences about summed up the bitterness existing then between residents of the American controlled Panama Canal Zone and the Panamanians who since 1903 have resented the treaty which they believed made them second-class citizens in their own land.

Twenty-one persons had just died in another of the periodic violent anti-American outbursts which through the years have marred relations between the two countries.

THIS WEEK Panamanians turned momentarily from their favorite occupation of damning the United States to take up their next most favorite, which is internal politics.

This involved the possible impeachment of President Marco Aurelio Robles.

The charge—that he had violated the constitution by backing a government candidate in the presidential election scheduled for May 12.

Opposition Christian Democrats brought the original charge, later to be enthusiastically joined by the five-party National Union whose candidate is Dr. Arnulfo Arias, twice before elected president and twice ousted.

Arias generally is expected to be the winner again this year.

SO FAR as the United States is concerned, were it anywhere else, the dispute would be a tempest in a teapot. But as always, any political upheaval in Panama achieves extraordinary importance because of the canal.

Since taking office in October, 1964, Robles has walked a political tightrope attempting to hold together his patchwork coalition government made up of eight of Panama's 19 political parties.

Last summer, after two and a half years of negotiating, the Robles government and the United States finally reached agreement on new treaties covering the canal and the Panama Canal Zone.

The new treaties would scrap the treaty of 1903 which gave the United States the right to build a canal and to maintain it in perpetuity. They would give Panama more revenue from the present canal and would integrate the zone into the rest of Panama.

The agreements also provided for study of the possibility of building a new sea-level canal which eventually would come completely under Panamanian control.

DESPITE WHAT seemed to be a fair agreement, the treaties still have not been ratified by Panama.

In December when maneuverings for the coming elections got under way in earnest, Robles' coalition fell apart. Four parties and part of a fifth deserted the government to support Arias.

Arias, an associate of Panama's extremely nationalists, including the Communists, already has indicated he will attempt to tear up the treaties apart.

Vietnam Woes, Election Widen 'Credibility Gap'

By MERRIMAN SMITH
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Johnson is up against an almost insolvable problem of trying to explain his Vietnam policy to the public without endangering national security or causing injurious diplomatic embarrassment.

The burgeoning political season seems certain to escalate the problem. Some administration critics even this early in an election year see the political gold to be mined in the credibility gap."

Johnson's critics are putting the situation in terms far removed from national security considerations. They simply charge that the administration is so concerned about making itself look good that its spokesmen, from the top down, aren't telling the American public the truth. This charge includes far more than the progress of the war, but it is centered on Vietnam and the conflicting views that the public sometimes gets from government officials and from its newspapers and television.

Probably at no time since the 1962 Cuban missile crisis have government policy makers been so concerned over how the public best can be kept informed without disclosing secrets. The Communist attacks on South Vietnam's cities brought the matter to a painful head.

The President at a Feb. 2 news conference called the Viet Cong efforts a "complete failure," but as new reports come in from the field, "complete failure" became a highly relative term.

It became increasingly clear the Communists had achieved a far-reaching dislocation of the South Vietnamese population, inflicted grievous wounds and distracted Gen. William C. Westmoreland from a pressing military problem, the defense of Khe Sanh, a symbolic as well as strategic allied stronghold close to the Demilitarized Zone.

This period also was marked by the start of a series of "backgrounders." This is the label given by newsmen to meetings at which high administration officials—from LBJ on down—offer explanatory details behind a shield of anonymity in hopes of improving public understanding of such tangled situations as Vietnam.

"Background" briefings may be held for reporters, congressmen, industrial and labor union executives—in fact for just about everybody except the general public which is the ultimate target of this behind-the-hand system of information.

For the reporter, these sessions can be either rewarding or frustrating. A government official may tell a group of newsmen something entirely off the record and then a few days later say almost the same thing in a public speech or at an open press conference.

Most often the material is for "background." This means the reporter or columnist may write it but may not attribute it, not even by vague references, to "administration sources."

Reporters, and even Congressmen, have no reliable way of knowing, of course, when the administration is trying to sell a pet idea or when it really is providing non-secret information—a help to public understanding.

The dividing line can be thin.

A cabinet officer, later identified as Secretary of State Dean Rusk, who freuentlng engages in this sort of procedure, held two interesting briefings in the wake of the Viet Cong attacks. One involved a large group of House and Senate members. The other was for reporters. Both concerned administration policy in Vietnam.

During the session with reporters, one of the newsmen asked whether there had been an intelligence breakdown in connection with the Viet Cong offensive. When the reporter persisted in his questioning, the official demanded angrily, "Which side are you on?"

The official made the point that "I'm on your side" and went on to say that "none of your papers or your broadcasting apparatus are worth a damn unless the United States succeeds. They are trivial compared to that question." He continued:

"So I don't know why, to win a Pulitzer prize, people have to go probing for things one can bitch about when there are two thousand stories on the same day about things that are more constructive in character."

Wire service and other reporters who wrote stories about the exchange dutifully protected the official's identity. But as is often the case, he was identified as Rusk a few days later by a Wall Street Journal reporter who was not present and thereby did not feel bound by the ground rules.

Meantime, there were other criss-crossing developments:

The President himself told a group of visiting college students of discussions he had with Pope Paul VI in his pre-Christmas visit to the Vatican—and in terms which he previously had put "off the record" in talks with White House reporters.

This had to do with his one-day extension of the Christmas truce, as requested by the Pope.

Johnson is not the first high official to have problems in this area, of course. Dwight D. Eisenhower said that during his service as World War II allied commander, he stopped reading daily newspapers to avoid confusion between what might have been announced officially or cleared as "background," and what might have crossed his desk as "classified." Eisenhower said after the war that shading between public knowledge and operational secrets could be quite delicate.

The President held a series of meetings to let key House and Senate members hear Rusk, Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara and Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. They covered North Korea's seizure of the U.S.S. Pueblo as well as the Vietnam War.

As these so-called private conferences continued, the problem of the average reader or listener can only be imagined. How is he to judge the validity of statements coming out of Saigon when measured against Washington stories based on such background sessions? The answer shapes up something like this:

Military communiques within their taut language are generally factual, but not necessarily complete.

Statements made in a White House or State Department briefing for members of Congress might be embroidered or emphasized out of context for political purposes. Knowing that such information is bound to be "leaked," governments at odds with each other even communicate this way.

No national administration is anxious to own up to derogatory facts, unless forced to do so at the business end of either Congressional investigation or court action. Despite the furor over the Gulf of Tonkin resolution, Congress shows no disposition to conduct a full-scale inquiry into the war.

This government could not admit, at least not on the record, the degree to which problems do exist in South Vietnam. Otherwise, the Thieu-Ky government might come into more difficult days than it now knows.

If this government were to admit that the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese plastered the Allies in the south, the uproar in Congress, which appropriates money for the Southeast Asian conflict, could be overwhelming.

One answer from the administration's standpoint would be to declare a state of national emergency which probably would lead in turn to a voluntary censorship code. But that inevitably would ignite angry political controversy and no one in government above the rank of elevator operator is willing to discuss it openly.

Which leaves the Johnson Administration—like others before it in time of crisis—dependent on the present system with its attendant public confusion over public policy. Except now it's known as the credibility gap.

DESPITE NIXON'S FATE

Finch Urges 1968 Television Debates

SACRAMENTO (AP) — "For Nixon, the television debates had been disaster."

That is the opening line of Chapter 12 of Theodore H. White's book, "The Making of the President 1960," a detailed analysis of how John F. Kennedy became President.

The man who was Richard M. Nixon's campaign director in 1960, California Lt. Gov. Robert H. Finch, disagrees to this day White's assessment that the "Great Debates" cost Nixon the election.

And Finch would match Nixon in televised Great Debates of 1968 against whomever is the Democratic nominee, even if it should be another Kennedy.

The concept of television debates between candidates has become "sort of an integral part of the fabric of campaign exposure," Finch said during an interview in his second floor Capitol office.

"I think the public expects it," he added.

It is the most graphic way to show the people that real differences do exist between the two major parties and their candidates, Finch said. The need is acute in 1968, when fringe parties of "the far right and the far left" are attempting to convince voters there is no real choice between Republicans and Democrats.

Finch, publicly neutral so far in the maneuvering for the GOP presidential nomination, believes Nixon "would eagerly anticipate" debating President Johnson or whomever the Democratic candidate is, including New York Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, the late President's brother.

Whomever the Republicans nominate should challenge the Democrats, he added.

He doubts, however, that Johnson would be willing to appear on the same platform with his opponent.

Recalling 1960, Finch said there never was any question about Nixon debating Kennedy. It was inevitable, he said, and for Nixon to have attempted to back out would have been "the height of folly."

Many political second-guessers have contended that the debate gave Kennedy the great public exposure he needed to win the election. Thus, they said, Nixon made a grave mistake in debating Kennedy at all.

Finch agrees "there's no question it gave Kennedy a forum . . . and Kennedy projected well."

But Finch contends the Democratic nominee already had tremendous public exposure. Kennedy was leading in the public opinion polls going into the debates in September and October 1960, Finch noted.

"The poll figures never changed that substantially" after the debates, Finch said. "All the way through (the campaign) they were always very close."

The major television networks were anxious to stage the debates so they could recoup some of the image they lost during the giveaway program scandals in the late 1950s, Finch said.

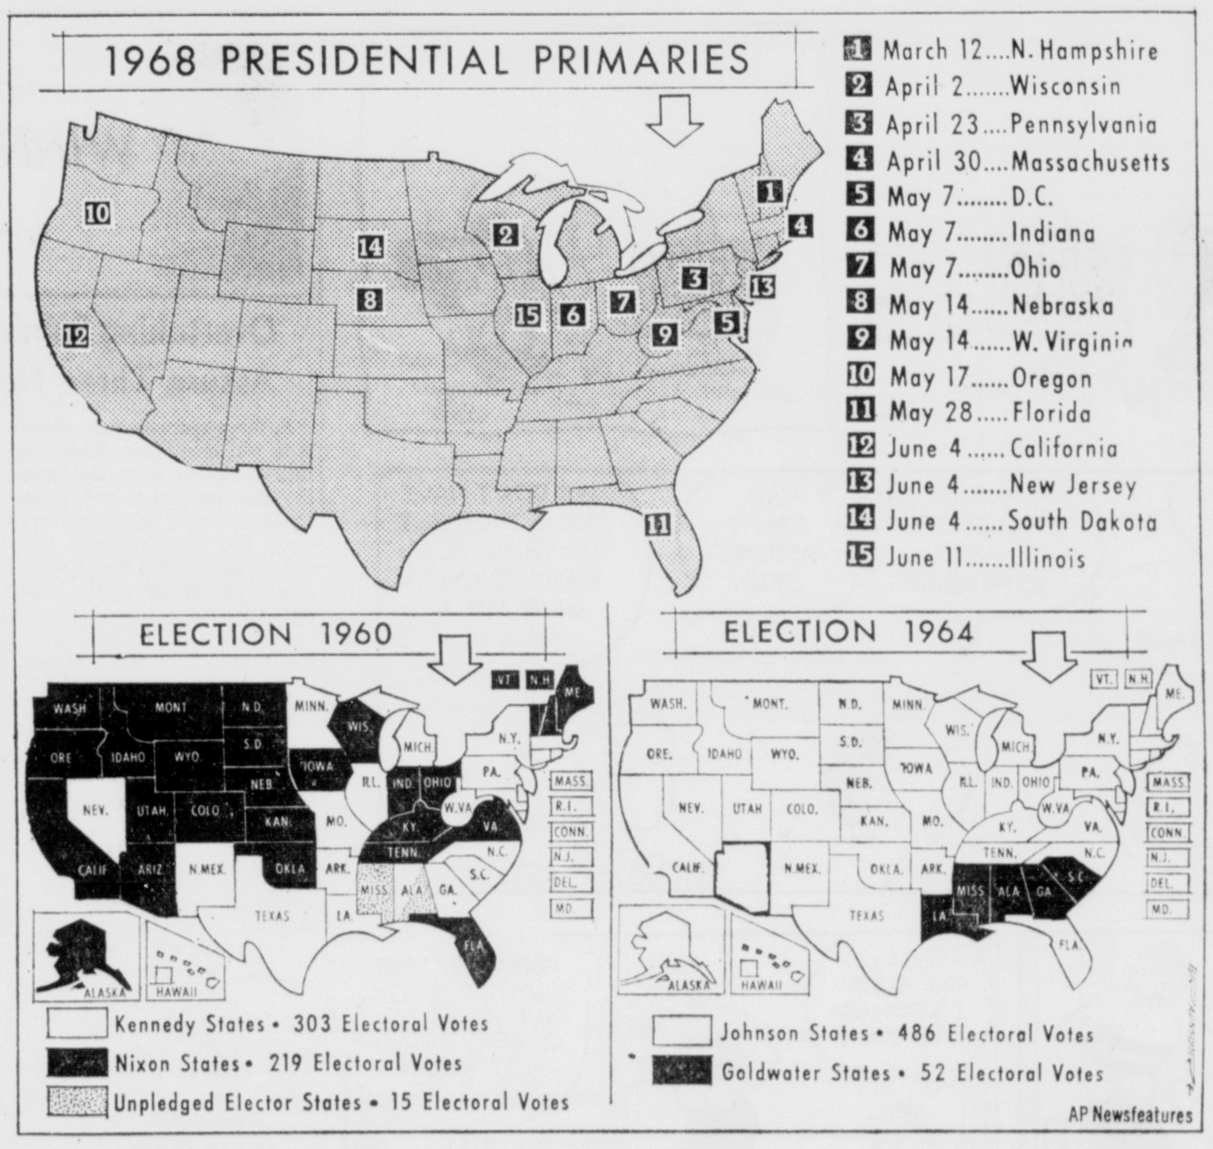
A law was pushed through Congress, and signed by then-President Eisenhower, permitting the two major party candidates to debate without having to give free and equal television time to splinter party candidates.

Thus, Finch added, "there never was any question about the debates."

The basic mistake was when Nixon went ahead with the first debate on schedule even though he was tired and not fully recovered from an operation for an injured knee.

"The vice president . . . was tense, almost frightened, at turns glowering and, occasionally, haggard-looking to the point of sickness," White wrote in "The Making of the President."

Finch comments, "We should have delayed the debate."



TINY BELLWETHER STATE

All Eyes On New England Primary

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

New Hampshire is not a very big state, about 180 miles long by an average of 50 miles wide. You can drive anywhere in the state in three hours. And it doesn't carry a lot of political weight; only four electoral votes.

Yet all eyes are on the Granite State as it holds the nation's first presidential primary of the year. Political pundits and pollsters have traveled the length and breadth of the state for months, following the campaigners, probing the political plasticity of its natives.

And with last-minute drop-outs and write-ins, the stage was set for the first big dramatic production of the 1968 presidential year, on March 12.

Interest was primarily on the rivalry between campagning Republicans, the oppostion party. Polls for the past months showed former Vice President Richard M. Nixon far in the GOP lead — and they apparently convinced Michigan Gov. George Romney. Romney dropped out of the presidential race altogether barely two weeks before the New Hampshire primary.

But suddenly New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller leaped into the spotlight vacated by Romney. Though the Republican governor is not on the New Hampshire primary ballot and had previously declared he was not a presidential candidate, he announced recently he would accept a draft for the nomination. This took on added significance when Romney dropped out, and a Rockefeller write-in was stepped up in New Hampshire.

From New Hampshire, the candidates aim at the Wisconsin primary, the nation's second, on April 2. It's followed by a primary in Pennsylvania April 23 and in Massachusetts April 30. The District of Columbia, Indiana and Ohio hold their primaries May 7, followed by Nebraska and West Virginaia on May 14, Oregon on May 17 and Florida on May 28.

California, New Jersey and South Dakota voters go to the primary polls June 4 and the final presidential primary is June 11 in Illinois.

In addition to these 15 presidential primaries in which the ballot gives the voter some way to indicate his choice for the nomination, two other states, New York and Alabama, provide for primary election of national convention delegates. In neither state, however, do the presidential preferences of the would-be delegates appear on the ballot.

There are two kinds of presidential primaries. They are sometimes held separately and sometimes one in conjunction with the other.

One is the presidential preference poll in which names of prospective nominees are printed on the ballot and the voter may mark his preference. These polls may or may not be binding on the convention delegates from the state.

The other is the delegate election in which voters choose the actual delegates to go to the national conventions. This year, the Republican convention is to be held in Miami Aug. 5 and the Democrats gather in Chicago three weeks later.

Much Grumbling, Little Action About State Income Tax Boost

By CAPITOL NEWS SERVICE

One of the biggest issues in California politics today, other than the war in Vetnam, is the huge increase in state income tax that will hit the pocketbooks on April 15.

But, unlike the war, where there are a lot of suggestions from both directions, no one has any plans to do anything about the personal income tax bite.

Of the 120 members of the Legislature, the seats of 100 are up for reelection and, so far, 97 have plans to seek another term. Most all of them are concerned about the mail they're receiving on the income tax but the concern is about as far as they go.

The boost in the income tax was part of the over-all tax increase bill of 1967 — largest enacted in any state. It was necessary to pick up some deficits in state government that had been developing over the years.

The 1967 law boosted the rates and narrowed the brackets at which a wage earner moved from one bracket into another. But more important for the middle-class taxpayers, it substituted tax credits for exemptions for family dependents.

Consider the case of the man with a wife and four children earning $12,000 a year in adjusted gross, with $3,000 in deductions for mortgage interest, taxes and medical expenses. Under the old system, he would have paid $36. This year he'll pay about $50.

Many taxpayers thus are shocked to find that the income tax increase — billed during the 1967 session as a 70 per cent increase — is going up by two to seven times.

What are the state's lawmakers doing about it? They are viewing with alarm and seriously considering, and that's about all.

"I've heard a lot of talk," said Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh, D-Inglewood, "but that's all. I haven't heard anything in Unruh, D-Inglewood, "but that's GOP counterpart, Assemblyman Robert T. Monagan, R-Tracy, said it's not at all likely that anything will be done this year. Any changes made in 1968 wouldn't take effect until 1970.

Sen. George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach, was the author of the tax increase bill last year. "I've heard nothing official from the administration about considering any changes." Deukmejian said. "I realize a lot of people are unhappy.

"The big problem is that the people have to pay in a lump sum," he said.

Casinos Must Tattle On Big Bingo Winners

By RICHARD E. MEYER

RENO, Nev. (AP)—Next time you're in Nevada and you bingo in a big way, the casinos will report you to the Internal Revenue Service.

You can bet it's not the casinos' idea.

Therein smolders a bitter dispute decided somewhat amicably last week by a tax ruling.

For years, federal tax men did not enforce an IRS code requiring casinos to report the names of people who win $600 or more.

Last year, IRS District Director Warren Bates decided it was time to enforce the code in Nevada.

"Hostile to the gaming industry," said Gov. Paul Laxalt.

If privacy of the player is denied, said executive director Gabriel Vogliotti of the Nevada Resort Association, the tax code "will literally end Nevada's major industry."

So the governor headed a Nevada delegation, including the state's biggest gambler, William Harrah, and representatives of one of its newest gamblers, Howard Hughes, to Washington, D.C., to talk to IRS Commissioner Sheldon Cohen.

The gamblers pointed out, Laxalt said, that keno, slot machines and bingo are different from normal business transactions becuase they are "fast action operations."

Then came the decision:

Slot machine payoffs will be exempt along with blackjack, roulette and other bigger-money games.

Reports on keno payoffs will be made on a sliding scale, still to be spelled out.

But, effective April 1, winners at bingo — just like the winners at the church socials back home — who come away with $600 or more will have to have their names turned in.

This Week In The World

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Senate members decided during the week to stop talking and act. They voted by the narrowest possible margin to shut off debate on the proposed civil rights bill.

Since Congress convened Jan. 15 a group of Southern Democrats and some Republicans had kept the Senate from acting by talking, sometimes to a virtually empty chamber. They had hoped to kill the bill by keeping the Senate in inaction.

But Wednesday the Senate voted 62 to 32 to invoke closure, the rule that limits debate by each senator to one hour, after three previous attempts failed. The vote was the exact twothirds required to enact closure and it was only the eighth time the Senate had invoked the rule since it was adopted in 1917.

After the vote, the bipartisan coalition backing the compromise bill beat back a series of amendments that would have made it virtually ineffective.

Senate conservatives did succeed in tacking on several antiriot measures, some with the backing of the bill's sponsors, and at the week's end the upper chamber was dealing with some of the 80 other proposed amendments.

Rights backers kept intact their major goal—a broad ban on housing dicrimination.

Chances for passage of the bill in the Senate appeared excellent. In the House, which passed a rights bill two years ago only to see it die in the Senate, prospects for the bill appeared gloomy.

Around The World; Around The Clock:

Saigon—American deaths in Vietnam for the week were 542, one short of the record, as both sides continued their offensives throughout the country. The American command said enemy dead for the week totaled 3,849.

Washington—Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., set off the strongest Senate attack yet on President Johnson's Vietnam policy when he demanded Congress be consulted before any more American troops are committed to the war.

Washington—President Johnson broke his silence on the report of his Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders by saying the report should be read along with his own congressional messages on civil rights and aid to the cities. He did not comment on the commission's conclusion that a major cause of racial rioting has been white racism.

Geneva—The United States, the Soviet Union and Britain pledged to aid non-nuclear nations threatened by "nuclear blackmail." This was an effort to appease nations that have balked at giving up all rights to develop nuclear weapons.

Salisbury, Rhodesia—Rhodesia hanged three black Africans convicted of murder in defiance of Queen Elizabeth's royal reprieve.

Vatican City—Bishop Terence James Cooke, 47, was named by Pope Paul to replace the late Francis Cardinal Spellman as Roman Catholic Archbishop of New York. Bishop Cook, 47, a native New Yorker, had been serving as one of Spellman's auxiliaries.

Belle Isle, La.—A fire in the shaft of a mammoth salt mine trapped 21 miners 1,200 feet below the surface. The bodies were found yesterday.

Baker, Calif. — A Greyhound bus loaded with passengers collided headon with a car going the wrong way on an interstate highway, killing 20 persons and injuring 12 others.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Overtaking Spade From Dummy Can Assure Three Notrump Victory

At three notrump your object is to win nine tricks. When the time comes to score the hand, the only question is how many tricks you won in all, not how many you won in this or that suit. South missed this obvious point when he played the hand shown today.

IN DUMMY

West led the ten of spades, and dummy's jack held the first trick, much to South's delight. He led the ace of diamonds from dummy to see how the suit would break — and he didn't like what he saw.

It was now impossible to capture West's queen of diamonds. When West got in with his queen he switched to clubs, and East ran five tricks to defeat the contract. West had to get out of the way with his queen of clubs, but he was up to the play, and South was down two.

SHOULD OVERTAKE

South's contract didn't depend on winning three spade tricks. He should overtake dummy's jack of spades at the first trick in order to lead the nine of diamonds for a finesse. This play guarantees the contract.

FINESSE WINS

As the cards lie, the finesse wins. South continues with another diamond finesse, taking seven diamonds, two spades and the ace of hearts. If the diamond finesse happened to lose, South would take one trick less, but his contract would still be safe since East cannot attack clubs safely.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid four hearts.

This jump shows strong trump support (usually five cards) with a singleton or void on the side and not more than nine points in high cards. Some experts would bid two clubs and jump to four hearts later, fearing that an immediate jump to four hearts might miss a good slam. Either method is sound, but the immediate jump to game is better with a doubtful partner.

Free Hormones For Youngsters

SYDNEY, Australia (SS) — Swarf children are to get a hormone as a free benefit. The human growth hormone (HGH) will be extracted from human pituitary glands by the Australian government's commonwealth serum laboratories.

State governments are cooperating by collecting pituitary glands from hospitals and pathologists. The pituitary, a small gland at the base of the brain, is normally removed in postmortem examinations.

Health Minister A. J. Forbes says Australia would be the first country to make HGH available to the whole community, not just to selective groups for experimental purposes.

SAN RAFAEL CHURCH

Oxnard Pastor Accepts Call To First Presbyterian Church

Dr. Charles Griffin, pastor of the Oxnard First Presbyeterian Church, has accepted a call by the San Rafael First Prebyterian Church to become its senior minister.

The church has been without a chief pastor since August of last year when Rev. Wesley Baker left for an assignment in New York. Since then the pulpit has been filled by guest ministers.

Dr. Griffin preached to the congregation on Feb. 18. Following his sermon, a unanimous vote was cast to call him. He will assume the post on May 1.

Dr. Griffin's name will be presented for approval at a meeting on March 20 in Santa Rosa of the Redwoods Presbytery. Approval by the presbytery is a formality required by church statue.

The new pastor has been at Oxnard since 1964. Prior to that he was on the staff of the Pasadena First Presbyterian Church for seven years while working on a doctorate of education degree at University of Southern California.

A graduate of San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo in 1951, his first pastorate was at San Juan Capistrano. Following his first California assignment, he was pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Golden, Colo.

A native of Omaha, Neb., Dr. Griffin received his bachelors and masters degrees in engineering from Northwestern University at Evanston, Ill. He was associated with Carter Oil Co. prior to call to the ministry. He served in the Navy during World War II.

The 43-year-old minister and his wife, Camilla, have two daughters, 10 and 16, and a son, 14.

Since 1928, the church has had only two senior ministers. Dr. John J. Canoles resigned in June 1959 afer serving for 31 years. Reverend Baker accepted the post in January 1960, serving until last summer when he resigned to become associated with the United Presbyterian Church, U.S.A. in ecumenical relations.

LENTEN GUEST — Dr. C. James Miller, director of seminary development at San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo, will be pulpit speaker tomorrow and next Sunday at the First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael. He will also give a series of Lenten lectures at 7 p.m. tomorrow, next Sunday and March 24 and 31. Theme will be "Is Christianty Dead?"

Church Assuming Watchdog Roles

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP) — An enterprising Protestant denomination is taking on some unusual tasks, including an effort to let people know what individual congressmen think about the Vietnam war.

"This is a prime moral concern of our times," said Rev. Dr. Everett Parker, director of the Office of Communications of the United Church of Christ.

"We think it's important to help encourage a fuller clarification of viewpoints between government representatives and the public on this whole matter of peace."

The United Church, a two-million-member communion which has pioneered concrete steps in the cause of Christian reunion, also has undertaken several other uncommon projects, including:

Setting up watchdog committees in local communities to keep check on radio and television broadcasts, on the lookout against the airing of material reflecting bias against Negroes.

Establishing community groups to guard against extremist tactics to villify individual public leaders, educators, ministers or institutions by loose accusations or name-calling on the air, or otherwise.

The objective, Dr. Parker said, is "not censorship but balance"—to try to see to it that misleading impressions aren't being foisted on the citizenry about persons or programs by one-sided attacks, from left or right.

Both of the broadcast-monitoring projects have been underwritten by foundations, the one on extremism by grants totalling $85,000 from the Field Foundation and the AFL-CIO, and the one on racism by a $160,000 grant from the Ford Foundation.

Under the plan for guarding against racially distorted broadcasts, steps were under way this week to form local committees in 10 Southern cities, with others to be formed later in many other places, including the Northern communities.

"We'll go into any community where responsible groups want us to come," Dr. Parker said.

Local committees are given guidance on analyzing broadcasts for possible discriminatory material, and when patterns of bias are discovered, evidence is to be documented and discussed with station management.

If, and only if, that effort fails to correct the situation, action would be taken to formally monitor and record allegedly biased programs, with findings and petitions against station license renewal presented to the Federal Communications Commission.

While the various projects are a new sort of operation for a religious body, the United Church is experienced at innovation and initiative.

The denomination itself, a merger of the independent-minded Congregational Christian Churches of British origin and the Evangelical and Reformed Church of German origin, is the first merger in the nation's history to unite traditions of different governing styles and national backgrounds.

One of the denomination's pastors, Rev. Dr. David Colwell, of Washington, is chairman of the Consultation on Church Union, an effort to unite 10 major denominations.

Youth Rally To Attract Novatans

Approximately 59 young people from Novato will attend one of two Encounter Youth Rallies tomorrow, according to Rev. Wayne S. Jarboe of the First Baptist Church of Novato.

The two Rallies will be held at the First Baptist Church of Fairfield and the First Methodist Church of Sonoma.

Purpose of the rallies is to inform youth between the ages of 13 and 25 of the roles they can take in church activities.

"One of the charges made by youth today against the organized churches is that of omitting youth from their plannnig," Reverend Jarboe said.

Episcopal Church Says Attendance Showing Decrease

NEW YORK (UPI)—Average attendance in the Episcopal Church is steadily decreasing, especially in big city areas, according to a recent report of the denomination's General Division of Research and Field Study.

The report, carried in The Episcopalian, said baptized membership of the church increased 2.6 per cent in the years 1963-66. Average attendance at Sunday services in the Church's eight provinces in those years dropped from 48.6 per cent of the baptized membership in 1963 to 44.9 per cent in 1966.

The report said the trend may be partially explained by the decreasing birth rate in the United States since 1957.

Twilight Retreat Is Slated Thursday

Rev. Peter Sammon, chaplain for the Newman Club at San Francisco State College, will present a twilight retreat at San Rafael's St. Raphel's Catholic Chucrch at 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

Title of Father Sammon's discussion will be "The Crisis of Our Youth — A Search for Identity." The retreat is being sponsored by St. Raphel's Mothers' Guild. It will be held in the church school auditorium.

'Be Faithful'

PEMBROKE, N.C. (AP) — Rev. Lonnie W. Jacobs, completing 50 years of service as pastor of the Mount Airy Baptist Church, offered this answer on how to stay pastor of the same church for so long: "Just try to be faithful in the Lord's work . . . lead the people, and not boss them."

BOLD SOLUTIONS

Young Churchmen Seek Spontaneity

By LOUIS CASSELS
U.P. International

Young people who find church-going a drag might dig the kind of worship services held by the early Christians.

So says a noted Protestant theologian, Dr. Harvey Cox of Harvard Divinity School.

In an interview with Colloquy, a monthly magazine published by the United Church of Christ, Dr. Cox discusses a problem that is painfully familiar to parents and pastors. And he suggests some bold solutions.

"Young people tend to be fed up with churches in which worship is stifled by deadly decorum," he says. They simply are not interested in taking part in the traditional type of cultic worship in which people gather at certain times and in particular holy places to follow an accepted order of ritual. This applies to many young adults as well as teen-agers.

But these same young people, Dr. Cox observes, "have been favorably impressed when they visited Negro churches." They were "thrilled to find among Negro Christians the joyousness and spontaneity lacking in their own churches."

Dr. Cox is realistic enough to know that suburban white Protestant congregations are not going to abandon their accustomed ways overnight. Nor does he think they should. Such a drastic change would be unfair to the large number of church members "for whom inherited cultic worship has enormous significance."

Instead, he argues that "it will be necessary in the next couple of decades for two different overlapping forms of church life" to co-exist. Thus, while continuing its traditional services, a church could also offer opportunities for more informal worship.

Dr. Cox says that the original practices of the early Christian community provide an excellent guide for experiments in making worship more meaningful and appealing to today's young people.

"The earliest gatherings of the followers of Jesus . . . lacked the cultic solemnity of most contemporary worship," he says. "These Christians gathered for what they called the breaking of bread—that is, the sharing of a common meal.

"They had bread and wine, recalled the words of Jesus, read letters from the apostles and other groups of Christians, exchanged ideas, sang, and prayed. Their worship services were rather uproarious affairs . . . more like the victory celebrations of a football team than what we usually call worship today."

Experiments in recapturing the spontaneous joy and fellowship of early Christian worship are already underway in some congregations. They often take the form of "Agape Feasts," (agape being the Greek word used in the New Testament to describe unselfish Christian love for others). An Agape Feast is a fellowship meal into which is interwoven an informal celebration of holy communion.

Experiments are also being conducted—some of them in such august centers of traditional worship as Washington Episcopal Cathedral.

Novato Church Installs New Council Officers

Glen Grewe was installed last Sunday as president of the 24-member church council of the Good Shepherd Lutheran Church of Novato by Rev. Stanley Jervik.

James Adair is vice president. Mrs. Lynn Childs is secretary and Fred Stokes, financial secretary. William Radke is the treasurer. Robert Grehn is the head usher and Mrs. Ment Goehring, the Sunday school superintendent.

Robert Sletten is the chairman of the evangelism and worship Committee. James Adair heads stewardship; Hans Sommer, education; Calvin Thacker, parish activities, and Ment Goehring, chairman of the property and management.

More Special Lenten Rites Are Announced

Two more Marin churches are presenting special Sunday Lenten services.

At Westminster Presbyterian Church in Tiburon, Rev. George Walker Jr. will preach tomorrow on "Taking God Seriously," a parable on the great feast.

At Grace Lutheran Church in Novato, Rev. Robert F. Fickenscher is presenting double Lenten sermons on Sunday mornings and on Wednesday evenings.

TOPIC TOMORROW

Tomorrow Reverend Fickenscher will discuss, "The Sexual Revolution." The series will continue through Palm Sunday with topics on alcoholism, poverty, drugs and war.

Next Wednesday's service at 7:30 p.m. will be on "People Surrounding Calvary." Succeeding Wednesday evening sermons will be on Peter, Pilate and John.

Sunday services at Grace Lutheran are held at 8:30 and 11 a.m. with Sunday school at 9:45 a.m.

OTHER PARABLES

At the Tiburon church Sunday topics for the coming weeks in Lent will include: March 17, "By the Scruff of the Neck," parable of the wedding robe; March 24, "When the Lamp of Life Goes Out," parable of the wise and foolish maidens; March 31, "So You Have Only One Talent," the parable of the talents; April 7, "I am Heaven and Hell," parable of the last judgment, and April 14, "Is There No Peace?"

The church is located at 240 Tiburon Boulevard.

Lenten Services

"Places of the Passion" is the theme of a series of sermons by Rev. Charles Strausser, guest speaker at 8 p.m. each Wednesday during lent at the Good Shepherd Lutheran Church in Novato. Reverend Strausser is the protestant chaplain at Hamliton Air Force Base.

Youths Contribute To Mission Field

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (UPI)—About 108,000 Assemblies of God youths enrolled in the group known as Christ's Ambassadores contributed almost $767,300 to a fund supplying vehicles and other equipment to the denomination's 1,250 missionaries at home and in 75 other countries.

The total topped the teenagers' 1967 goal of $726,820 and broke the 1966 record giving of $651,000. The missionary fund, known as "Speed-the-Light," has been in operation 23 years. Christ's Ambassadors have contributed more than $7.2 million to it in that time.

Assembly Of God Announces Revival

Rev. M. F. Crandal of Sebastopol will open a week of revival meetings tomorrow at the Assembly of God Church, 510 D Street.

Sessions will be held nightly with special music by the Sebastopol Assembly of God choir. Meetings are open to the public, Rev. J. J. Jeffrey, pastor, announced today.

Special Music Set At Sausalito Church

The 25-voice parish choir of Christ Episcopal Church of Sausalito will present the Gallia by Charles Gounod at 11 a.m. tomorrow. The work is based on the first chapter of "The Lamentations of Jeremiah."

The performance will be open to the public. Dr. Cecil Adams will be choirmaster, Mrs. Emily Ross, organist, and Lorrie Kutsko and Martha Ward, soprano soloists.

DOMINICAN CAMPUS

Catholic Conference Scheduled Tomorrow

Dominican College will be the scene tomorrow of the second annual conference of the San Francisco Archdiocesan Council of Catholic Women and Men.

Theme of the all-day session, which opens with registration at 9:30 a.m. at Angelico Hall, will be "The Biblical Prophets Speak to Today's Problems."

Keynoting the conference will be Rev. Illtud Evans of St. Albert's College in Oakland, who is editor of "Faith Now."

Following Reverend Evans' 10:30 a.m. talk, Mass will be celebrated at Angelico Hall by Rt. Rev. William J. McDonald, an auxiliary bishop of the arcdiocese and pastor of St. Anselm's Catholic Church in San Anselmo and Msgr. John J. Scanlon, director of the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine for the archdiocese.

Highlight of the afternoon session will be an address at 2:30 p.m. by the Most Rev. Joseph T. McGucken, archbishop of the archdiocese.

Preceeding Archbishop McGucken's remarks, a reaction panel will present its finding.

Members will include Rabbi William Z. Dalin, western area director of the Commission of Jewish Chaplaincy; Rev. David M. Pettingill, dean of studies at Marin Catholic High School; Dr. Victor R. Gold, professor of Old Testament, Pacific Lutheran Seminary in Berkeley, and Mrs. John C. Bennett of St. Syvester's Parish of San Rafael.

Co-charimen of the conference are Mrs. Steffan Schomaker, president of the Marin Deanery Council, and Dr. John C. Bennett, vice president of the Marin's mens' council.

Final One-Tenth

WINSTON SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Mrs. Odessa Hart Brown, who tithed during her lifetime, also did so in death. She left a tenth of her estate, valued at a total of $315,728, to the First Baptist Church here. It will get more than $31,000.

Appointment Of Interim Pastor Made

Rev. Harold N. Geistweit, former pastor of the Lakeshore Baptist Church in Oakland, will serve as interim minister of the Corte Madera Baptist Church, it was announced this week.

Reverend Geistweit will assume his duties tomorrow, delivering the 11 a.m. message at the church located at 5461 Paradise Drive. The church was formerly pastored by Rev. Henry I. Fox, who is now serving in Chico.

Reverend Geistweit was pastor of the Oakland church for 18 years. He originated the daily "Hour of Prayer" heard for many years on Bay Area radio stations.

The church is currently in a search for a permanent pastor.

NEW LEASE ON LIFE

New Faces Raise Sausalito Hope Of Extending Sister City Effort

By ALAN JONES

Sausalito's Sister City program, consigned not long ago to an untimely demise after eight vigorous years, has apparently taken a new lease on life.

W. Bruce Shafer, named Sister City chairman last month, declared tomorrow through March 15 Vina del Mar Sister City Week in Sausalito to mark the program's eighth anniversary.

The program was on the point of collapse this winter because the small group of people who had been holding it together put their collective foot down.

If the program did not have broad community support, but only the backing of a small group, it was meaningless, declared chairman Loren L. Jay and the others. In a series of meetings they recruited support from local civic bodies and reorganized.

Shafer replaced Jay after six years as chairman, and other new officers are to be chosen next week.

Among the groups represented at the reorganization meetings were the Lions Club, Christ Episcopal Church, Rotary Club, the Sausalito schools, Sausalito Foundation and Sausalito Artists and Merchants.

At Richardson Bay School, the Spanish Club under teacher Armando Flores has made a set of Latin American flags to use in Sister City Week programs.

In the eight years since Vina del Mar, Chile, and Sausalito joined as sister cities, they have exchanged visitors, officials, books, art, music, sailors, students, farmers and more.

There was an ill omen at the outset — Vina del Mar sent Sausalito some plants of the copihue, Chile's national flower, but the plants died because the climate was too dry. The program, however, flourished. It was successful enough, in fact, to serve as a model for the California-Chile People-to-People program which started in 1963.

President Dwight D. Eisenhower initiated the People-to-People idea in the 1950s, and the program started in Sausalito after three city councilmen learned details at the 1958 League of California Cities convention and came back missioniaries for the program.

After many months, a selection committee chose Vina del Mar as a sister city. The reasons were many — similar climate and geography, the fact Chile was then thought to be on the brink of going Communist, links in Chilean and California history (many Chileans came here during gold rush days), and the fact that Sausalito children were learning Spanish in elementary school.

Vina del Mar agreed to the affiliation and the program was officially launched here March 5, 1960, with an affiliation breakfast attended by the Chilean consul and every dignitary Sausalito could muster.

The basic idea of the sister city program, very simply, is to promote personal contact between the cities, official and unofficial, to promote better understanding and friendship.

What it means is things like Sausalito throwing a party for 38 Chilean sailors who loaded a shipload of hospital supplies, contributed from all over Marin, for a Vina del Mar hospital.

It means things like art calendars, printed here and in Vina for 1964 and 1965, each with six works by Vina artists and six by Sausalito artists.

A major part of the program is the high school student exchange which was started late in 1965. Terry Copperman, a Tamalpais High School student, was the first student to go to Vina del Mar. In August, 1966, Vina's Maria Cristina Pereira Ferrero Became Vina's first Sister City exchange student at Tam.

In 1967, Frances McCarty went to Vina and Hector Brito came to Tam. This year's Tamalpais student has not yet been named pending the Sister City reorganization.

There are physical signs of the program in both cities. Sausalito named its jewel-like downtown park Vina del Mar Plaza, and in Vina there is a Sausalito School and "Stadium Sausalito," a sports center.

In 1961, Sausalito raised $1,500 to help rebuild Plaza Sausalito in Corral, Chile, after an earthquake damaged it. And in 1965, funds were raised to buy powdered milk for earthquake victims near Santiago.

A sign of Vina's interest in the program is its Binational Center, a privately-run cultural center where Chileans attend 300 English classes a week.

For a time in 1962, Sausalitans had short wave radio contact with Vina del Mar through ham radio operator Donald Batten in Belveron Gardens.

Another successful venture was a series of lectures in 1963 by Chilean experts on the nation's art, literature, music, theater and socio-economic problems.

Perhaps the program touching the most people has been Sausalito's hospitality committee, which has entertained more than 300 Chilean visitors over the years. There is no balance of payments problems here—only 25 or 30 Sausalitans have visited Vina del Mar during the same period, and they have been entertained by a similar group there.

For the past three years, works of Vina del Mar artists have been shown at the Sausalito Arts Festival in September.

And the program by now has grown to include exchanges of books, maps, photographs and personal letters by scores as more of us learn about more of them.

It is too early to tell whether the reorganization will mean a new wave of enthusiasm for the program. But there is no doubt there is a solid background to build on.

A cross-country collaboration between two surgeons and a knitting machine manufacturer has produced man-made arteries smaller than any produced before.

Guilty Verdict In Stab Trial

A Marin Superior Court jury Thursday found convict Daniel Smith guilty of attacking a fellow prisoner with a sharp instrument.

It is a captial offense, but Asst. Dist. Atty. Leonard Shaw, who prosecuted the case, said he will not seek the death penalty.

Judge Joseph G. Wilson scheduled sentencing for March 22 and said the sentence will be life in prison without possibility of parole for nine years.

Smith, serving five years to life for robbery in Tulare County, stabbed inmate Tommy Sumner several times in the face, arms, chest and back. Sumner survived.

He was defended during the trial by Public Defender Jerome C. Durham.

Plan For Parks Is Given Backing

Tiburon Parks and Recreation Commission Thursday approved in principle a plan for 11 parks of various sizes on the Tiburon peninsula and forwarded it to the planning commission, according to Russell L. Melquist, secretary.

The plan was prepared by Commissioners George Ellman, David L. Teather and Allen Thompson.

The commission discussed a summer recreation program for teen-agers but took no action, Melquist said.

New commissioner Gerald B. Talbot was seated.

THE ROAD AGENT known as Black Bart the Po 8 was a daring, colorful and romantic figure in early California history. But when his downfall finally came, it was a prosaic one. A laundry mark furnished law officers with the needed clue to the highwayman's identity. And it was preceded by the episode pictured by Independent-Journal cartoonist Paul Miller above, in which the bandit, hiding from a posse, found himself in close quarters with a skunk. Bart was to relate the incident after his arrest, seemingly enjoying the joke at his own expense.

Black Bart, The Gentle Highwayman

Armed Robbery And Bad Poetry Led Him Ultimately To San Quentin

By FLORENCE DONNELLY
Independent-Journal Historian

Did Black Bart the Po 8 ever attempt a robbery in Marin County?

There are several who believe he did, and the memoirs of Emile La Forest say that the notorious but waggish highwayman had a camp on the slopes of Mount Tamalpais.

I first became interested in the gentle knight errant when I talked with a woman who had known him. He had stayed at a hotel her mother owned in Angel's Camp. She described his courtly appearance and good manners, which must have been in great contrast to the other rough and tough guests at the hotel.

To piece together the story of this highwayman, who boasted of robbing more than 25 stages without ever firing a shot, I have read a number of sources including "The Treasury of Western Folklore" edited by B. A. Botkin, an article published in "Touring Topics" and written by Philip Johnston, and newspaper accounts.

After the mystery bandit was finally caught, facts about him were finally learned.

His real name, it developed, was Charles E. Boles. He was born in New York. He married and settled in Illinois in 1854, and served as an officer in the Union Army. In 1865, with his wife and three daughters, he was living in Oregon. He left his family there, and said he was going to Montana. For some time he wrote regularly to his wife and told her he would return when he made his "pile."

ACCORDING to Botkin, Boles was for a time a teacher in the Northern California. He was a well educated man, middle-aged, wiry and dapper.

One day he was riding along a road returning from school when he heard a stage come pelting down the grade. He knew the driver and decided to play a joke on him. So Boles hitched his horse to a bush, tied a handkerchief over his face, and broke a branch off a manzanita bush which was about the shape of a pistol.

Then, when the stage came along, he stepped out in front of the lead horses and in stentorian tones demanded: "Throw out the box."

The driver pulled out the wooden Wells Fargo box from under the seat and threw it out. It hit a rock and broke. The driver then whipped his horses and fled the scene.

There was Boles with a stick in his hand and a treasure at his feet. There was a couple of thousand dollars in bullion bars and sacks of gold dust.

This, according to Botkin, decided Boles that stage robbery paid greater dividends than school teaching.

Johnston told how a stage carrying a small wooden box filled with currency and gold, and loaded with passengers, was on the run from Sonora to Milton on the morning of July 26, 1875. The stage driver was Billy Hodges, who held the reins over six horses. Seated beside him was an express messenger, grasping a sawed-off shotgun.

The leaders reared on their haunches when a slender man in a linen duster, with a mask over his face, sprang from behind a boulder, and aimed a shotgun at the heads of the two men on the seat.

"IF THEY shoot," cried the highwayman, "give them a solid volley boys."

Glancing at the boulder which had sheltered the robber, Hodges saw what looked like several gun barrels. He told the messenger: "It's no use trying to do anything. Sit perfectly still if you want to live."

"Now, drop that gun and throw out the box," commanded the man in the linen duster.

The messenger did as ordered and the man in the road produced an axe and chopped the box open, filling his pockets with money and the valuables it contained.

"Get back on the seat now and vamos," barked the robber.

And vamos they did.

When the stage driver reported the robbery that night, it was the beginning of an eight-year career by Boles, who became the despair of Wells Fargo sleuths. And the officers who went to the scene of the robbery the next day acquired a wholesome respect for the highwayman. What had seemed to be gun barrels were only sticks, cleverly arranged.

It was five months before the masked man in the linen duster held up another stage, this one running between San Juan and Marysville.

The lawmen were certain the man they sought was possessed of much intelligence and physical endurance.

The stage drivers could give no real description of the hold-up man who always wore a loose linen duster and a mask, usually a flour sack in which holes had been cut for the eyes. The mountain people and strangers in the district were questioned by the authorities, but there were no "leads."

Had the bandit "crawled into a hole and pulled the hole in after him?"

At last, the officers made note of an apparently insignificant fact — the appearance of a stranger who asked for food, a good distance from where the hold-up had taken place. It was so soon after the robbery it seemed impossible that a man on foot could have traveled the distance. And the stranger was evidently a person of refinement and education, well versed in current topics, who made an unusually favorable impression upon all who met him.

The stage robberies continued and it was not until August of 1877, when the Fort Ross stage coach was held up near the Russian River, that the robber gained the name Black Bart the Po 8. Detectives who hurried to the scene found a verse scribbled on a piece of paper:

"Here I lay me down to sleep
"To wait the coming morrow
"Perhaps success, perhaps defeat
"And everlasting sorrow
"I've labored long and hard for bread
"For honor and for riches
"But on my corns too long you've tred
"You fine haired ——— ——
"But come what may, I'll try it on
"My condition can't be worse
"And if there's munny in that box
" 'Tis munny in my purse.
Black Bart, the Po 8."

Shades of 007, "po 8" was a bad pun for poet.

NO ONE knew where Black Bart would strike next. He was a will-o-the wisp. On Nov. 24, 1882, he held up the stage six miles from Cloverdale. The driver Ed Crawford, brought the word to town. Five men were in the posse. The chase was toward

"What Stained My Husband's Silk and Wool Suit?"

Microscopic study of your husband's suit reveals that the "stain" is not a stain at all. It is caused by yarn slippage.

This combined silk and wool garment is made up of about 15% silk. The silk adds sheen and lustre to the fabric and lies in the warp or lengthwise direction. Usually it is invisible. The wool, in the crosswise direction is on top and gives the garment a wool-like feel.

Silk has a low tensile strength and will break at points of strain. In some constructions the silk yarn will become abraded. What happened in your husband's suit was yarn slippage. The light-colored wool yarns shifted, exposing the darker silk yarns that underlay the wool. It is not a stain.

Silk and wool combination garments are attractive, lightweight and wrinkle free, but they are not long-wearing.

THE BLACK BART STORY

The Gentle Teacher Who Became West's Most Daring Road Agent

Lower Lake. But this vigorous walker of 52 outdistanced the men on horseback.

With the coming of spring Black Bart went right back to the Cloverdale district, making stage driver Connibeck unhitch the horses while he rifled the strong box. There was only $50 in the box, plus checks which could not be cashed in the mailbag.

And where was Black Bart living between hold-ups? This was not known until he was finally captured. Using the name Charles E. Bolton and posing as a mining man, he lived at small hotels in San Francisco. He often ate at a restaurant near the Hall of Justice. There he became friendly with the police detectives and together they would laugh at the stupid rural sheriffs who never could find Black Bart.

Boles or Bolton would be gone for a few days, saying, when he returned, that he had been looking after his mining interests.

He had an air of dignity. He wore a Prince Albert coat and a small black derby. A diamond flashed in his ring and one in the stickpin on his tie. His collar and cuffs were starched. He always carried a cane.

Sometimes he would take a flyer in the stock market or place a small bet on the ponies. He was well versed in current events and had a delightful sense of humor.

A newspaper account said that in October of 1878, Bart moved into Mendocino County. He robbed the stage 12 miles from Ukiah Oct. 2. Then again, on Oct. 3, he held up the stagecoach 10 miles from Potter Valley.

Two robberies within two days incensed the sheriff of Mendocino County and his deputies. News of the two holdups also sent James B. Hume, Wells Fargo's special agent, to the hills.

From time to time, Bart had sent messages to Hume, taunting him. He'd tell a stage driver to give his best regards to Hume, or leave a note for him in a rifled strong box.

On a lonely ranch on the Eel River, Hume chatted with a Mrs. McCreary and her daughter, a girl about 16. The girl had served food to a stranger who had stopped at the ranch. She had an almost photographic memory as she described the stranger.

He was about 50 years old, she said, of slender build, about five feet eight or nine, with high forehead and prominent cheekbones. The lower part of his face was thin and rather long, his eyes light and deepset, and with heavy eyebrows. His black hair was touched with white. Whiter were his mustache and the imperial on his chin.

He was, she stressed, gentle in manner and chatted freely. His hands were long and thin, not the hands of a working man.

The girl had noted a broken watch chain, mended with a leather string, a sleeve that had been ripped from his coat and sewn back with white thread, his shoes slit across the balls of the feet to give him greater freedom in walking. She said he had a second cup of coffee but did not smoke and that he carried a blanket roll but no weapon she could see.

Hume now had the description he needed, and with this and other information he had gleaned from hold-up victims, he sent out circulars. These described the highwayman and added additional details. One listed the long list of robberies by Black Bart.

One read: "It is believed that all of the above robberies were committed by one person. He is generally masked with a flour sack over his face and an old linen duster covers his person.

"In attacking a stage he usually jumps in front of the team in a stooping posture and seeks to shield himself in front of the lead horses. He is always armed with a double-barreled shotgun, which he unbreaches and rolls in his blankets when he is safe from immediate pursuit.

"He always brings an axe to scene of a robbery which he uses to open the box and leaves in the vicinity of the robbery. In opening the mail sacks he cuts them with a sharp knife on top of the sack near the lock. He has never manifested any viciousness and there is reason to believe he is averse to taking human life.

"He is polite to all passengers and especially to ladies.

"He comes and goes from the scene of the robbery on foot; seems to be a thorough mountaineer and a good walker as he sometimes covers long distances in a day — getting food in out of the way places, but he has never been known to remain overnight in a house that is occupied; never allows himself to be seen in the vicinity of a robbery; and does not show up for food until 12 or 15 miles away.

"THE ONLY baggage visible when traveling is a roll of blankets generally tied with bale rope at the ends, although at one time he had a long valise.

"He sometimes complains of throat disease; he seems to be well informed on current topics. The manner of leaving doggerel verse with express box after robbery would indicate there is a vein of humor or waggery in his composition.

"It is not believed he is addicted to the use of liquor and tobacco; is a great lover of coffee; wears about a Number 8 boot; is a great reader, and, when reading without glasses holds his paper at arm's length. At no place where he stopped for food has he been looked upon as suspicious in deportment or appearance and it is most probable he is considered entirely respectable wherever he may reside."

Also in the circular was the description of Bart given to Hume by the McCreary girl.

Wells Fargo increased the amount of the reward for capture of Black Bart and so did the postal department. But stage after stage was robbed and the highwayman was still at large.

Every once in a while a Bart verse or message to Hume was found in the broken express box. One of these read:

"I'll start out tomorrow
"With another empty sack.
"From Wells Fargo I will borrow
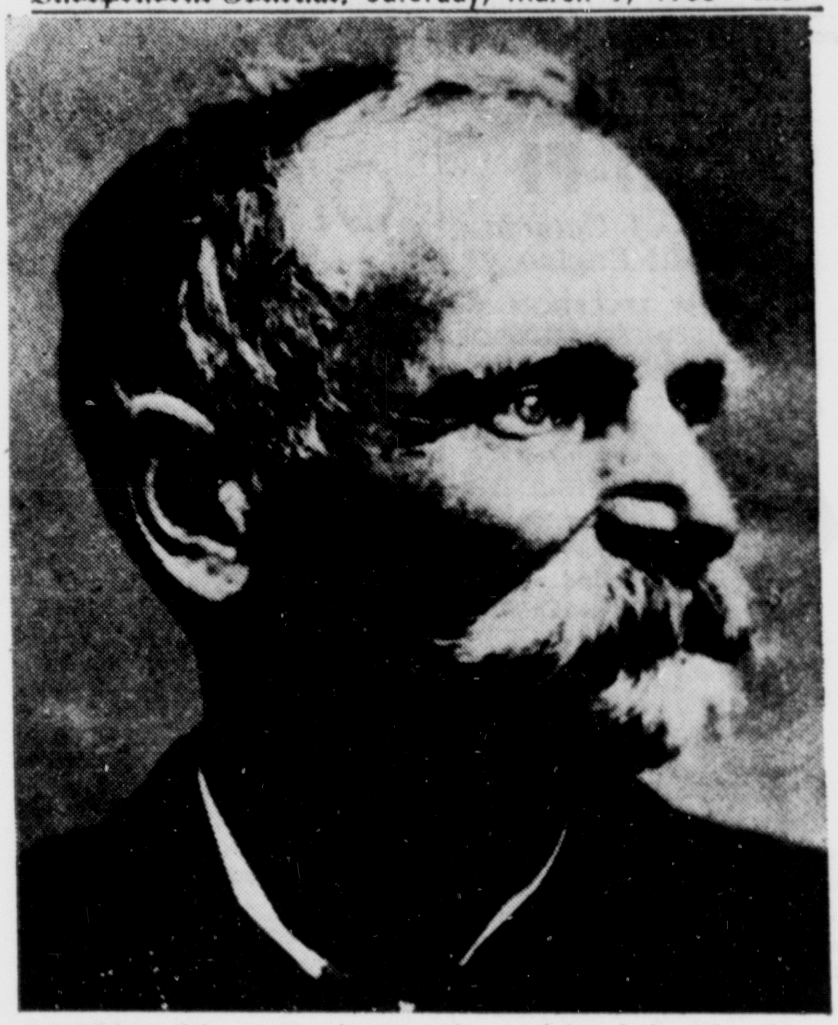
"But I'll never pay it back."



HE BEGAN life as Charles E. Boles and lived the life of a cultured gentleman in San Francisco under the name of Charles E. Bolton. But he was ultimately unmasked as Black Bart, the West's most notorious road agent.

Black Bart would return to San Francisco and resume the role of Bolton, gentleman-about-town. He was an inveterate reader and haunted book shops.

Gertrude Atherton in her book, "My San Francisco," said Bart was the patron of one of the best book stores and the owner found him a delightful conversationalist.

Bart was also still enjoying himself as the buddy of the police. At one time he reported his overcoat had been stolen and waxed indignant that anyone should resort to thievery.

Then, of course, there were the newspaper accounts of Bart's hold-ups and he and the police had their laughs over the ease which the highwayman operated and the verses he left.

One of these shows what the so-called poet thought of his doggerel. It went like this:

"This is the way to get
"When I have a chance
why should I refuse it.
"I'll not need either when I'm dead,
"And I only tax those who are able to lose it.
"So blame me not for what I've done,
'And if for some cause I must be hung,
"Let it be for my verses."

FM RECEPTION — FUZZINESS — INDOOR OR OUTDOOR ANTENNA! FM reception continues to be a puzzling problem to many people. They find that many stations on the the dial come in with a raspy sound or with a great deal of background noise.

FM receivers are designed to provide a program sound with very low background noise when a certain amount of signal reaches the antenna terminals of the receiver. This is specified as the sensitivity, generally as the microvolts (millionths of a volt) necessary to reduce the background noise to an acceptable standard as set forth by the Institute of High Fidelity manufacturers, IHF. The higher quality FM receivers or tuners require less microvolts at the antenna to provide good program material. The inexpensive units require a great deal of signal for good quality.

In Marin, since we have many hills, there are many areas where FM signal is cut off or drastically reduced. FM receivers in these low signal areas will have high background noise even when the station is tuned-in. These areas definitely require a high quality outside FM antenna to bring in the maximum amount of signal available. The more elements an antenna has, the more directional it will be and the more signal it will send to the receiver. Many people ask if they can use their TV antenna for the FM receiver. Most TV antennas, with the exception of very late model "all channel TV & FM" models, do not have any elements cut to the correct length for FM therefore they do not provide much signal.

Another severe problem experienced here in Marin because of our mountains and hills is multi-path. In many areas the FM reception is quite distorted on some stations even though the signal is very strong. The sound is raspy, especially on the "s" sounds. This is caused by the antenna receiving more than one signal from the same station. One signal travels directly from the FM station transmitting antenna to your antenna; another signal travelling at an angle strikes a mountain then bounces back to your antenna however, since this second signal had to travel farther to get to your antenna, it arrives later. These two signals mix together and cause the distortion. A third or more multipath signals make the distortion even more severe. To correct or reduce multipath, a very directional antenna is required. More later.

The Story Of Black Bart Po 8

Stage Bandit Baffled Law For Years

Hardly a week went by that Hume did not receive word from some sheriff saying he had arrested a suspicious character. Hume's invariable reply was: "You have my circular of October, 1878. If he doesn't answer that description, I do not want him."

There was one time Black Bart had a narrow escape. On July 3, 1882, he attempted to hold up a stage from La Porte to Oroville. Leaping out from behind a clump of shrubbery in front of the horses, he stooped low in front of the leaders and pointed his gun at the men on the seat.

George Hackett, the Wells Fargo messenger, brought his gun to his shoulder and fired. The horses reared and plunged and the bandit was thrown aside, unhurt. Then the driver cracked his whip over the horses, Hackett fired once more at the baffled highwayman, as the stage rolled away. Bart dashed into the underbrush.

But it was a simple laundry mark which ended Black Bart's career as a highwayman on Nov. 3, 1883. Bart returned to Calaveras County. From the cover of a rock, he watched the stage coming from Sonora. He had learned in some mysterious way that the express box had $4,100 in coin. Wells Fargo, which had been the victim of so many robberies, now had stronger boxes, which were bolted to the floor of the stagecoaches.

BESIDE the driver was a slender figure. Through his field glasses Bart saw that the stage driver's companion had a rifle on his knees.

The stage dipped into a hollow and when it appeared again, the driver was alone. When the stage came to the top of the grade, the driver, R. E. McConnell, was about to speed up his horses. Then, from behind a rock, jumped a man wearing a long duster, his flour sack mask held in place by a little derby.

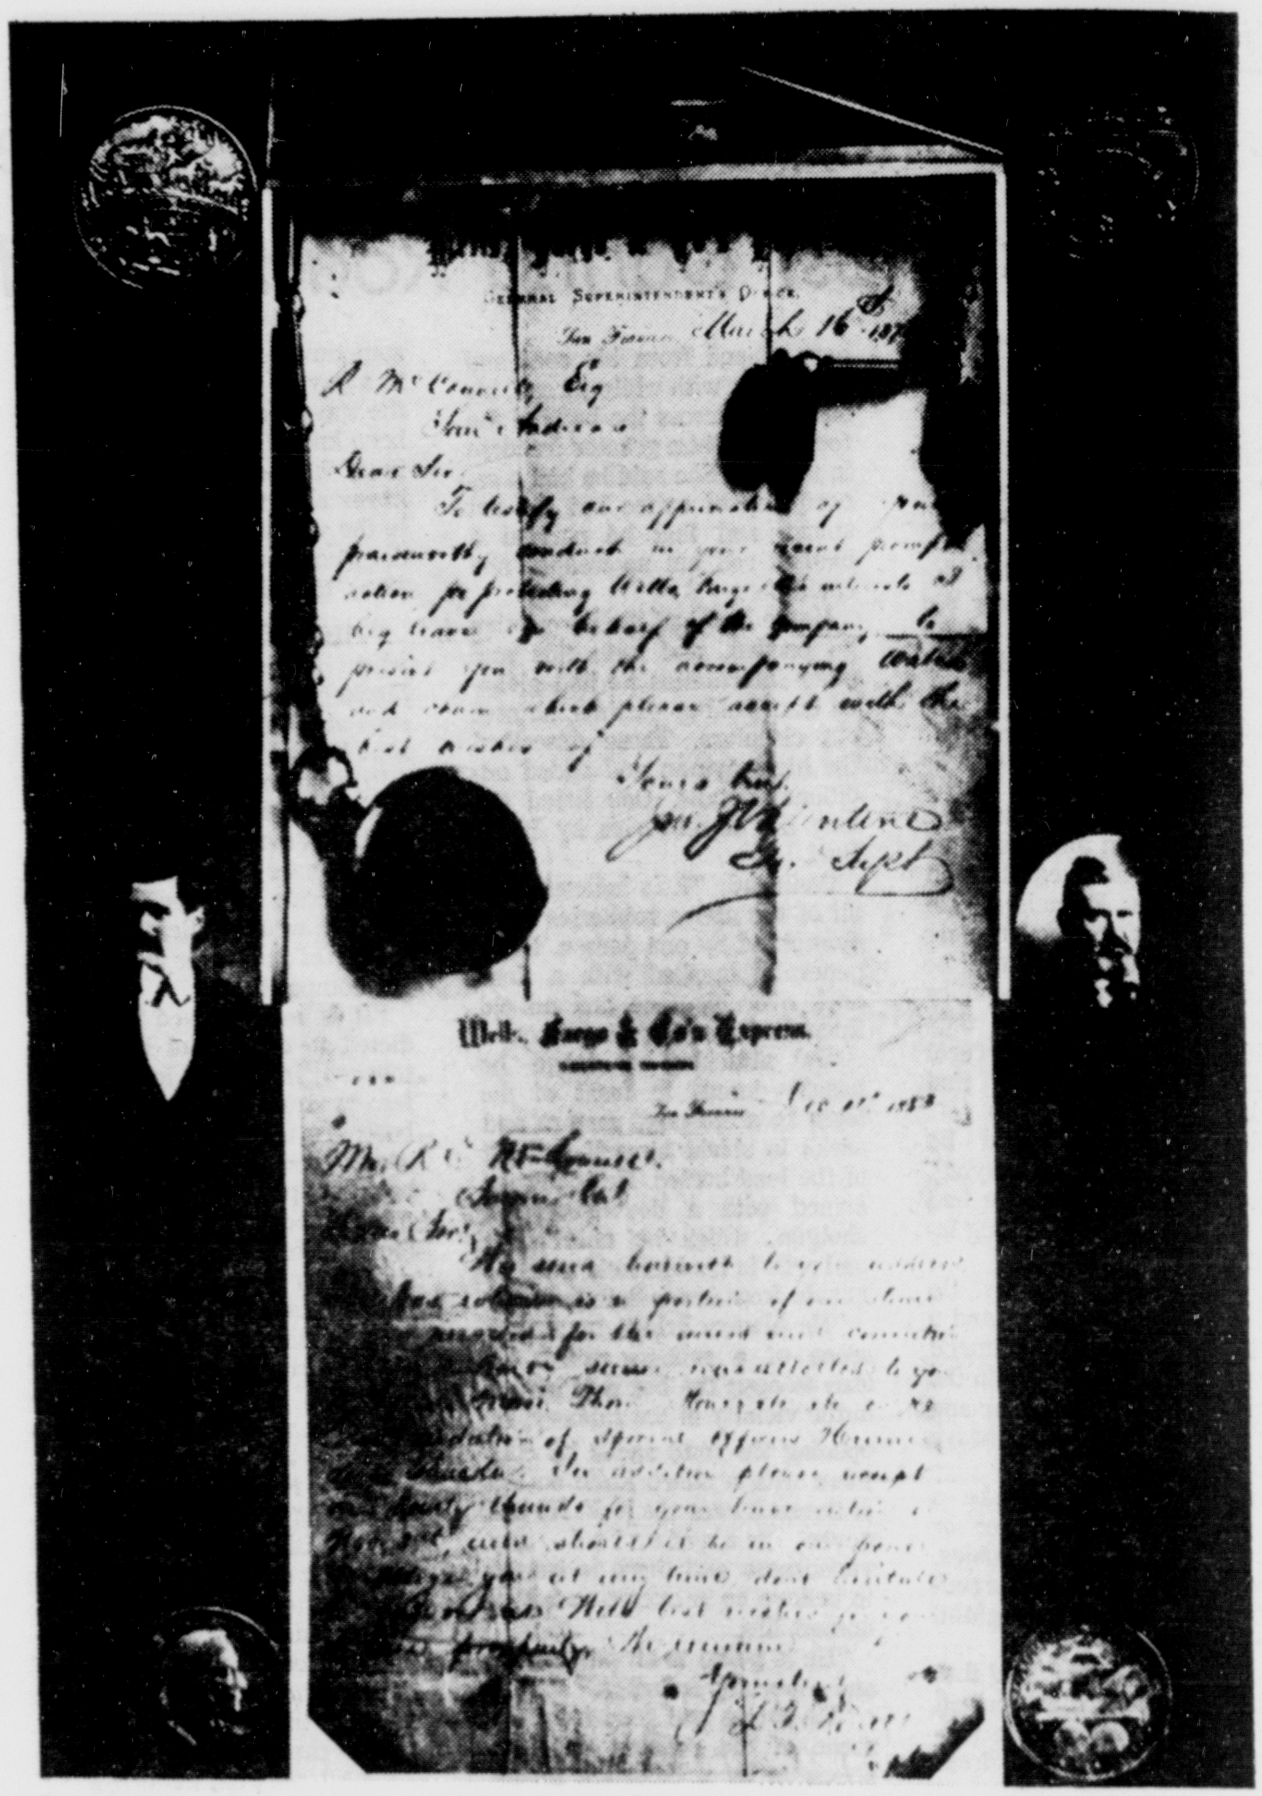
"Get down" commanded the outlaw, and McConnell obeyed pronto.

"I thought there were two of you," the highwayman said.

"There was a passenger," said McConnell, "but I dropped him back yonder."

"Well, be quick about it. Unharness those horses. Drive them behind the stage."

Black Bart had a hard time prying the hinges from the express box. But it was worth the trouble, he thought, when he saw the treasure. Black Bart was still bending over the box, when Jimmy Rolleri, who had ridden with McConnell up the grade, and had gotten off to do a bit of hunting, came back.



STAGE DRIVER R. E. McConnell received these letters from Wells Fargo officials praising him for his part in the downfall of the bandit Black Bart and notifying him he was to be presented with a watch and chain.

Jimmy took in the situation at a glance and, unnoticed by Black Bart, went to the back of the coach and slipped his rifle to McConnell. The latter immediately fired on the outlaw, who gathered up his loot and fled into the brush. In his haste, Black Bart's derby fell off and a handkerchief dropped from his pocket.

McConnell hitched up the horses to the stage and raced to Copperopolis where he spread the news. John N. Thacker, Wells Fargo detective, and Sheriff Ben Thorne of Calaveras County rushed to the scene of the hold-up.

Behind the rock where the stage had stopped they found a pair of field glasses and a package of papers taken from the stage. They were red with blood. Most valuable find was the handkerchief, which had the laundry mark "FXO 7" on it.

Immediately Hume went into action. He called in Harry Morse, another detective.

FROM ALMOST the first the detective discarded the idea of a search of laundries in the small towns. The search was concentrated on laundries in San Francisco, and 81 were visited before there was a good clue. T. C. Ware, who had a tobacco shop on Bush Street, also had a laundry agency. Morse learned from him that the "FXO 7" laundry mark was that of a Mr. Bolton who lived at the Webb House, a respectable boarding house on Second Street.

Morse had been introduced to Ware as a Mr. Richardson, who was interested in mining properties, and it was Ware who introduced Morse as Mr. Richardson to Bolton. The two men talked about mining as they walked along the streets down Bush to Montgomery, to California and then to 320 Sansome. Before Bolton realized it he was in Hume's office, and then he knew the jig was up.

Black Bart lost none of his nerve. He joked with the detectives.

A search warrant was obtained and Bolton's room was ransacked. From scraps of letters these experts compared the handwriting with that on Black Bart's doggerel and found they were written by the same person. Then an old Bible which had been given to Bolton by his wife when he was fighting for the Union disclosed the name of Charles E. Boles on the flyleaf.

When the Bible was thrust under Bart's nose, he offered to confess to the last hold-up and make restitution if he were dealt with lightly.

The law men agreed and he took them to where he had staged the last hold-up and showed the treasure he had stashed away in a hollow log. He regaled his captors with his exploits.

One of the best stories was the one he told of his escape after attempting to stop the stage from La Porte to Marysville.

He said that after entering the brush he heard voices and, looking down the mountain side, he saw a sheriff's posse coming toward him. There was a hollow log beside the road and Bart plunged into it head first. He soon discovered he had a skunk for a companion. Bart said he was in mortal agony but dared not move out while the posse was near.

The highwayman added the sheriff's dog got curious and crept into the log "but came right out again."

Black Bart was sentenced to San Quentin for six years, starting his term there on Nov. 23, 1883.

His wife, who had thought her husband dead, did not know until she read in the newspapers that Black Bart was Charles Boles. She was living with a married daughter in Hannibal, Mo.

Bart was a model prisoner. He found many books to his liking in the meager prison library. One of his favorite writers was Bulwer-Lytton.

Bart lost none of his sense of humor in prison. When he was released from San Quentin, he was asked if he intended to write any more poetry. Quick was the reply: "Didn't you hear me say I would commit no more crimes?"

There are various accounts of what Bart did after he left San Quentin. Botkin said that soon after Bart left prison, robberies of stagecoaches resumed. The highwayman did not leave any verses behind but the method of the hold-ups was the same Bart had employed. He was well disguised but the Wells Fargo detectives knew his style and they called Bart to their office.

"SEE HERE" he was told, "we're willing to make a deal and call it quits if you are."

Bart agreed he was getting too old for the road agent business and if he had a regular income he would like to retire. Botkin said Wells Fargo agreed to pay Bart $200 a month. He accepted the offer and disappeared from the western scene. Some believe he went to Idaho.

The connection of Bart with Marin, aside from his residency in San Quentin, sounds rather mild. Miss Elinor Burt of Mill Valley said her grandfather, Jacob Gardner, accompanied by his wife and small daughter, Cora (Miss Burt's mother), was driving a buggy over McCue's Hill (Corte Madera Hill) when a highwayman leaped in front of the horses. Gardner had been collecting taxes and had a large amount of money in a leather bag beside him. In those days (the year was about 1880) most people paid taxes in cash and it was known throughout the countryside that tax collections were being made.

The highwayman, a slender person, was masked and swathed in a linen duster. He held a double-barreled shotgun which he pointed at the driver.

Gardner laid the whip on the horses and they sprang ahead knocking the would-be hold-up artist to the ground. Miss Burt said that the same day another man was robbed by a highwayman who answered Bart's description.

(Editor's note: According to Waddell Smith of San Rafael, a great-grandson of William Bradford Waddell, one of the founders of the Pony Express, the stages robbed by Black Bart did not belong to Wells Fargo, but the company did send money and other valuables in strong boxes carried by the stages.)

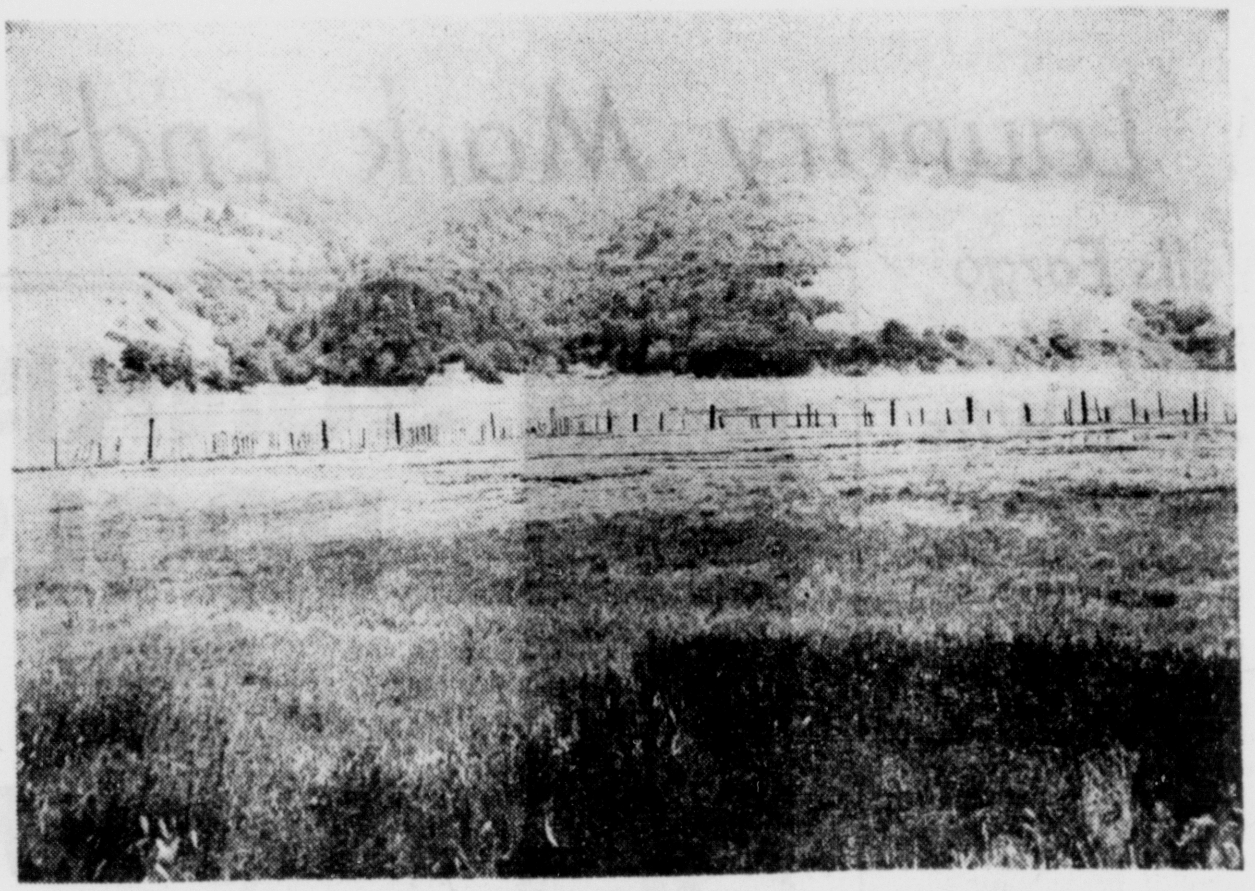
The best time to visit Audubon Canyon Ranch on Bolinas Lagoon just north of Stinson Beach is in the spring.

The great blue herons and the white common egrets, two of largest birds in the United States, arrive then to nest in the tops of the redwood trees.

Other heronries throughout the country are in swamps, on islands, or in places where it is difficult to see the birds. At Audubon Canyon Ranch, however, visitors hike up a short trail to the Henderson Overlook and from there see out over the tops of the trees and into the bustling nesting colony. With binoculars or the telescope stationed there, the view is even better.



LOOKING ACROSS the Bolinas Lagoon, you see the rolling, grassy hillsides and then the forested canyons of the Audubon Canyon Ranch. Garden Club of America Canyon is to the left, the Bourne Trail on the right. (Photo by Jon Perry).

THE NATURALIST, Clerin W. Zumwalt of Greenbrae, is also on hand to answer questions.

Take your lunch when you go to Audubon Canyon Ranch and picnic in the area behind the barn. Also plan on spending the day.

The Ranch opened for the 1968 season March 1, and may be visited Wednesdays through Sundays, including holidays. The hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Individuals are welcome at any time but groups and schools are asked to make reservations. (Write C. W. Zumwalt, 73 Via La Cumbre, Greenbrae.)

FIRST TO arrive in the spring are the great blue herons (Ardea herodias), standing over four feet tall and with a six to seven-foot wingspread. They arrive in February, go through elaborate courting ceremonies, and start nesting around the first of March.

Mates take turns at the nest during incubation of the eggs, about 28 days, relieving each other to fly off to Bolinas Lagoon and Kent Island to search for food. They eat fish and crustaceans that they find in the tidelands.

The white common egrets (Casmerodius albus) are also a heron. They arrive in early March, are a little smaller, and have nuptial plumes so beautiful they a'most caused the extinction of the species by hunters.

THEY ALSO feed in Bolinas Lagoon.

Male and female birds in both species have similar plumage. During the courting ceremonies and at each arrival at the nest, they present twigs to one another which they put into their platform-like nests. Many trees

Audubon Canyon Ranch Begins Another Season

Spring Comes To Refuge In West Marin

in the heronry have flattened tops which observers think may be due to the continual pruning.

Marin Audubon Society made a study of the heronry in 1967 and reported about 140 nests for the season. Fifty pairs of great blue herons produced about 75 young birds, and 70 pairs of common egrets successfully raised 101 young egrets.

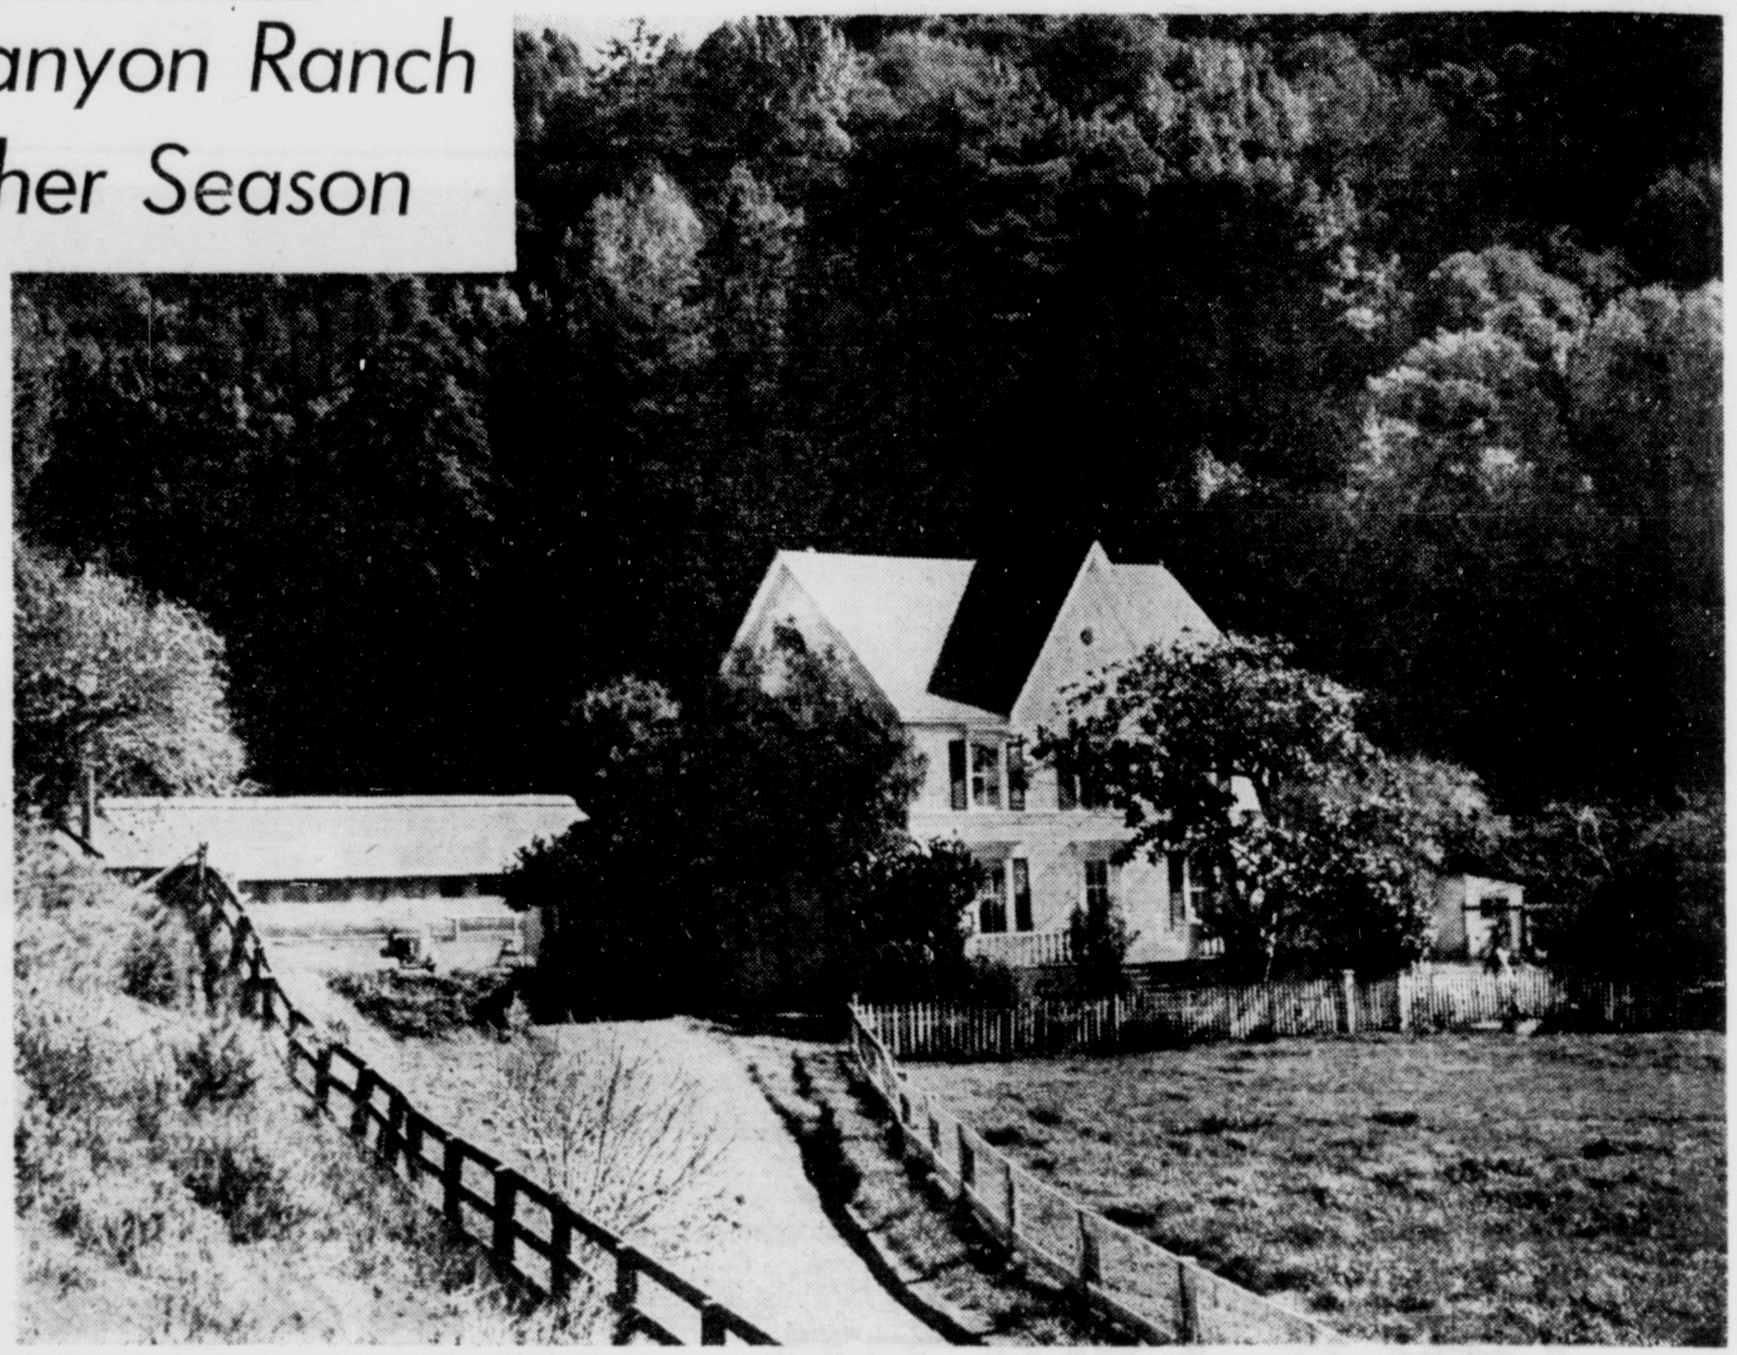
THE STUDY section, under the direction of Dr. Richard L. Doutt of Mill Valley and Mrs. Philip Pratt, also discovered that many nests are used twice—first by the great blue herons and then by the later arriving common egrets. One nest was used three times.

The height of the nesting activity is in June, when the redwood canyon resounds with the sounds of the birds' activity.

Marin Audubon Society, together with San Francisco's Golden Gate Audubon Society, began to purchase the Audubon Canyon Ranch in 1961. They now own the half-million dollar Ranch together and maintain it as a nature education center.

SOME 5,000 visitors came to the Ranch in 1967, about half of them school children.

The Ranch extends from Highway 1, where the white salt-box ranch house marks the entrance, to the top of Bolinas Ridge.



A WHITE ranch house marks the entrance to the Audubon Canyon Ranch and serves as its headquarters. Ranch holdings of the Marin Audubon Society and the Golden Gate Audubon Society now total 569 acres. (Photo by Kathleen Dougan Hoover)

There the 569-acre Ranch adjoins Mount Tamalpais State Park and Marin Municipal Water District lands, and visitors are invited to wander over the network of trails.

Trails on the Ranch are varied and designed for every taste, from a simple mile-long loop to the overlook and back, to a seven-mile loop through the Garden Club of America Canyon to Bolinas Ridge, and back. A four-mile loop takes the visitor in and out of a redwood-Douglas fir forest sprinkled with buckeye, bay and toyon trees.

THE SHORTEST trail of all is the self-guiding nature trail, also in the Garden Club of America Canyon.

It is less than a half-mile and there is a leaflet to aid identification.

A SALUTE TO THE DOMINO

Interior Settings In Black And White

Domino expert Dominic Armanino predicted that the game would really "catch on" once women took an interest in the pastime.

Today, they have.

They play dominoes at home. They host domino luncheons and parties with their husbands.

IN MARIN County, a very "pro-dom" group is the St. Dominic's Chapter of the Social Service Auxiliary. On March 17, the members will sponsor their first Open Domino Tournament at Dominic's Harbor Restaurant in San Rafael. With Mrs. Fred Acciari and Mrs. Robert Walker as co-chairmen, the one-day benefit will aid the Catholic Family Agency of Marin.

Inspired by the ancient game's influence on the contemporary homemaker, six Marin interior designers have saluted the tournament by originating settings showing how a "dom-decor" can spark up a game room, a living room, or, in fact, any room of the house.

According to interior designer Hy Cook of Tiburon, all white is "so right" for a light-slighted foyer.

TO ILLUSTRATE, he drapes a round table with a floor-length cloth that's crisp, white and homespun. Handsome white porcelain accessories — an Italian lamp, a Japanese cock, a round bowl spilling over with an abundant arrangement of white flowers—complete the table setting.

To achieve the domino look, Cook combines a gold leaf mirror in the Williamsburg tradition with a grouping of four black and white engravings, then mates a zebra skin rug with Victorian side chairs saucily seat-covered in leopard.

Moving into the living room, we find that sophisticated black and white, already the "in" decor in the East, has now come West.

AT CASA MARIN in San Rafael, interior designer Paula Trehearne ops for a white conversation corner. Black velvet is the applique, ditto for the trim on loose pillows. The faille covered chairs flank a moody Mediterranean styled occasional table. And the Spanish influence is repeated in the 55-inch lamp with its black, brown and gold tones.

Pluck accent colors — yellow, grape or green — from the original oil painting and add a love seat in a mod-inspired black and white print to complete the setting.

Frankly French with a ha' penny of Merrie England themes

Marin Designers Introduce 'Dom Decor'

DOMINO FASHIONS are reflected in the two-piece white satin jumpsuit with black velvet jacket, worn by Mrs. Gene O'Connor, member of the Social Service Auxiliary's St. Dominic's Chapter, and in the arrangement of white faille chairs with black velvet applique created at Casa Marin in San Rafael. Mrs. O'Connor checks the rules of the game in preparation for the March 17 domino tournament.

the garden room at Lorette Larson Interiors Inc., Mill Valley.

WITH SPRAYING and weeding worries banished forever, there's more time for dominoes. There the playing is easy on the no-glare game table staunchly supported by a black wrought iron base. An overlay of white on the iron wrought chairs and voila, the elegant antique look. Hibiscus vines in a lush parrot green colored fabric and correlated wall coverings climb the walls and windows to frame the setting.

For non-players there is an ivory velvet tufted love seat saddled with painted English country tables.

Not to be forgotten is the bedroom scene.

JERRY DALY, interior designer from Lee Marriott Interiors, San Rafael, sensed that domino players would take the game and the decor there, too. He sets the scene with a washable black and white nylon flocked wall covering that could easily march into the adjoining bath — the pattern, "Louis Phillipe." Black shutters trim windows and closets.

And while madame rests in an oyster damask covered barrel-back chair, the tiles rest on a Bombay commode finished in stressed walnut.

Because dominoes take precedence over cards in Mexico, Florence Huber Associates, Larkspur, adds the whimsical "Dancing Pigs" and "Fisherman" to the contemporary game room display.

HERE THE focal point is the Tahitian white and gold striped cotton covered 76-inch sofa. Off-white homespun draperies and a white textured wool carpet quiet the room and mellow wood tones add interest. The parquet patterned cocktail table adjusts readily to game height and the walnut side chairs with sleek Scandinavian designs are happy correlates. The serigraph offers a variety of mellow accent colors.

MRS. JAMES FINN models a domino-inspired cobbler's apron that hostesses will wear at the domino tournament March 17 at Dominic's Harbor Restaurant. She, 4-year-old Erin Finn and the inscrutable porcelain bulldog are seen in a living room setting created at The Elegant Room on the Northgate Fashion Mall, Terra Linda. Mrs. Finn's parents, the Gus Niederholzers, have offered their Puerto Vallarte, Mexico, home for one week as the tournament's first prize.

In the lavish living room setting arranged by Don Gianotti, interior designer at The Elegant Room, Northgate Shopping Center, the Italian influence on the game prevails. For history records that it was the Florentine monks of the 17th Century who added the blank to the tiles.

The opulent fabric choice for the 90-inch curved sofa is a gold quilted matelasse. Nearby is an Italian contemporary styled gold velvet chair with matching ottoman. A marble-topped gold leaf pedestal table correlates with the vanilla walls and velvet plush vanilla wool carpet. Walnut finishes repeated in the drum and bench table offset the gold.

PUMPKIN IS the accent color.

The vignettes will remain on display in the decorator shops until March 17.

Because they feel that these fresh, original settings inspired by their favorite games could be of interest to all homemakers, the members of St. Dominic's Chapter invite the public to tour the six participating design studios, and to participate in the March 17 tournament.

ALL WHITE is exactly right for a light-slighted foyer. But in keeping with the domino theme, Tiburon designer Hy Cock has added leopard-covered Victorian chairs and zebra throw rug as saucy touches to his setting. Mrs. Mert Hipsley has domino in hand.

FRENCH AND MERRY English themes are blended in this garden room, the perfect spot for games and relaxation, as created by Lorette Larson Interiors of Mill Valley. Mrs. Robert Rich, left, and Mrs. William Seeger enjoy a game of dominoes, increasingly popular with the women. The public is invited to visit the various design studios featuring "domino decor" arrangements until after the big March 17 domino tournament.

SAM SEEMS as anxious as his mistress, Mrs. Al Quilici, for the start of the cocktail hour domino game which she has set up in a contemporary game room corner on display at Florence Huber Associates in Larkspur. It features a 76-inch sofa covered in Tahitian white striped cotton, and a parquet patterned walnut cocktail table that adjusts to dining or game height.

POSTERS DESIGNED by Mrs. Robert Rich to publicize the March 17 open domino tournament sponsored by St. Dominic's Chapter, Social Service Auxiliary, are admired by member Mrs. William Zavosky, wearing smart black and white knit, in an appropriate black and white setting on display at Lee Marriott Interiors, San Rafael. Scheme includes Bombay commode of stressed walnut, oyster white damask on chair, washable black and white covering for walls, and black shutters for closets.

The Stereo Scene With Sunier

By JOHN SUNIER

In the hey-day of the player piano there were two types which, because of their extreme sophistication, could reproduce piano rolls in the home cut by great classical pianists and actually be a fairly accurate representation of the original performance by the pianists.

One of these and the earlier, the Welte-Mignon, captured performances starting as early as 1900.

A later one, the Duo-Art, actively recorded famous composers and pianists between about 1916 and 1925. Everest Records has been releasing albums of these piano rolls, played on the mechanism installed in a Steinway grand, and recorded on tape in stereo:

WANDA LANDOWSKA CONCERT — MOZART: Sonata No. 17; LANNER: Valses Viennoises; BEETHOVEN: Sonata No. 12; BEETHOVEN: Andante Favori in F Major — Everest X-915:

There are of course many ordinary recordings, made over the many years of her lifetime, of Wanda Landowska at both piano and harpsichord.

She recorded several Mozart sonatas on the piano for Victor some years ago. Comparison of these piano recordings with the above piano roll of Mozart shows and amazing similarity and very little of the too-perfect, wooden effect often associated with piano rolls. The performance is a joy from start to finish.

However, in the Beethoven, the piano-rollish-ness comes out. Beethoven is just too much in the phrasing and dynamics department for the basically mechanical parts of the piano roll system to handle.

Still, a shellac 78 rpm recording made at the time the piano roll was cut would sound so distorted and noisy today that perhaps even the imperfect but clearly reproduced piano roll is best.

VLADIMIR DE PACHMANN PLAYS CHOPIN — Four Nocturnes, Polonaise Opus 26/1, Prelude Opus 28/15, Impromptu in A Flat, Opus 29/1 and Waltz in C Sharp Minor Opus 64/2 — Everest X921:

De Pachmann, like numerous great musicians, was a bit off his rocker. His conduct on the stage frequently was shocking to his audiences. He always wore an old coat of Chopin's when playing Chopin.

The Nocturnes herein aren't bad, but I swear somebody has to be kidding about this performance of the "Waltz in C Sharp Minor." Must be the most rushed and shambles of a piano performance available on records today!

GEORGE GERSHWIN — Rhapsody in Blue & four popular songs by other composers — Everest X-914:

Gershwin's great performance of the complete Rhapsody in Blue with Paul Whiteman is not available on LP, but this is a piano reduction of the whole score that, while thin, gives a good idea of the composer's feelings about performance.

The disadvantages of the piano roll system rhythmically don't seem to intrude here at all. And where else can one hear Gerge Gershwin perform in stereo?

The pop songs would all be losers, were it not for Gershwin's delightful arrangements and variations, much in the character of his own "Piano Transcriptions."

MYRA HESS CONCERT: — Everest X-917:

Dame Myra Hess lived long enough to record some fairly good albums of her art. However, here are some earlier efforts for the piano roll which come off with varying success.

The Beethoven Sonata No. 25 suffers from the same problems as the Landowska performance previously mentioned. "The Toccata by Paradies" is a fascinating little thing, and her treatment of Debussy's "Sunken Cathedral" is very fine.

There are also short pieces by Bach, Scarlatti, Rachmaninoff, Brahms and Szymanowski.

CAMILLE SAINT-SAENS PLAYS SAINT-SAENS — JOSEF HOFMANN PLAYS HOFMANN — Everest X-918:

The great French composer lived just barely long enough to commit six of his pieces to piano rolls.

The improvisation on music from "Samson and Delilah" is especially interesting, as is the striking "Impromptu in F Sharp Minor."

Hofmann was a piano virtuoso who is still regarded as probably the greatest pianist who lived in this century. His own compositions are super-late-Romantic piano pieces, almost Scriabinesque in some cases. The performances are breathtaking.

So much better sound than a recent Veritas LP of old Hofmann shellac recordings!

EDWIN FISHER PLAYS BRAHMS Sonata No. 3 in F Minor — Everest X-920:

Fisher was another great pianist of the recent past, who also made a number of standard-type records. Of Weiss origin, he was a Bach expert and was the first pianist ever to record the complete Well-Tempered Clavier. His Brahms is good, but somewhat mechanical due to the piano roll limitations.

GREAT VOICES OF THE CENTURY — ENRICO CARUSO — Everest Scala SCA-872:

Not piano rolls, but very old and scratchy 78s of the greatest operatic tenor of them all.

This is the third volume in a series, and features many selections that are not found on the numerous RCA Victor Caruso albums. The whole thing is well worth its bargain price, however, for the last track on Side 2. It is an aria from the First Act of Puccini's "Madame Butterfly," which has a famous tale behind it.

To summarize, Caruso arrived at the Camden, N.J., recording session soused, and his partner, Geraldine Farrar, sang early in the duet the words (in English) "He Had A Highball."

extured wool carpet room and mellow s add interest. The tterned cocktail table adjusts readily to game height and the walnut side chairs with sleek Scandinavian designs are happy correlates. The serigraph offers a variety of mellow accent colors.

In the lavish living room setting arranged by Don Gianotti, interior designer at The Elegant Room, Northgate Shopping Center, the Italian influence on the game prevails. For history records that it was the Florentine monks of the 17th Century who added the blank to the tiles.

The opulent fabric choice for the 90-inch curved sofa is a gold quilted matelasse. Nearby is an Italian contemporary styled gold velvet chair with matching ottoman. A marble-topped gold leaf pedestal table correlates with the vanilla walls and velvet plush vanilla wool carpet. Walnut finishes repeated in the drum and bench table offset the gold.

PUMPKIN IS the accent color. The vignettes will remain on display in the decorator shops until March 17.

Because they feel that these fresh, original settings inspired by their favorite games could be of interest to all homemakers, the members of St. Dominic's Chapter invite the public to tour the six participating design studios, and to participate in the March 17 tournament.

POSTERS DESIGNED by Mrs. Robert Rich to publicize the March 17 open domino tournament sponsored by St. Dominic's Chapter, Social Service Auxiliary, are admired by member Mrs. William Zavosky, wearing smart black and white knit, in an appropriate black and white setting on display at Lee Marriott Interiors, San Rafael. Traveling The Avenue Of The Giant Trees

The Travel Pages

In northwestern California's Redwood Empire, there's a 28-mile road that grew in stature when progress passed it by.

This is the Avenue of the Giants, sometimes termed the most overpowering experience open to any motorist. It was extended full-length in the fall of 1967.

The unique avenue is a winding corridor through redwood forests, 200 miles north of San Rafael. Its rough-barked sentinels, some towering 300 feet high, are often older and more impressive to many eyes than the mightiest works of man.

FOR 28 MILES, motorists may drive beneath majestic Sequoia Sempervirens, marveling at their cathedral columns rising 100 feet before the first branch juts out. Visitors can walk on a red carpet of needles amid swordfern and sorrel clover, even camp beneath 2,000-year-old redwood shades.

The Avenue of the Giants actually is the remnant of a road, left when the state of California started building a fast freeway through the forest of the Eel River in the late 1950s.

The old road, two lanes wide, parallels the new highway (U.S. 101), following the twists of the aptly-named north-flowing Eel. High-speed traffic whizzes by a few hundred yards away. But leisurely travelers can drink their fill of beauty without interruption by trucks and busses, take little walks through the woods, picnic and pause to look upward and replenish the soul.

THROUGHOUT its length, the Avenue of the Giants is located in Humboldt Redwoods State Park, a 40,000-acre preserve in southern Humboldt County, named for a famous German naturalist.

Its groves were discovered more than a century ago by Gold Rush pioneers. But they were not set aside for public use until after World War I, when the first crude roads began to penetrate the steep Valley of the Eel.

Northbound motorists enter the Avenue of the Giants with a right-hand turnoff six miles north of the resort town of Garberville, following the river's east bank. Franklin K. Lane Grove is the first spectacular stand of trees. Next comes the small town of Miranda, then Stephens Creek Grove, then Hidden Springs Campground (155 campsites).

UNDER THE freeway at Myers Flat (where there's a living tree you drive through), the avenue proceeds past Burlington Campgrounds, across the river from the Garden Club of America Grove, donated by club members in perpetuity.

SUNLIGHT penetrates the dense foliage of a redwood forest in northwestern California. More than 115,000 acres of coast redwoods grace state parks in the region, and all are open to the public. (Redwood Empire Association photo)

Back under the freeway the route touches Founder's Grove, commemorating conservationists of 1918 who started the Save-the-Redwoods League. Here is the onetime tallest redwood (lightning-whittled down to 350 feet today), and a bench placed to honor the late Bernard Baruch. Across its own bridge, the avenue proceeds northward on the west bank of the often turbulent Eel.

At this crossing, a delightful side-trip west on Bull Creek Road leads five miles to Rockefeller Forest, in part a gift of the philanthropist family. Beside the sparkling creek stand such mammoths as the Tallest Tree (359 feet), the Giant Tree (20 feet in diameter) and a leaning, pie-shaped trunk — the Flatiron Tree. It is hard to forsake this camera Nirvana.

THE AVENUE of the Giants was extended in late 1967 as far as Jordan Creek, 30 miles south of the port city, Eureka. This was occasioned by completion of another seven miles of freeway.

Some Budget Vacation Suggestions

Americans Can Benefit From British Experience

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

For generations, Americans have generally followed in the tourist paths blazed across Europe by their English cousins.

It was the British who "discovered" Paris, Rome, Madrid, Athens and other places to holiday on the continent and helped make them the "in" spots for American and other visitors.

BUT ALONG with the popularity boom came deluxe hotels, indoor plumbing, air conditioning and other amenities virtually demanded by the well-heeled American, and higher prices and expenses.

So, long before Washington called for curbs on spending by American travelers to help plug the U.S. balance of payments deficit, the British were pioneering new tourist trails for the budget-minded through the Old World.

The British learned to go where the going was cheap even before the postwar economic belt-tightening days. With Britain's current austerity—Britons can spend only $120 on a foreign holiday—the search has been intensified and the American is sure to benefit.

IN THE LATE 1940s, it was the Italian northern coast. When prices got a little less popular, they discovered Spain, still one of their favorite vacation sites. But when Americans, Germans, French and others followed and prices went up, they went exploring again.

They "found" Yugoslavia where even the most expensive hotel room costs less than a meal for two at an average restaurant in New York City.

Americans, who followed the British to Italy, Spain and Yugoslavia, now are beginning to follow them to other off-the-old-beaten tracks, including the Black Sea coasts of Bulgaria and Romania. The Communists call it the "Gold Coast" and have erected dozens of prefabricated hotels with bellboys in capitalistic styled uniforms and low prices.

AIRLINES AND travel agencies here and abroad, also are helping Americans find more economical but no less enjoyable vacation sites, offering low-cost package tours which include use of rental cars. Automobiles can help cut costs.

Hotel, restaurant and other prices are cheaper outside the cities and towns.

Here are some other places Europeans now are going for economy as well as enjoyment:

The Atlantic coast of Denmark (summer months only). Once the haven of nudists, it is dotted with attractive beach hotels and inns. Menus are not for calorie-counters.

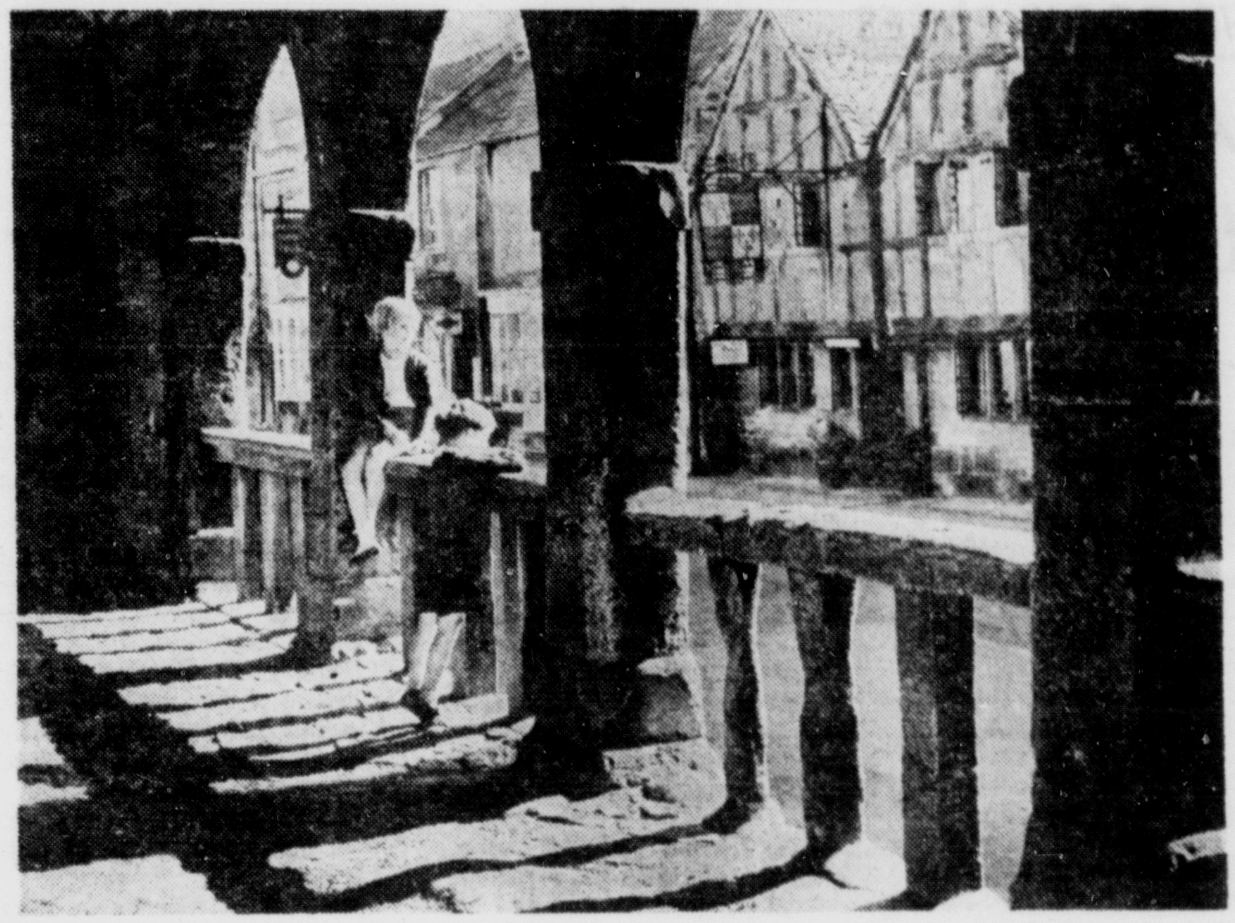
The southern coast of Norway. Beaches are scarce but within easy reach of villages. The small village inns offer feather bed luxury, groaning tables of food, privacy, and fantastic fjord views for photographers.

Rural Wales and Scotland and the Cotswold and Cornwell districts of England; inexpensive inns, tasty low-cost local dishes and probably the unnosiest innkeepers in the world.

West Berlin, to which the West German government has subsidized air travel (about $35 round trip from Frankfurt); major European theater, opera and music plus fine food and low cost lodgings if the visitor avoids the Kurfuerstendamm hotels.

THE BEST bargains, naturally, are in the so-called off season.

Prices are generally highest in July and August, traditional vacation months for Europeans, too. But in late September, for instance, the Italian government hotel just east of San Remo offers $50 a day rooms for as little as $10 if the tourist doesn't mind asking.



THE COTSWOLDS in England offer one of Britain's most picturesque areas with quaint old stone towns such as Chipping Campden, shown here. Prices are low. And you are only a short distance from the historic Shakespeare country, and from Oxford.

The Best Place to go if you're going someplace!

THE BOOK PAGES

An Unsympathetic Portrait Of Lonely Outcast On New Frontier

By DON KEOWN

America's bitterest political feud is the breach between the Kennedys and Lyndon B. Johnson dating back to the 1960 contest for the Democratic presidential nomination, and it is a schism that will certainly remain with us for some time to come.

The timing of Evelyn Lincoln's "Kennedy & Johnson" for another election year, then, is hardly a matter of chance.

The longtime personal secretary to the late John F. Kennedy takes dead aim, and then buries her hatchet where it will do the most harm to the tall Texan.

She attacks not Johnson's beliefs or policies but his character and personality, areas in which, to many Americans, he is extremely vulnerable.

Mrs. Lincoln professes a historic duty to tell the people "what they want to know" about the relationship of President Kennedy to the vice president who was to succeed him. She relies extensively upon the diary she kept while serving President Kennedy which also provided the basis for her earlier book, "My Twelve Years With John F. Kennedy." Since she was wholeheartedly a Kennedy partisan and admirer, with only indirect contact with Johnson, her observations and her views are one-sided. Some one else will have to write the Johnson rebuttal, although it is likely that LBJ will be just as happy to forget the matter of his role in the Kennedy administration after Mrs. Lincoln's almost cruel revelations.

The two points upon which the book has already made newspaper headlines are:

. Its confirmation of earlier reports that Kennedy felt trapped into offering the vice presidential nomination to Johnson in 1960 by newspaper rumors and speculation, and that he was surprised and disappointed when the latter accepted. The deep wounds of the savage pre-convention campaign and convention maneuvering had not healed.

2. The flat statement that

KENNEDY & JOHNSON by Evelyn Lincoln; Holt Rinehart and Winston, 207 pages, $4.95.

PROTEST: PACIFISM & POLITICS by James Finn; Random House, 528 pages, $8.95.

Kennedy planned to drop Johnson from the 1964 ticket, replacing him with North Carolina's Terry Sanford.

But more telling is Mrs. Lincoln's depiction of Johnson as a lost and lonely outsider in the bustling ranks of the New Frontier.

The Lyndon Johnson she presents is a crude and arrogant politician, proud, erratic, tempermental, profane, ambitious, tyranical, hyper sensitive, garrulous, a complete bore. And, the author says, Kennedy considered him a failure even in the one department where it had been felt he could make a real contribution to the administration's programs — in his relationship with the legislative branch of the government. The result was, Mrs. Lincoln claims, that Johnson was regarded with something akin to contempt in the White House, and figured less and less in the policy-making councils. Finally, he was almost totally ignored.

Mrs. Lincoln's bias is so evident that it somewhat weakens her thesis. Only sometimes does she support her evaluations with fact or example. It is a small book, and on cold analysis, actually yields the reader very little in the way of concrete information on how Kennedy and Johnson acted together or reacted to each other. But those tidbits that are cited are invariably injurious to the LBJ image, which at this time is hardly the current President's biggest asset.

The Lincoln book most certainly will widen the gap between Johnson and the Kennedys, for the highly sensitive-to-criticism President is certain to suspect the manipulative minds and hands of Bobby and Ted as being behind the book. And its appearance will hardly enhance Johnson's 1968 election prospects, although the absence of subtlety may win the forlorn and ineffectual outcast of 1960-64 some sympathy and understanding of his present tendency toward over-aggressive spurring, now that he is the man in the saddle.

KENNEDY adherents and Republicans aren't the only ones slamming away at Lyndon Johnson these days.

Pacifists are stepping up their criticism of the administration's Vietnam policy, undetered by their inability to date to produce the desired effects.

And the pacifists, themselves, have become a center of controversy.

There is a tendency to lump all pacifists together. Their admirers see them as one large, homogenized body of high principled idealists and martyrs, while their critics berate them all as cowards, fools, or even as traitors.

"Protest: Pacifism & Politics" by James Finn makes the point that there actually is a great deal of diversity within the ranks of the pacifists. It is subtitled "Some Passionate Views on War and Non-Violence." Some do, indeed, speak with emotion. But more generally, the views are calmly and thoughtfully expressed.

Finn's technique has been to interview or converse with some of the leading figures from the non-violent movement, to record and then to transcribe that talk. Since Finn, director of publications for the Council on Religion and International Affairs and a former Commonweal editor, is a provocative and stimulating interviewer, the approach works quite well.

As would be expected, his subjects vary widely in their ability to articulate, and some conversations are a great deal meatier than others.

The chat with the late A. J. Muste, for instance, is particularly illuminating. Georgia's young Negro legislator Julian Bond is a fascinating conversationalist. Dorothy Day of Catholic Worker fame is another. Frs. Daniel and Philip Berrigan, Rabbi Arthur Gilbert, Abraham Joshua Heschel, Staughton Lynd, journalist Jack Newfield, Bayard Ruskin, writer-educator Paul Ramsey, singer Joan Baez, scientist Tom Stonier, writers Mitchell Goodman and Denise Levertov, "firebrand" W. H. Ferry, these and many more, all express, and generally very well, what pacifism means to them, with particular application to the Vietnam situation.

Naturally, there is a great deal of repetition, since some general, unifying goals and guidelines are accepted by all or most. But there are also some interesting differences and disagreements, particularly on tactics, that show the peace movement to be far from one coordinated, autonomous body, as it is frequently pictured from the outside. It is this diversity and division that Finn stresses in his closing summary.

Finn's book is not the quickest, easiest introduction to American pacifism. It is a big and weighty tome. But the words of principal spokesmen along with Finn's own extensive and illuminating commentary offer a more trustworthy means of acquaintanceship for the non-initiated than do glibber, briefer texts. Finn does fail, however, to inform us fully of the time or conditions of some of the conversations.

NEWEST ADDITION to McGraw-Hill's weighty and important Council on Foreign Relations Series is "Gulliver's Troubles, or the Setting of American Foreign Policy" ($11.95) by Harvard Prof. Stanley Hoffmann.

Professor Hoffmann is critical of our policy-makers' failure to adjust to the new realities, pointing out the paradox that finds the United States and Russia at the zenith of their power, yet unable, because of their own nuclear stalemate, to pressure smaller nations into doing their bidding. Instead, the smaller states do the manipulating. America is indicted for an overall lack of flexibility.

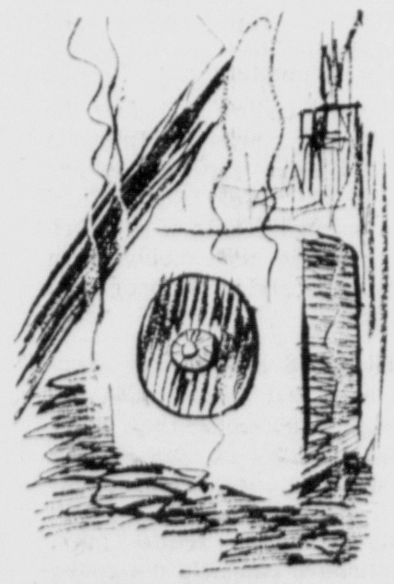
Sleuths & Suspense

THE INSTANT ENEMY by Ross Macdonald; Knopf, 227 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Don Keown.



Lew Archer, the "private eye" portrayed so well by Paul Newman in the movie, "Harper," is back for another of Ross Macdonald's patented whirlwind action-crammed mysteries.

This time the Southern California detective is called in by a Los Angeles business executive to find his rebellious, missing daughter. Soon Archer finds himself up to his neck in a kidnaping case to which, it appears, is linked an old murder.

Macdonald, as he often does, totters on the brink of making his plot a bit too complicated and crowded. But, also as he usually does, he manages somehow to keep things under control.

The result is a crackling good yarn with plenty of violence and sex, but all of it subordinated to the elements of mystery and suspense. It's another big success for the talented Santa Barbara writer who ranks right up there at the top with the masters of the "tough guy" detective novel.

Man As A Machine

MECHANICAL MAN. The Physical Basis of Intelligent Life, by Dean W. Woolridge; McGraw-Hill, 222 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by Jeff Greer.

English zoologist Desmond Morris recently philosophized, "Man is just an animal — a naked ape."

Now, physicist-engineer Dr. Dean E. Wooldridge argues, "Man is just a machine," and that creativity, free-will, consciousness, religion, morality and all of Man's other supposedly unique attributes are purely the result of physical laws acting on matter.

After building his argument from the simple chemicals that may have started life as we know it, Dr. Wooldridge carries through to comparing brains and computers, and to the ultimate conclusion that man's knowledge that he is a machine should change his pattern of life.

Morris' "Naped Ape" and Wooldridge's "Mechanical Man" don't necessarily contradict each other, but in reading one after the other I find myself saying "yes, yes" to Morris and "yes . . . but" to Wooldridge. ("The Naked Ape" was reviewed in the Marin Magazine on Jan. 27.)

Wooldridge quite dispassionately talks of the sort of future world about which Huxley's "Brave New World" and Orwell's "1984" fret. He envisions a day when a brain can be supplied with off-the-shelf memories, manufacturing absolutely synthetic personalities. Or, he says, an individual's personality and knowledge may be recorded, for re-creation at some future date or perhaps on another planet.

It sounds science-fictionish, but he's serious.

Dr. Wooldridge's biography stresses more his scientific and industrial background than any previous involvement in so-called "political science." He is now a research associate in engineering at Cal Tech, after leaving the Thomson Ramo Wooldridge think factory firm he helped found.

His other books, "The Machinery of Life," and "The Machinery of the Brain," earned him the AAAS-Westinghouse award for scientific writing in 1963. In 1964-65, he served President Lyndon B. Johnson as chairman of the National Institutes of Health Study Committee.

Recognition of Man's machine nature, Wooldridge asserts, will mean the end of conventional religion and morality. But, says he, "There will be no reason why the term 'God' cannot still be used to denote the seemingly inexplicable origin of the laws and particles of physics."

As for the person whose morality is dictated by religious fears of damnation, "recent world history suggests that governments will not find it beyond their capability to fill . . . this need by investing their semireligious aura that the unanalytic can worship and . . . intensification of propaganda emphasizing the popular approval to be expected from behavior acceptable to the state. Whether this will make the citizen's life more or less pleasant is not our concern here."

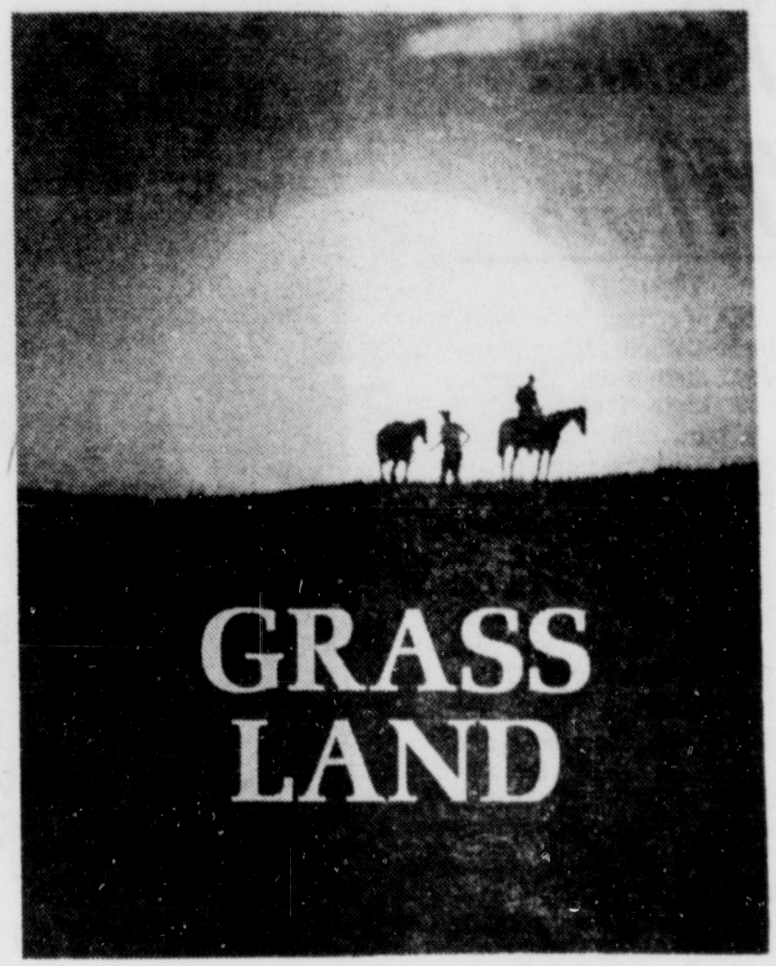
Wooldridge tempers his seemingly inhumanized future of man:

"Fortunately, we have also been able to conclude that the concept of mechanical man poses no serious threat to society . . . The revolution in religion, the preservation of morality . . . the increased liberality of society toward the individual, the decrease in unreasoning prejudice resulting from the elimination of the mystical idea of absolute right and wrong — these consequences seem important to us. . . .

" . . . Society profits when its members behave more intelligently. And men who know they are machines should be able to bring a higher degree of objectivity to bear on their problems than machines that think they are men."

Maybe there's something to that hippie phrase:

"Turn on, man."



AN UNUSUAL project by a young professional photographer, Steven G. Wilson, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Wilson, is "Grass Land," first volume in a projected series entitled "The Territory of Man." The younger Wilson took the color photographs and a beautiful job he did. Pictures have a soft, sensitive, almost sensuous quality about them that commands an emotional as well as intellectual response from the viewer. The elder Wilsons, who operate a seed farm in Nebraska, have written a brief, poetic, subdued accompaniment for the photos, plus an informative text on grasses, their abuse by man and their great blessings to him. The book, from Wide Skies Press of Polk, Neb., sells for $1.95 softcover, $4.95 clothbound.

NEW BOOKS FOR THE JUNIORS

Written by science teacher and lecturer Donald W. Cox, "America's Explorers of Space" (Hammond, $3.50) offers science and history-minded youngsters a quick survey of the leading figures in man's progress in probing the stratosphere.

Included are sketches of such familiar figures as Robert H. Goddard, Wernher von Braun and the glamor guys of space, astronauts Alan B. Shepard Jr., Virgil I. Grissom, John H. Glenn Jr. and Edward H. White II. But a number of less well known pioneer and background figures are also included.

Perhaps most interesting of all is Cox's rather detailed discussion of UFOs and his conclusion that "man can and must plan now to cushion himself for the impact of the revolutionary changes that will sweep over the earth when he first detects life out there. "When," not, "if."

Some other new books for juniors:

"Fishing With Dad" (Harcourt, Brace & World, $3.50) by James Flora is not the story of a lad accompanying his father to the stream bank. For Daniel's father is a commercial fisherman. So when this boy accompanies his dad, it's aboard the Kitty Q on the open seas. Along with adventure, the young reader, 6 through 9, absorbs a great deal of information about commercial fishing. The pictures are strongly masculine with real "boy-appeal."

Newest in "The Look-It-Up Book" series is "Stars & Planets" (Random House, $3.95) by Patricia Lauber, covering a field of increasing interest to junior readers. The sturdily bound book offers a good, quick, comprehensible summation of what man has learned about the galaxies as written by a veteran science author and editor for children. John Polgreen is responsible for some excellent illustrations.

Purely beautiful reading for children is "The River" (Dutton, $3.50) by George Maxim Ross. Rivers start with one drop of water, soon to be joined to another, and then another; eventually there is a trickle — and so on to the sea. Ross' story, "The Pine Tree," stressed the individual. "The River" shows how things must be joined to become part of the world.

Rocks are not an unfamiliar sight to the child — and yet they can be fascinating things when the youngster really thinks about them. That is the basis for "Rocks and How We Use Them" (McGraw-Hill, $3.50) by Tillie S. Pine and Joseph Levine, with illustrations by Bernice Myers. With simple text and pictures, the small reader is reminded of some of the many uses of rocks, and then led into experiments on his own part that reinforce those instructions. It is a book that coaxes the child to participate as well as read.

Remember those aviation pulp magazines we used to read as kids in which American and German aces of World War I dueled in the skies over Europe? Charles I. Coombs hopes to strike sparks from that same interest in today's boys with his "Ace of the Argonne" (World, $3.75). It's the action story of Tom Miller, cocky U.S. pilot, and his feud with Baron von Hessel of the Boche. It may cause some twinges of nostalgia in dad when he sneaks a look.

The Rockies Region

THE MOUNTAIN STATES by Marshall Sprague; Time-Life Books, 192 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

This is the newest in Time-Life's excellent Library of America series in which it is covering these United States, region by region.

This presentation covering the states of Arizona, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Utah and Wyoming seems to be particularly effective, largely because of the special pictorial appeal of the area. Time-Life is in a position to take full advantage of that photographic potential, and offers some really stunning color pictures.

Marshall Sprague, a much respected writer and authority on the West, has contributed a better than adequate text that succeeds in capturing the unique flavor of the Rockies and adjoining areas. But it is the photography that is the real star of the book.

Like all books in this series, "The Mountain States" has been given a most handsome cover and design by Time-Life's editors.

What Is It Like To Live As Black?

SOUL ON ICE by Eldridge Cleaver; McGraw-Hill, 210 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Lee Cadwallader.

Before or after you read the report from the National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders, you should read this book to get a hard, cold look at that part of our society in which some black people live.

Hopefully, you'll not only learn how it is with these blacks, but how they believe it to be with us.

At times Eldridge Cleaver comes very close to knowing what it's like to be white.

But, "He whose heart is closed will not be benefited by open eyes." So, he misses the mark at other times, as we have for hundreds of years in our treatment of minority groups.

Eldridge Cleaver was born in Little Rock, Ark., in 1935, educated in Watts and at the California state prisons of San Quentin, Folsom and Soledad. He is now a staff writer for Ramparts, and has contributed pieces to Esquire, Black Dialogue, Liberator, and Mademoiselle.

He's made the scene in full spectrum, and presents some of it in this not tidy, not objective book about our little world. It's just not a nice book — shockables, take note.

Although basically the picture here is negative — not all of it is. Once he said, "This technique of 'Negro control' has been so effective that the best-known Negroes in America have always been — and still are — the entertainers and athletes (this is true also of white America.)" That was the only time he completed the equation with that parenthesis, but I found myself adding the parenthesis many more times.

Another positive aspect of the book is inescapable. Here is a man with a quality education and a developing gift for writing.

But where did the quality come from? It came mostly from a prison library and solitary confinement. And I should guess, that the learning was motivated by the belief that the white man really doesn't want the black man to achieve a quality education.

A few years ago, after rereading Gunnar Myrdal's "American Dilemma," I was appalled to note how little progress we have made since this study, published in 1940.

Now the situation is worse and I'm no longer appalled — just stunned.

This collection of essays and letters is written with the frankness of a man on the bottom who has nothing to lose by being truthful. And the five-lettered word "blood" completely overshadows all four-lettered words about sex.

A JUST TRADE

I often look at trees
And think that these
Were flowers long ago.
There on the hills and vales below
The giant knelt upon his knees
Making nosegays out of trees;
And with arms sweet-flower laden
The giant wooed his giant maiden.
"Exchange thy heart for these," he cried.
She held her arms out, gently sighed.

TIBURON ARCHAEOLOGICAL DIG

Will they, I wonder,
Pick over my bones in ecstasy
Under the pitiless sun,
Fracturing my long-vacated skull
With their seeking shovels?
And will they guess and glory
In the life I used to lead
Under the tall trees, over the once bare hills,
With mine who are now oblivion,
Suiting their conjectures
To fill the voided years
The centuries in between
That I never knew and they never knew . . .
And the rest is silence . . .

For Color It's The Annuals

If color is the goal of most gardeners, then annual flowers should be one of their primary means of achieving it.

Winter, spring, summer and fall — it makes no difference — one or another of this group will offer up its crop of color for cutting or simply for looking.

IT WOULD seem that annuals were made for California's climate and, indeed, many of them including our state flower, the Golden Poppy, were. Early visitors from England and other garden oriented countries went home singing the praises of California as a "land of flowers."

And so it is today with a good percentage of the nation's flower seed being grown here commercially for packaging and sale all over the world.

There are many uses for annuals in the garden.

IN THE BORDER they combine with shrubs and perennials to make border color truly "perennial." A typical annual border might utilize tall larkspurs and giant snapdragons as background plants, stocks and tetra snaps in the middle border, petunias, alyssum and dwarf marigolds in the foreground.

You can improvise your own combinations.

As edgings the dwarf annuals such as lobelia and ageratum, fibrous begonias and dwarf marigolds are ideally suited. Here again these annuals can be used in combination with perennials.

FIBROUS BEGONIAS and Dusty Miller make a nice contrast to each other.

In raised beds, the trailing petunias and trailing lobelia are perfect, filling the bed on top and spilling over to show their color against the supporting wall. These same two can be used in hanging baskets as well.

For cutting, annuals deserve beds of their own — occasionally island beds in the middle of a lawn, but more often in modern gardens, side beds or foundation beds along the wall of a house.

SOME nurserymen grow their annuals in gallon cans for cutting, or for sinking in the garden wherever color is needed at the moment.

Annuals are being planted now for late spring and summer color, so nursery stocks are plentiful. What are you waiting for?

Early Arrival Flowering Quince Is Also One Of Our Best Shrubs

Among the earliest "spring" shrubs to bloom each year are the colorful flowering quinces.

These are long-lasting flowers, too, and unless you cut them for arrangements indoors, they will last for several weeks on the shrubs, lingering for some time after the leaves themselves unfold.

Cutting, incidentally, can commence in December, for once you bring the "bare" branches inside and place them in water, the flower buds begin to open.

THERE ARE two types of quinces available — those bred for flowering and those which bear both flowers and fruit. The latter are less of a spectacle in spring, but their fall crop can be converted into some fine jam and jelly, or, if you're so inclined, into an old-fashioned home-made wine.

Two fruiting varieties recommended by the California Association of Nurserymen are "Pineapple" and "Smyrna."

But back to the flowering quinces:

THESE ARE among the best deciduous flowering shrubs in California, for their winter-chill requirements are negligible. They do well here along the coast as well as inland, and once established, they will require little attention other than occasional pruning after flowering to reduce woody growth in the center of the plant or to shape an overgrown specimen.

A selection of varieties would include "Minerva," a cherry-red bloomer; "Snow," a lovely white-blossomed shrub; "Texas Scarlet," with vivid red bloom; "Pink Lady," with clear pink, and another pink named "Charming." This is only a partial list.

YOU WILL find them in bloom at nurseries this month, so shopping for them now makes good sense.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Rooted cuttings of carnations are available in nurseries for planting this month and next.
- Plant evergreen fruit trees such as citrus and avocado now that the danger of frost is largely past.
- Wait until weather warms up a bit before seeding zinnias in your garden.
- Prune fuchsias if you haven't done so already. Geraniums may also be cut back now.
- Established roses may be fed this month. New roses should be permitted to take hold without feeding until summer.

A Six-Step Easy-To-Build Patio

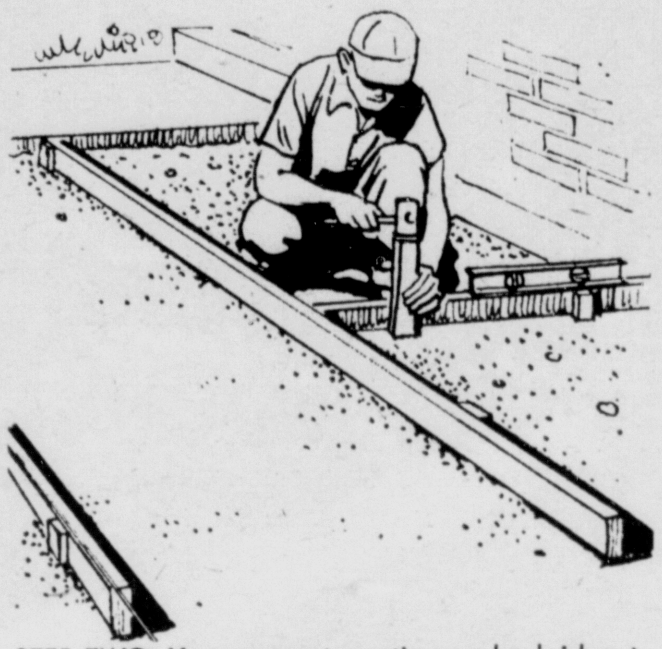
The outdoor living season, now at hand, brings more than ever to mind to Marinites the delights of outdoor living in their marvelous climate.

But to enjoy it thoroughly, first you need a patio.

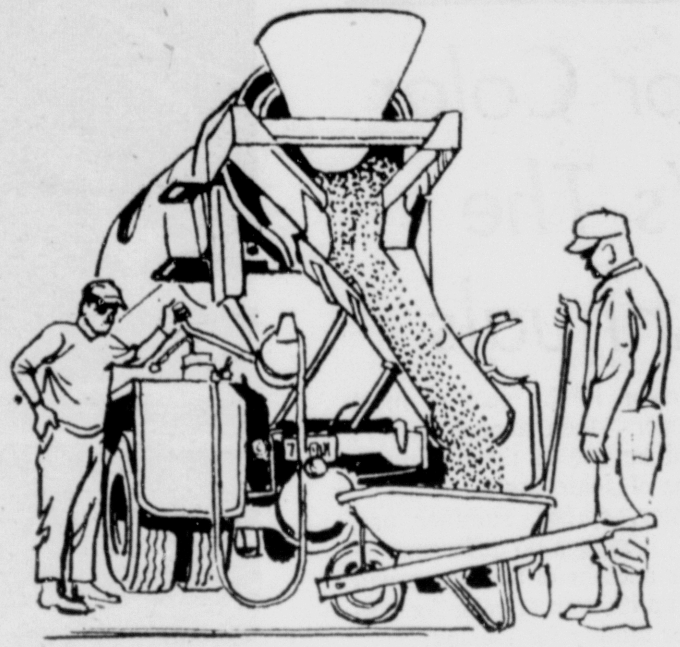
Below you will find step-by-step instructions on how to build a new concrete patio.

It is best to tackle the job only if you are experienced in such work, or if you have a special knack for such chores. Otherwise, relax and call your contractor.

STEP ONE: Select your patio area carefully, making sure it's exactly where you want it. Stake out the area to help you visualize its appearance. Remove the turf and at least four inches of top soil. Compact loose soil with a tamper or heavy roller. Place a smooth, level one-inch layer of sand to provide firm, even support for your patio.



STEP TWO: Your concrete patio can be laid out in almost any shape — square, circular, diamond or free-form. For a four-inch thick slab, use two-by-four boards on edge, nailed to one-by-two-inch stakes driven firmly into the ground. The top edge of forms will be surface grade of your patio. Be sure that the water will drain properly.



STEP THREE: After base is prepared and forms set, call a ready-mixed concrete dealer, telling him the patio size you are building, and that you want to use concrete with 6 per cent air-entrainment. He will deliver enough concrete for the job. Have enough help ready to place concrete when it arrives, so do not order the delivery until you are prepared.

STEP FOUR: Place the concrete as near as possible in its final position. Don't spread it from one central pile. Spade concrete thoroughly to help consolidate it. After concrete is placed, strike it off with a two-by-four resting on the forms as shown, for a flat, level patio surface. Keep enough concrete ahead of two-by-four to fill low spots.

STEP FIVE: After surface water evaporates and concrete starts to stiffen, "float" the patio surface with a light metal or wood float. This produces a textured, slip-resistant finish. If a very smooth surface is desired, finish with a steel trowel. But remember — the smoother the surface of the concrete, the more slippery it will become when it is wet.

STEP SIX: Finish off by curing the concrete properly to produce a strong, durable surface. For best results, keep it wet for at least six days after placing, or cover it with a plastic film as shown here. Wet burlap or straw are equally good as curing covers. Your concrete patio will then be ready to provide you with years of enjoyment.

When You Have To Drill Into Metal Or Cement

A portable electric drill, used mostly in working with wood, is an excellent tool for making holes in metal and concrete provided it is handled properly.

The most essential requirement for success is the right bit. Using an ordinary bit intended for wood is a sure way to get nowhere, not to mention ruining the bit.

BE SURE THE bit or set of bits you buy is for use on metal or concrete, whichever you require. If the card to which the bit is attached does not specifically say this, then you can be sure that it is meant for use only on wood.

Whenever possible, metal to be drilled should be held firmly in a vise or clamp. Use a wooden block on thin metal which might be bent or distorted when drilled. A starting hole should be made with a center punch.

For thick or tough metal, use a bit lubricant, such as kerosene or turpentine. For most other metals, soluble oil, lard oil and kerosene are good, while paraffine is excellent for very soft metals, such as brass or aluminum.

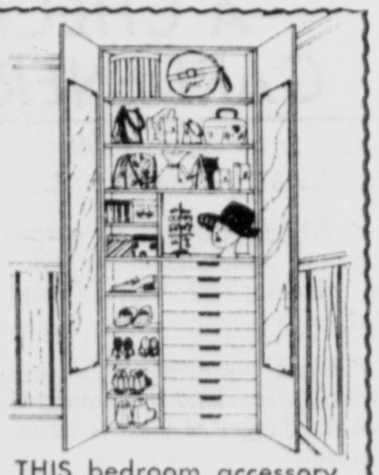
THE DRILL should be held firmly, with only enough pressure to keep the bit cutting smoothly. When a large hole is to be made in hard metal, it sometimes is advisable to drill a small hole first, then one of the desired size.

Drilling concrete with a portable electric drill was once a impossible task for the amateur. It became feasible with the invention of the bide-tipped bit. Even with this bit, the drill must be held firmly and the pressure must be heavy.

Since drilling into concrete, no matter what the conditions, is a job requiring a certain degree of strength, the holder of the drill must stop every so often and rest. When this is done, it is important that the drill be removed from the hole while the bit is still spinning.

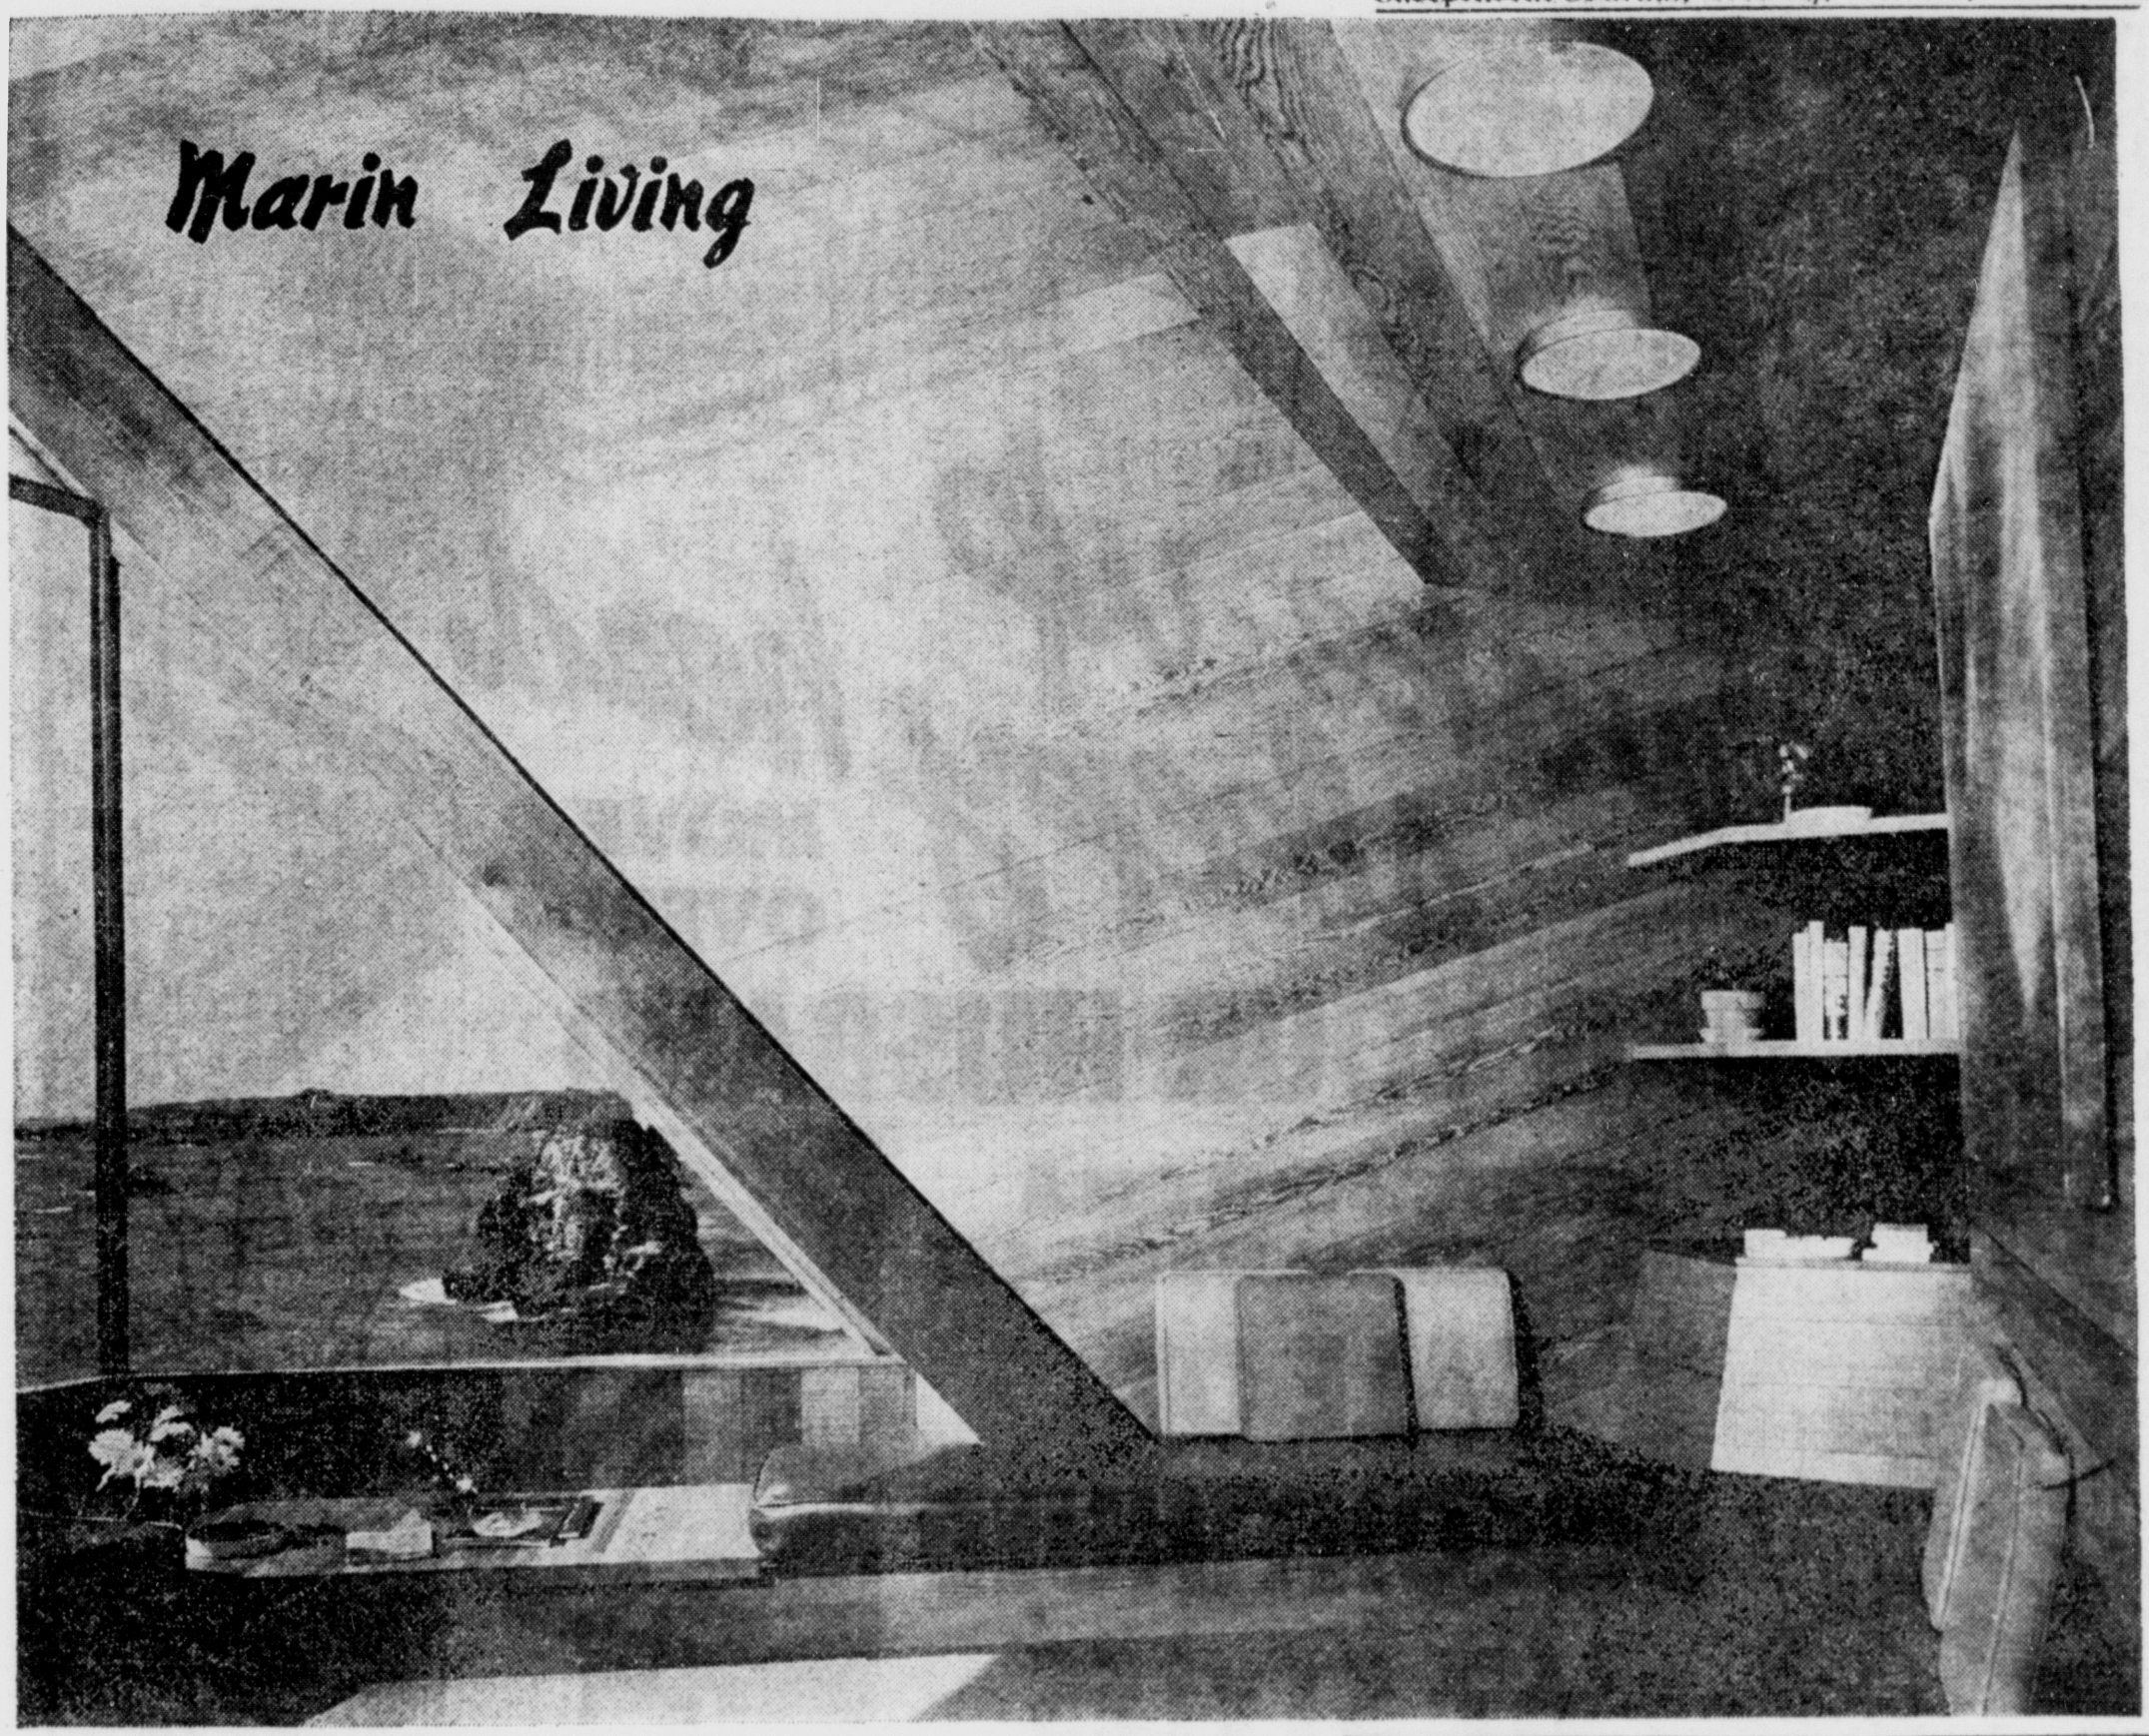
THEREFORE, don't relax your grip on the drill trigger until the bit is out of the hole. If the bit stops spinning while it is in the concrete, its cutting edges will be quickly dulled.

Most householders who own portable electric drills have the quarter-inch size, which refers to the maximum diameter of the bit that can be held in the chuck. It is the best size for most jobs around the house. But if you do a lot of work with metal and concrete, a heavy-duty drill — either three-eighths of an inch or one-half inch — is recommended.



THIS bedroom accessory closet makes use of space behind a door, in a corner or between windows. Lower half has shoe shelves and trays for handkerchiefs, jewelry, etc. Above go hats and handbags. Mirrors on inside of double doors provide front-back view. Closet has Douglas fir shelving and sides, fir panel doors.

Marin Living



INTERIOR PANELING of redwood lends an appearance of warmth and dignity to architect J. Carson Bowler's home on Bodega Bay. The paneling is three-eighth inch tongue and groove vertical grain all heart redwood. The Bowler home is currently receiving national publicity in a California Redwood Association color advertisement in major magazines.

A Redwood Home On Bodega Bay

Architect J. Carson Bowler's redwood house at Bodega Bay is the featured home for the first 1968 advertisement in the California Redwood Association's continuing "I am an architect. . . . This is my house. . . . I built it of redwood" campaign series.

The full-color, full-page advertisement is running in several major magazines with national circulation.

The two-level house is tucked neatly into a hillside. There are two studios, a living room, a dining room, a bath and a kitchen. Architect Bowler used vertical grain clear all-heart redwood for the interior paneling and clear all-heart redwood for exterior trim, fencing, patios and decks.

The architecture fits the boldness of the site; the redwood compliments the rugged expression and subtle coloration of the Northern California coastline.
